FRENCH CRISIS; PREMIER OUT

JAPS THREATEN TO BOMB PEIPING AND TIENTSIN

Claim China Violated Manchurian Truce.

New Ultimatum

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, May 31.—[Friday.]—A final ultimatum will be handed to the Nanking government today, according to the newspaper Nichi Nichi. This ultimatum, the paper said, will place the blame for the present situation on China and reiterate that Japan has filed previous protests and warnings in vain. The Japanese army is expected to move south into the demilitarized area within a few days.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, May 30. — Imperial Japan today is "cracking down" on China in a more determined manner than at any time since cessation of actual hostilities over the Manchurian issue in the summer of 1933.

The Japanese army in an ultimatum to Chinese authorities has threatened to bomb and occupy both Peiping and Tientsin, as well as Kalgan, 100 miles northwest of Peiping, unless all anti-Japanese activities are stopped. The Japanese asserted that there has been no genuine improvement in anti-Japanese sentiment despite Nanking's claims that the boycott has ended.

Plan to Extend Neutral Area.

Japanese officials, according to reports from Tokio, freely admit plans to include Peiping and Tientsin within the demilitarized zone, which at present lies north of the two cities.

The Japanese charged that Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, dictator of the Nanking government, as well as Gen. Yu Hsueh-chung, chairman of Hopei province and commander of Chinese troops in north China, are directly responsible for a long list of alleged infractions of the Tangku truce signed May 31, 1933, marking the conclusion of the Sino-Japanese hostilities over Manchuria.

Five Jap Accusations.

Yakichiro Suma, Japanese consul general at Nanking, this morning presented further "representations" to Wang Ching-wei, premier of the Nanking government. They included five accusations:

FIRST—That Nanking officials have conducted anti-Japanese propaganda not only within China but also in the United States, Great Britain, and at the league of nations. The Japanese especially objected to China's attempt to obtain a seat in the league of nations council.

SECOND—That China has disregarded Japan's recent protest over the increase of the Chinese tarif scheduled to become effective June 1.

THIRD—That China is preparing to establish radiophone service between China and the United States without first establishing similar service between China and Japan.

FOURTH—That Chinese newspapers in Shanghai are refusing to publish advertisements of Japanese companies.

FIFTH—That the Chinese government is harboring Corean outlaws or revolutionists.

Reveal Details of Edict.

Japanese military spokesmen at Peiping, revealing further details of yesterday's ultimatum, declared they informed the Chinese that the Japanese war planes now flying in formation over Peiping and Kalgan would shortly release bombs on both cities unless the Chinese immediately complied with the Japanese demands.

These demands were based on charges that the Chinese aided "bandits" both north and south of the Great Wall and plotted against the peace and order of Manchukuo.

The Japanese said these acts proved that the Chinese are insincere and that they constitute an "affront to the Japanese army, making it necessary for the army to adopt self-defense measures."

Chinese authorities profess inability to understand the sudden change in the Japanese attitude, which was replete with professions of friendship a few days ago when the two countries elevated the status of their legations to embassies.

PETILLO WINS AUTO RACE; ONE DRIVER KILLED

Kelly Petillo of Huntington Park, Cal., won the 500 mile automobile race at Indianapolis yesterday with the record average speed of 106.240 miles an hour. Clay Weatherly of Cincinnati was killed when his car crashed into a concrete wall soon after the start.

The speedway attendance of 155,000 was high point in a holiday sports program. Crowds at major league baseball parks and five horse racing centers lifted the total to 542,000.

At Comiskey park the White Sox defeated Cleveland, 8 to 4, but lost the second game, 4 to 0. The Cubs, playing at Pittsburgh, won the opener, 6 to 4, and lost the second, 4 to 1.

NEW DEAL PUTS 121,431 JOBS ON PAY ROLL OF U.S.

Work for 'Deserving Democrats.'

Tax Bill Grows

New York, May 30.—[Special.]—The mounting cost of city government is shown in a pamphlet issued today by the citizens' budget commission, explaining that the city's pay roll this year is $20,834,124 higher than it was in 1929.

Today the city has 11,218 more employés than it had in 1929, exclusive of relief workers. In 1929 the average per capita earnings of private employés was $1,998, while city employés averaged $2,279. In 1932 private earnings averaged $1,199, while those of city employé rose to an average of $2,486.

City taxpayers pay an average of $1.48 a day in taxes to keep the government in operation, the pamphlet adds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—[Special.]—New Deal burocracy has swelled the federal employment roll to its greatest peacetime strength. This was revealed today in an analysis prepared by the civil service commission.

For the month of March federal pay rollers totaled 684,918. Of these 97,388 are in the District of Columbia and 587,530 are outside of Washington. The figures are exclusive of the army, navy, judicial, and legislative forces.

At its present rate of expansion the New Deal promises to eclipse the all time high of federal employment set during the war. On Nov. 11, 1918, the first Armistice day, the federal rolls numbered 917,760 workers. Of these 117,760 were in Washington and 800,000 outside of the capital.

121,431 New Jobs Made.

In two years the New Deal has made new jobs for more than 100,000 deserving Democrats. When President Roosevelt took office March 4, 1933, there were 563,487 federal pay rollers, 66,802 in Washington and 496,685 outside. The increase to date is approximately 22 per cent.

Of the 121,431 new employés, 30,858 are in Washington and 90,845 throughout the coutry. The bulk of the additional jobs are the result of the mushrooming alphabetical units.

The influx of 30,586 federal workers and their families into Washington has set this city teeming. A recent visitor, who had not been here since the war, said he thought the swarm of federal employés was as great as it was in 1918.

New Houses Rushed.

The city echoes with the ringing of carpenters' hammers on new homes. Hotels are so crowded reservations must be made weeks in advance. New Deal bureaus have outgrown vast federal buildings and are flowing over into private buildings.

To most Washingtonians the influx has brought grief because it has resulted in rentals increasing at rabbit bounds and food prices skyrocketing in pace.

The 30,586 new jobs in Washington are almost as many as were needed to run the capital end of the government in 1916. In that year there were 39,442 workers on the federal rolls in the city. In the first decade of the century there were fewer than 30,000 federal workers in Washington.

There is no indication that the federal pay roll will drop below the March peak. Rather than any curtailment, officials expect a steady increase in the next year through the operation of the President's 4 billion dollar work relief program.

NRA Forces Expect New Jobs.

The Supreme court decision, which shot the Blue Eagle off its perch, for a time worried the 4,010 NRA employés in Washington. Now they expect the New Deal to provide new berths as it has in the past for ousted employés. Their confidence is not without foundation, officials report. Already arrangements are being made to transfer the bulk of the force to the work relief program and parcel others throughout the burocratic maze in the event the Blue Eagle does not arise phœnixlike from its ashes.

The release of the civil service report sent Republicans scurrying into the Democratic platform adopted at the 1932 convention in Chicago. It said:

"We advocate an immediate and drastic reduction of governmental expenditures by abolishing useless commissions and offices and consolidating departments and bureaus and eliminating extravagance, to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of federal government."

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS

Alien Writers Put Under Gag by Mussolini

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, May 30.—[By Telephone to London to Avoid Censor.]—With Premier Mussolini's adventure in Ethiopia meeting with the disapproval of Italians and with the Fascist government facing the severest financial difficulties, censorship and regulations are being applied with added rigors to all information being sent out of Italy.

Foreign correspondents here are being subjected to added difficulties as the Fascists seek to project their favorable picture of events.

It is practically impossible for correspondents to file a dispatch with the ordinary cable or radio services and expect that it will be transmitted. Every press dispatch which has to do with finances or the Ethiopian war is carefully scrutinized and Premier Mussolini has hired censors who understand all languages. If they find anything the propaganda bureau does not want printed abroad, they suppress it.

Give Up Cable and Radio.

Foreign correspondents have been compelled, therefore, to discontinue the use of cable and radio transmission. Against the government censorship the Italo Cable and Italo Radio company officials make as much protest as they dare, pointing out that they are losing thousands of dollars' worth of business, but to no avail. Mussolini's government considers it better to prevent a plain version of events being known abroad and let the cable companies lose business.

Correspondents last week found that descriptions of the great military display on May 24, which, in response to Fascist orders, celebrated with special bombast the entrance of Italy into the world war, were stopped by the censors. Cable stories of Premier Mussolini's speech were held up by the Italian censor for twenty hours and were only sent on the next day when it was known they would be worthless.

Controls Press Society.

Italian papers were forbidden to print the speech. The Italian cable company reluctantly refunded the tolls on the cable business spoiled by the censor.

The press and propaganda bureau, arrayed with the dignity of an undersecretaryship and headed by Premier Mussolini's son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, is the most active government department, just now seeking to stall off popular reaction to events developing here.

The press bureau keeps strict control over foreign correspondents through the so-called Foreign Press association, known here as the "Stampa Estera," the president of which is not freely elected but is imposed.

Through the stategy of loading this association with members who have little or no connection with the press of any country, the same president has been imposed for the past seven years.

SOCIETY MATRON TRACES A VOICE; GETS HER PURSE

While Mrs. Austin Niblack, 1441 West Old Mill road, Lake Forest, was playing tennis Wednesday at the home of her friend, Mrs. Vaughan C. Spalding, 685 Mayflower road, Lake Forest, she lost her purse. The purse, containing $15 in cash and a solid gold cigaret case, has been left in Mrs. Niblack's car, parked nearby.

Yesterday Mrs. Niblack received a phone call. The speaker told her he had the purse. For $100, the man said, the purse would be returned. Mrs. Niblack asked the unknown to call back later.

Quickly she telephoned Sheriff Lawrence Doolittle of Lake county in Waukegan, having ascertained from the phone operator that the call came from that town. Deputy Loren Montee traced the call to a pool hall at 117 Washington street, Waukegan.

He went to that address and, after inquiring about persons who had been using the phone, arrested a man who gave his name as Steve Chiefs, 27 years old, of Houston, Tex. The purse was found in his pocket.

Young Cavalier Borrows Car Full of Trouble

(Pictures on Back Page.)

Giving his tie an extra twist and cocking his hat a little to one side, John Grabowski, 20 years old, left his home at 14332 Cleveland avenue, Posen, yesterday to visit his girl friend. She is Helen Kuna, 18 years old, of 14608 Winchester avenue, Harvey.

John decided that calling for Helen in an automobile would add some swank to the occasion. So he "borrowed" the automobile of Frank Sendra, which was parked in front of Sendra's home at 14443 Sherman avenue, Harvey, without telling Sendra about it.

Gets Car, but No Brakes.

John set out for his girl's house, bowling along at a good speed. At 147th street and Winchester avenue in Harvey he tried to swing around a corner. He applied the brakes and found to his dismay that they did not work.

The car lunged over the curbing, struck down two small boys who were playing on the sidewalk, and crashed through the show window of a grocery. Witnesses hurried the boys to the Ingalls Memorial hospital in Harvey.

One Boy May Die.

One of them, Daniel Potolichs, 10 years old, 149 West 147th street, Harvey, was only slightly hurt. The other boy, however, suffered abdominal injuries which necessitated an operation and which, doctors said, might prove fatal.

At the police station John learned the identity of the boy who may die. He is Alfred Kuna, 7 years old, brother of the girl whom John was going to visit in his "borrowed" car.

LONDON HEARS POLA NEGRI WILL MARRY BRITON

LONDON, May 31.—[Friday.]—(AP)—Pola Negri has decided on her next and fourth husband, the Daily Mail says today in a dispatch from Nice, France.

"It's premature to disclose his identity except that he is prominent in London society circles," the newspaper's correspondent quoted the actress as saying.

"I had to choose between an American and an Englishman, and my choice has fallen to the latter. We shall not be married for a year. Meanwhile I'll consider retiring from films to be near my husband."

Child Visits Cemetery with Parents; Crushed by Cross

Crushed under a huge stone cross as it toppled, a two and a half year old child making a Memorial day visit to a cemetery with his family today was injured critically. The boy, Bradley B. Smith Jr., suffered a fracture of the skull and possible internal injuries.

Says Kidnaped Boy Will Be Returned Alive

Tacoma, Wash., May 30.—(AP)—The terse statement of a prominent Washington state officer that kidnaped George Weyerhaeuser "will be returned alive" suddenly pierced almost impenetrable silence tonight surrounding the boy's abduction.

Officially breaking the veil of secrecy about the $200,000 ransom negotiations for the return of the little heir to a lumber fortune, Chief William Cole of the Washington state patrol declared:

"The Weyerhaeuser boy will be returned to his parents alive."

Refuses to Give Details.

Chief Cole's remarks, which he did not augment, were the first to come from an officer who has permitted use of his name since nine year old George was abducted last Friday noon on his way home from school. He would not explain the basis of his remarks.

Renewed activity around the J. P. Weyerhaeuser Jr. home tonight threw new elements of mystery into the kidnaping of George, while his abductors made no visible moves to obtain the $200,000 ransom reported awaiting them.

British Columbia police also investigated a report that a car containing three men and a boy said to resemble little George had been seen near Agassiz, B. C., last night. A search of tourist camps in the vicinity was conducted without success.

Note Spurt of Activity.

Even as family sources disclosed nothing had been heard from the little lumber heir, observers noted a sudden spurt in activity about the household coincident with the delivery to the home of three cardboard boxes.

A few minutes later the big motor car that belonged to the late J. P. Weyerhaeuser Sr., northwest timber baron, drove away with several persons in the rear seat, shielded by drawn curtains. The regular family chauffeur was at the wheel.

Absence from Usual Haunts.

A possible connection with the Weyerhaeuser case was seen in the strange absence from his usual haunts today of Sherif L. C. Huntamer of adjoining Thurston county. Mysteriously missing since 4 a. m., he returned late tonight and disclosed he had been to Booneville, Ore., on a "tip" received in an early morning telephone call.

The sherif declined to disclose the nature of the tip or to say whether it had a connection with the kidnaping.

Reports tha. a second ransom note had been received by the Weyerhaeusers were denied today from the Weyerhaeuser residence.

Hoped to Hear Something.

"No one knows anything about it," said a spokesman.

"We had hoped to hear something last night or today," said the informant close to the family, "but we are absolutely in the dark about George. We haven't heard a thing."

Three persons who vowed they had seen Volney Davis, a pal of Alvin Karpis, the country's present "public enemy No. 1," in Tacoma recently started the investigation on that tack.

Faith that the boy's abductors would keep their promise to send further instructions was held by the parents, who bravely faced another night of waiting and prayer for their curly haired son.

He was seized last Friday noon as he returned homeward from school.

New Theories on Abduction.

New theories as to the origin and identity of the kidnapers sprang up in the face of silence from all official sources.

Most important were the references to the gang of Karpis, alleged ringleader in the kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, wealthy St. Paul, Minn., banker, who paid $200,000 for his freedom.

A picture of Davis was identified by the manager of an apartment house here as resembling the man who rented a suite there last Saturday and disappeared under unexplained circumstances a few hours later.

FRANCE FIGHTS TO STEM RAPID FLIGHT OF GOLD

Inflation Feared as Deputies Act.

BULLETIN.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

PARIS, May 31 (Friday).—Fernand Bouisson, 60 years old, president of the chamber of deputies, accepted today the premiership of France. The large, bald, bearded former football player announced his decision after conferences with Leon Blum, the Socialist leader in the chamber. Socialists hitherto have declined to participate in any cabinet, but Bouisson hoped to obtain their support. Bouisson's design was to form a coalition cabinet to carry France through the monetary crisis.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 31.—[Friday.]—In the middle of the worst financial hurricane which has hit France since 1926 the chamber of deputies at 1:30 a. m. today tossed out the government of Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin by a vote of 353 to 202.

The cabinet fell on Flandin's demand for dictatorial powers until the end of the year to save the franc from devaluation by making governmental economies to balance the budget and by taking any other drastic measures considered necessary. It is the expected billion dollar budget deficit for the year which has gradually precipitated the present great gold flight from the franc.

Realizes Need for Speed.

Realizing that the country's hope to stave off a recurrence of the wild 1925-'26 inflation depends on the speed with which he can find a combination of men capable of inspiring the confidence of parliament, President Albert Lebrun acted at once. He called Fernand Bouisson, president of the chamber of deputies, and former Premier Edouard Herriot, who favors paying the nation's war debt to the United States, to the Elysee palace for a brief preliminary conference immediately after receiving the cabinet's official resignation.

Bouisson is one of the most talked of candidates for premier, but the chances of Pierre Laval, outgoing foreign minister, are also rated high.

All French leaders kept one eye on a metaphorical hour glass represented by the gold hoard in the Bank of France, which is trickling out of the country in a steadily increasing yellow flow. Approximately $100,000,000 in gold slipped away Wednesday as short selling by speculators and the flight from the franc reached a climax.

Deputies Spurn Ultimatum.

Although France's gold coverage still amounts to nearly 80 per cent—the latest bank statement showed reserves of 80 billion francs—Flandin himself admitted last night that it would hardly be possible "to endure a continued outflow of 8, 9, or 10 billion francs in gold." (The franc is currently quoted at 6.60 cents.)

Premier Flandin solemnly warned the deputies that their vote in the chamber would be for or against the devaluation of the franc, but the deputies refused to accept this ultimatum. They indicated they were willing to give another government the exceptional powers refused him.

Actually the chamber's action in throwing overboard the country's pilot at this critical moment was about as near a well weighted decision as that excitable body is capable of taking.

It had in it nothing of political stampede, but in appearance, at least, it was one of the most dramatic and turbulent sessions the chamber has witnessed in recent years.

Debate Bristles with Thrills.

The debate bristled with more or less spontaneous thrills. There was the dramatic appearance of Flandin himself at the end of the afternoon's session, pale and tottering on his long legs after a prolonged illness following an automobile accident. His broken arm was in a sling and he propped himself up in the rostrum to make a last appeal in favor of the government and of the beleaguered franc which he identified with himself.

For dramatic surprise there was the bombshell of Louis Germain-Martin's resignation as finance minister. The announcement was made under unprecedented conditions by Flandin himself during his speech.

For blooddurdling melodrama there was the evocation by Flandin, Herriot and other orators of a sinister horde of domestic and international speculators trying to get rich at the expense of the widows and orphans of France.

Herriot revealed that police had been sent to search the premises of a bank suspected of illicit speculative operations against the franc.

Flandin, in raising a cry against the speculators, made an unmistakable sarcastic allusion to Raymond Patenotre, publisher of one of France's biggest newspapers and one of the richest men in the country, as one of the traitors against the franc.

The citing of Patenotre, who is American born, threw the chamber into an uproar, which was raised to fever pitch later when the fiery nationalist, Deputy Grandmaison, demanded that if the government had any proof against Patenotre it should ask for the withdrawal of his parliamentary immunity and jail him.

"If the government has not any proof of Patenotre's guilt, it is disgraceful for the head of the government to make such charges against him publicly," the deputy cried.

Flandin, accompanied by a friend who stood behind him, ready to catch him in his arms if necessary, dramatically entered the chamber at 7 o'clock last night. His left arm was enveloped in a plaster cast supported by a sling. A black opera cloak thrown over his shoulders heightened the pallor of his features.

Deputies Give Him Ovation.

While attendants adjusted the cushioned arm rest under the premier's game arm, the deputies rose to their feet unanimously and gave him a rousing cheer as a tribute to his courage.

The premier's voice was weak and he spoke slowly, in funereal tones suggestive of some great Shakespearean actor in the rôle of King Lear. Flandin did not let the chamber miss any of the pathos of the situation, but his speech carried an unexpected punch.

For a moment it seemed he was going to swing the chamber in spite of everything by a furious philippic against speculators, hinting that foreign countries were trying to knock the franc off gold as a prelude to stabilization negotiations.

In passing the premier bitterly attacked American correspondents in Paris, accusing them of having represented the recent municipal elections as a prelude to a communist revolution. Flandin failed to cite any particular dispatch to back up the accusation, but he declared these "political lies" aided the campaign of the speculators against the franc.

Chamber Cheers Attack on U. S.

The chamber roundly applauded this attack on the American press and cheered even more enthusiastically the announcement that the government among other measures against speculators intended to note the names of all persons withdrawing gold from the Bank of France.

At this juncture came the bombshell announcement that Germain-Martin had resigned as finance minister, and that Flandin himself was taking over the portfolio. Flandin explained that Germain-Martin's resignation would be effective only if the cabinet survived the debate, thus making it appear as a voluntary sacrifice by Germain-Martin to save the cabinet. The ruse, however, failed.

Returning to his plea, Flandin played on the strings of patriotic sentiment and passed from pathos to invective and irony.

Invokes Verdun.

Devaluation of the Belgian belga, he said, encouraged foreign speculators to turn their attention to the French franc which they dreaded might hold out in the financial battle as the French held out at Verdun.

But foreign pressure could not have done much, Flandin continued, had it not been for internal enemies. He exhorted the devaluationists to come out in the open and have the courage of their opinions, and not hide behind ambiguous verbiage.

He touched the deputies' demagogic fiber by saying it was unjust a rich man could protect himself against the possible fall of the franc whereas a poor man would be caught short, a clever argument which Flandin knew would reach the constituents of every deputy.

Says Defeat Means Inflation.

After further denunciation of speculators and gold buyers, the premier told the chamber it was free to vote devaluation if it pleased, but if it wanted the franc defended by him it had to give him adequate powers to suppress devaluation propaganda.

In conclusion he warned the deputies that the next government "must fatally come to inflation," and to do that successfully would require a free hand just as he is asking to do the opposite—save the franc and avert inflation.

Flandin, to soothe the left side of the chamber, asserted that the cabinet had not intended suspending parliament as the Socialists had insinuated, but that on the contrary it would continue the urgent matters of internal policy requiring early debate.

Herriot Second Star Orator.

The second star orator of the day was Herriot, who let himself out to the full. He struck a pathetic cord, as only he can, and roused the emotion of the Radical Socialists of the left center by references to the history of the French revolution and its committee of public safety. He drew an analogy of its saving the country against invasion and the present need of a like committee to save the franc, the committee this time being Flandin and his cabinet.

These historic references are clever oratory in France, where they set vibrating the emotions about the Jacobin ancestors of the French who overthrew the monarchy and from whom Herriot and his Radical Socialist party claim spiritual descent.

"Tomorrow is the day when the sellers of the franc will know whether or not they can continue operations," Herriot cried. "If means to do so are refused them they are crushed. Otherwise their operations will continue another week, which means difficulties for the treasury, and therefore minutes count.

State or Speculators.

"What we have to decide tonight is whether tomorrow the state smashes the speculators or the speculators smash the state."

Another high spot of the drama came shortly after midnight. Henry Franklin-Bouillon, the Nationalist deputy, after attacking the government for slackness in prosecuting speculators, declared it was fantastic for Flandin, whom he termed "one of the most cordially unloved premiers the country ever had," to ask the chamber for unlimited confidence.

Red in the face, Herriot jumped to his feet and interrupted the white mustached orator by shouting: "I would think more of you if you had said that in Flandin's presence," drawing a momentary roar of sympathy from the chamber.

Crowds Gather.

As the debate prolonged itself into the night, crowds of the curious, returning late from the country—this being Ascension day and a legal holiday—began to gather in front of the chamber of deputies along the bridge and the Place de la Concorde. They were kept moving by squads of blue coats.

Disgruntled ones were too tired on their return to the city to get violent. The closing of the stock exchange and banks prevented any bad news regarding the rate on the dollar and the pound or gold shipments from adding to the nervousness. It was understood the bourse will remain closed today.

Spain Bides Time on Peseta.

MADRID, May 30.—(AP)—Minister of Finance Joaquin Chapaprieta asserted tonight the Spanish government and congress would not take up the question of the peseta and the turbulent foreign exchange situation until budgetary matters had been settled. The peseta is tied unofficially to the franc.

FRENCH MEMBER OF ROTHSCHILDS PAYS CITY VISIT

Baron Henri de Rothschild, a French member of the noted banking family of Rothschild, arrived in Chicago on the Grand Canyon Limited of the Santa Fe railway yesterday from Los Angeles and departed on the Manhattan Limited of the Pennsylvania railway for New York. He is completing a round the world trip and will sail from New York June 7 on the Normandie for France, he explained.

In reply to a question on the world financial situation the baron declared it was too early in the morning to discuss world finance. To questions as to whether France would quit the gold standard he answered only with a shrug of the shoulders.

Baron de Rothschild wore a "five-gallon" hat, a gray suit, a pink shirt, a brown tie, oxblood shoes, and a red button of the Legion of Honor in his coat lapel.

Gun Kills Child; Father Uses It to Kill Himself

Pioneer, La., May 30.—(AP)—Apparently distracted by the fatal wounding of his young daughter with a shotgun today, Will Centers, a farmer, about 30 years old, picked up the gun and shot himself through the heart. The little girl was killed while she was carrying the gun into the house from the porch where he had left it on his return from a hunt.

SWEITZER'S OWN BANK BOOKS MAY BE CALLED IN QUIZ

Subpena to Gain Records Considered in Audit.

While State's Attorney Courtney's assistants continued their investigation into the $414,129 shortage charged against Robert M. Sweitzer during his 24 year régime as county clerk, an independent study of the audit made of Sweitzer's accounts indicated that it might be necessary to subpena all of his personal bank records.

According to the audit, prepared on the demand of Michael J. Flynn, Sweitzer's successor, and made public last week, Sweitzer failed to turn over $330,959 from the tax redemption fund when he left the county clerk's office last December to become county treasurer.

Total Shortage of $414,129.

Since then Sweitzer has repaid $33,073, leaving the redemption fund still shy $341,886. There is also $72,243 in interest on other funds he administered for which he has not accounted, making the total present shortage of $414,129.

The audit showed that between 1917 and 1931 Sweitzer withdrew $161,000 from the redemption fund, usually in amounts of $10,000, and that checks for these amounts bearing his personal endorsements were deposited in the Union Trust company and later the First National bank.

Of the $161,000, $95,000 was repaid to the fund at various times, leaving $66,000 unaccounted for. It is in connection with these transactions that Sweitzer's personal records may have to be examined.

In their investigation the state's attorney's assistants are expected to go beyond the audit and study the entire conduct of the tax redemption fund and how it was built up to more than a million dollars while Sweitzer was clerk.

Open Auditing Study Today.

The commission appointed by Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, to study and modernize auditing methods in all county offices as an aftermath of the disclosure of the $414,129 Sweitzer shortage, will hold its first meeting this morning. The commission is expected to complete its investigation and present its recommendations to the county board within a month.

The meeting will be at 10:30 a. m. in Mr. Smith's office. Walter L. Gregory, president of the State Street council, one of those named to the commission, will be unable to attend because of a business engagement out of the city. The other seven members who will be present are Col. A. A. Sprague, chairman of the Chicago Plan commission; John O. Rees, director of the citizens' committee on public expenditures; W. J. Pitts, general auditor of Sears Roebuck & Co.; County Auditor Lee Howard, and County Commissioners William Busse, H. Wallace Caldwell, and Peter M. Kelly. Mr. Smith is an ex-officio member.

$414,129 Repayment Demanded.

The county board and Clerk Flynn have demanded that Sweitzer turn over the $414,129 he owes when he appears before the commissioners on Monday. If this is not done the state's attorney will be asked to advise the board on immediate legal steps, Mr. Smith has declared.

Because of the holiday Sweitzer did not appear at his office yesterday.

POPE PIUS 78 YEARS OLD TODAY AND IS IN EXCELLENT HEALTH

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

VATICAN CITY, May 30.—Pope Pius tomorrow will celebrate his 78th birthday. Despite stories circulated from time to time that he is suffering some serious ailment, he is still in excellent and vigorous health.

Tomorrow it will be 56 years since Pius XI. was ordained a priest, 16 years since he was appointed a cardinal, 13 years 3 months and 25 days since he was elected pope. His is one of the longest pontificates recorded in history, since out of 261 popes officially recognized by the holy see, only 37 before him reigned as long as 13 years.

Among the most recent long-lived pontificates the following may be recalled: Leo XIII., 25 years; Pius IX., 32 years, this being the longest pontificate of all; Gregory XVI., 15 years; Pius VII., 23 years; Pius VI., 24 years; Benedict XIV., 18 years, and Clement XI., 20 years. The first pope, St. Peter, reigned for 25 years, two months.

CHANCES GOOD THIS WILL BE WETTEST MAY

There is a possibility that the month ending today may go into the records as the rainiest May since the establishment of the Chicago weather bureau in 1871.

With 7.04 inches of precipitation already counted up to yesterday morning, the month, in any event, will stand as the third rainiest May. The wettest was in 1883, when the rainfall was 7.32 inches, and the second was in 1873, when it was 7.22 inches.

Forecaster W. P. Day said that .05 of an inch of rain fell between 8 a. m. and 8 p. m. yesterday, increasing the current total to 7.09. The outlook, he said, was for showers today and a fall of an additional .24 of an inch to break all May records was not unlikely.

The month, with an average daily mean temperature of 5 degrees below normal, will rank as one of the coolest here, although it is not expected to beat the 1907 May, when the monthly mean was only 50.6 degrees.

Secret German-Japanese War Alliance Is Reported

LONDON, May 31 [Friday.]—(AP)—The Daily Express, under a Washington, D. C., dateline, asserted today it had been learned a secret military alliance between Japan and Germany has been concluded. The newspaper said that under the alliance "German army officers are to go to Japan to 'coördinate' action, and Japanese officers are likely to go to Germany."

Urges Deportation of 3,500,000 Aliens in U. S.

Asbury Park, N. J., May 30.—(AP)—Representative Martin Dies [Dem., Tex.] told 200 members of the New Jersey Sentinels today the nation's unemployment problem could be partly solved if "3,500,000 aliens now living in the country illegally" were deported. He asserted present quotas should be cut sixty per cent.

A photograph of a man held by the New Orleans police on suspicion that he is Warren C. Spurgin, absconding Chicago banker, was received here yesterday by Associated Press Wirephoto. A shortage of more than $1,000,000 in the accounts of the Michigan Avenue Trust company, of which Spurgin was president, was discovered after he disappeared in 1921.

The man under arrest, a placid soul who smokes a corncob pipe, sat yesterday in his cell in the New Orleans jail and maintained without heat that he is not Spurgin.

Embezzle a Million? Never!

"My name is Stanley P. McIntosh," he declared. "My home is at 3330 North Meridian street, Indianapolis. I admit that some of the pictures the police have of Spurgin look a little like me, but I never embezzled a million dollars. Once upon a time I was arrested for cashing two worthless checks, but they weren't my checks and I was innocent of any intent to defraud."

McIntosh [if that is his real name] left Indianapolis two months ago, he asserted, and has been in New Orleans in connection with oil drilling operations in Louisiana for six weeks. Further, he denied assertions by the police that he was an oil stock and chain letter salesman.

The prisoner's statement that he had a wife and an 18 year old daughter in Indianapolis was corroborated. Mrs. Cecile McIntosh of that city said that she was married to McIntosh 19 years ago, five years before the flight of Spurgin. She added that her husband had gone to New Orleans to organize an oil company.

Resembles Spurgin Description.

Further confirmation was discovered in a report from Mishawaka, Ind., that McIntosh was cashier of a now defunct bank there from 1915 to 1920, and that in the latter year he went to Indianapolis to engage in stock promotion.

The New Orleans police, however, kept him in custody and, after noon, refused to admit any one to talk to him.

McIntosh has a gold tooth, is 6 feet 3 inches tall and weighs about 235 pounds. In these respects he resembles the Spurgin description. The police could not find a mole on the neck and a split thumb that were given as Spurgin marks. McIntosh claims to be only 50 years old, while Spurgin was born 59 years ago.

It appeared unlikely last night that Chicago police would make an effort to return the suspect here unless the pictures can be identified by persons who knew Spurgin.

Relatives of the missing banker have attempted to have him declared legally dead so that insurance policies may be collected. The insurance companies have fought these attempts. Recently Spurgin's daughter, Mrs. Vivian Tilton, obtained a judgment in Santa Fe, N. M., for a $30,000 policy from the Penn Mutual company.

BRITAIN TURNS DOWN WOMAN'S $1,000,000 OFFER TO WAR CHEST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 30.—Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, today again disappointed Lady Houston, widow of the famous shipowner, in her anxiety to safeguard England from foreign invasion. Recently Lady Houston offered the chancellor $1,000,000 "for the air defense of London." Chamberlain declined the offer because of the "conditions and implications" attached to the offer. Nevertheless, while refusing the gift under the conditions specified, the chancellor, in a letter to Lady Houston, made it clear that if she cares to offer the sum as a contribution toward the general exchequer revenues, "it will be gratefully accepted."

LAWYER ADMITS TO JURY CLIENT SLEW ARCHITECT;

LONDON, May 30.—(AP)—A defense lawyer's statement that his client was guilty, a statement by a lawyer for the co-defendant that the other defendant was "a gentleman," and the presiding judge's warning that the jury should take no notice of the counsels' "quasi-admissions" completed the taking of evidence in the Bournemouth triangle murder case today.

The jury tomorrow will be asked to decide the fates of Mrs. Alma Rattenbury, 38, charged with murdering her husband, Francis Rattenbury, March 24, and of George Stoner, her 18 year old chauffeur and admitted lover, accused of assisting her.

Stoner's lawyer said his client, unassisted, had battered Rattenbury's head with a mallet, but that the killing was an act of insane jealousy under the influence of drugs and the verdict should be either "guilty but insane" or "manslaughter."

T. J. O'Connor, attorney for Mrs. Rattenbury, told the jury there was no case against his client if they disregarded the alleged statements "snatched from the disordered mind of a woman sodden with drink and hysteria" by the police on the night of the crime.

HITLER OFFERS TERMS FOR AIR PACT IN EUROPE

Proposes Guarantees Like Locarno Treaty.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 30.—Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon will reveal to the house of commons tomorrow Adolf Hitler's offer for a western European pact against aerial aggression. This is the first specific German proposal for peace preservation on the continent.

The aim of the pact is to do in the air for Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, and Belgium what the Locarno pact does with the land forces for France, Germany, and Belgium—guarantee each country against air attack by the pledge of mutual assistance against an aggressor. Copies of Hitler's proposals were sent to each of these nations.

Simon will be able to tell the house of commons that Reichsfuehrer Hitler, on whom the hopes of success depend, has done more than talk about approving a ban on aerial aggression since the German draft of the proposed pact was received by the British government yesterday.

German Plan Studied.

The German idea of what form the pact should take was given closest scrutiny by the foreign office, but the details were withheld pending Simon's appearance before the house.

Since the members of his Liberal party are clamoring for efforts to reach an agreement with Germany on the various points raised in Hitler's speech last week, it is expected the foreign secretary will give a pretty clear idea of what the British government hopes to do.

Three drafts already are under consideration — the British, French, and German—and it is reported Italy has prepared its scheme for the pact. It is believed that both the British and French drafts contain clauses providing for the supervision of air resources, both military and civil, to check the secret building of airplanes such as went on in Germany for many months before Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, reichsminister of air, was able to announce that Germany possessed an air fleet as strong as that of Great Britain.

Step to Greater Safety.

The idea of a pact was first expressed in the Anglo-French declaration of Feb. 3 and it was reaffirmed at the Stresa conference in April. These conferences also made the conditions that Germany should join some general armaments and security agreement and return to the league of nations. These were contemplated as exactions for relaxing the Versailles treaty's military restrictions on Germany, but in the meantime Hitler began rearmament on his own initiative.

France and Italy already have made the start on a western Europe air convention with their bilateral pact, and France and Britain have exchanged drafts for a similar one.

Great Britain would welcome signing of a general air pact as a step toward greater safety in Europe and also as a means to avoid costly construction of new airplanes which is now under way to bring the British air force up to the German.

Shifts to Military Plane.

The satisfaction of the airplane makers with the British decision to build up its fleet was shown today at the meeting of Handley Page, Ltd., when F. Handley Page, managing director, announced that the firm intended to concentrate on military airplanes, as "assuring a more even flow of business than replacement of the large civil aircraft."

He was able to announce the company has received a large order from the Swedish government for planes, some of which will be built in Sweden.

It was also learned the air ministry has acquired a new commercial type of aircraft, an Avro "Ava," and adapted it to coastal reconnaissance work. The Ava is fitted with two 290 horsepower "Cheetah" engines and has a top speed of 195 miles per hour. It is the second airliner type taken over by the air ministry. A few weeks ago a "Dragon Rapide" was acquired.

It was further announced that the Wright Anderson company of Gateshead had received a large contract from the air ministry for the construction of several airplane hangars in various parts of the country. The contract will keep the works going at full pressure for a year.

DANCERS' AUTO HITS CULVERT; 2 KILLED, 8 HURT

Several Others Die in Holiday Accidents.

Taylorville, Ill., May 30.—[Special.]—Two persons were killed, five injured early today when an automobile in which they were riding on state road No. 24 struck a culvert ten miles east of here. The dead are Ed Owens, 30, and Bud Miller, 26, both of this city.

The injured, all residents of this city, taken to St. Vincent hospital, are: Carl Hodges, 30; Hoot Gibson, 25; Lyle Lockard, 26; Miss Christine Beninati, 23; Miss Mary Nay Cooper, 22. They were returning from a dance at Pana.

Two Students Killed.

Muncie, Ind., May 30.—[Special.]—Two students were killed, eight others injured. Two automobiles collided today on state road No. 3, half a mile north of Royerton in Delaware county. Those who died were Joseph Leninger, senior at the Hartford City High school, and Ermal Henry of Prairie township, State Teachers college student and a basketball star.

The injured are Miss Georgianna Boyle, Miss Mary Elizabeth Schwier, Keith Goldice, William Kunkle, Richard Stein and Miss Aldah Hollin, all of Hartford City, and Charles Albey and Charles Pumphrey, both of Muncie.

Henry, in an automobile with Albey and Pumphrey, was on his way to some northern Indiana lakes when the accident occurred. The occupants of the other car were returning from a dance.

Two Kentuckians Killed.

Harrisburg, Ill., May 30.—[Special.]—A man and a woman who were killed when their automobile collided with another car near here last night were identified today as Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Simpson of Sebree, Ky. The occupants of the other car who were injured are Mr. and Mrs. Barnwell, their son, Billy, 9, and Mrs. Alice Brinkman, all of Detroit, Mich.

Four of Family Hurt.

Jacksonville, Ill., May 30.—[Special.]—Four members of one family were injured when their automobile skidded on the slippery pavement and ran into a telephone pole here today. The injured are Mr. and Mrs. Allen Coke, 7827 Kimbark avenue, Chicago, and their two children. Mrs. Coke suffered a broken arm and her husband and their son, Roger, sustained leg fractures.

DIES AFTER SWALLOWING POISON.

Mrs. Flora Gremillion, 27 years old, 6321 Winthrop avenue, a telegraph operator, died yesterday in the Ravenswood hospital from the effects of poison she swallowed May 21. Her husband, Henry, told police he knew of no reason why his wife should have taken her own life.

JAMES FARMER IS HELD FOR QUIZ ON UNION THREATS

James Farmer, 45 years old, former secretary and treasurer of local 782 of the Maywood Teamsters' union, was held by the state's attorney's police yesterday for questioning concerning an alleged attempt to interfere with John Baggot, present secretary treasurer of the union.

Baggot, the police said, was visited in his office in Maywood last week by a delegation of husky teamsters who informed him that he was to be unseated from the board of directors of the Chicago Coal Teamsters' council unless he returned to the outlaw organization with which his union originally was affiliated.

Farmer was seized yesterday along with Edward Ryan, 102 South Central avenue, when they visited Baggot's office.

Fish Pulls Him in Bay; He Dies of Broken Neck

Aledo Voters Defeat Plan for City's Lighting Plant

Aledo, Ill., May 30.—[Special.]—The proposal for construction of a city owned electric plant was defeated here, 843 to 555 yesterday. The population is only 2,200. Both factions worked hard.

GIRL AND BABY KILLED AS AUTO STRIKES TRUCK

Miss Margaret Kondrasuk, 20 years old, and her nephew, Richard Kondrasuk, 3 months old, both of Kenosha, were killed last night when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into the rear of a truck on Waukegan road in the village of Northbrook.

They were riding in the car with the baby's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Kondrasuk, both of Kenosha, and Miss Hazel Yager, 23 years old, of Kenosha. Kondrasuk, who was driving, apparently did not see the truck being driven ahead of him.

Miss Kondrasuk and the baby were pronounced dead at the Highland Park hospital.

Two men were burned, one critically, yesterday when fifteen gallons of gasoline exploded while they were extricating a youth from his wrecked automobile after he had crashed head on with a street car at Lincoln street and Lincoln avenue.

Jay Reeder, 41 years old, 1908 Grace street, a carpenter, was burned about his legs, hands, and back, and is in a serious condition in the Ravenswood hospital. John Borowski, 28 years old, 1818 Melrose street, was released from the hospital after treatment for burns on his legs.

Frank Fogtik, 17 years old, 715 West North avenue, had started on a holiday excursion and carried the extra gasoline in cans in the rear of his car. The engine was driven backward and Fogtik was pinned in his seat, but he was only bruised.

The deaths in the Northbrook collision increased the 1935 motor trafic toll in Cook county to 362. Until 4 p. m. yesterday 293 had been killed in automobile accidents within the Chicago city limits and 6,192 injured.

TWO CCC YOUTHS ARE DROWNED IN WISCONSIN LAKE

Two Chicago young men, members of Civilian Conservation corps camp No. 626, at Danbury, Wis., were drowned yesterday when the boat in which they were rowing on Lake 26 overturned. Lake 26 is a mile and a half from the camp.

The victims were Stanley Tomulonis, 19 years old, 3622 Parnell avenue, and George Ulbricht, 21 years old, 5042 Eddy street.

In the boat with the Chicagoans were Lyle Chelmo of Webster, Wis., also a CCC worker, and two girls, Sophie Yaroski and Alice Brown of Superior, Wis. Witnesses said that there had been a collision of the boat with another, occupied by George Sandman of Foxboro, Wis., and Ermul Yadon of Superior.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

SEE NO ACTION FOR NEW NRA BY THIS CONGRESS

Only Industrial Chaos Might Stir Effort.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—[Special.]—Unless the country should manifest an unmistakable demand therefor, there will be no legislation at this session of congress to create a new NRA, in the opinion of congress leaders.

On Capitol hill this is understood to be the significance of President Roosevelt's remark yesterday that the situation is in the hands of the country. The President knows that without public opinion overwhelmingly behind him he could not get a new business regimentation bill through congress in the next month. And Mr. Roosevelt wants to get congress out of Washington by July 1 in order to steady the nerves of the business community.

Depends on Industry.

If chaotic conditions should develop in industry and trade as a result of price cutting, lengthening of working hours and strikes, business and the public generally, the President believes, would support him in another experiment in planned economy. In that event he would demand immediate legislation to reconstruct the NRA in attempted conformity with the Supreme court decision.

Otherwise no action is expected beyond possibly some sort of a face saver for the New Dealers calling for voluntary observance of fair trade practices as defined by the late codes.

Many advisers of the President think that the wisest course would be to keep hands off through the summer and then, if business chaos should materialize, call congress into extraordinary session in the fall. Democratic leaders who have all along supported the New Deal with their tongues in their cheeks are secretly gratified by the collapse of the NRA and make no bones privately about their belief that recovery will proceed apace now that it is freed of the regimentation incubus.

Holds Series of Parleys.

The President spent the holiday in a series of conferences with leading New Dealers on the crisis precipitated by the Supreme court decision. Donald Richberg, chief of the defunct NRA; Secretary of Labor Perkins, and the entire NRA board, except Walton Hamilton, had a two hour session with Mr. Roosevelt. Before going to the White House the board members had a confab and another one afterward in an effort to draft recommendations for the President.

"We had a long discussion of the situation," Richberg said after the White House meeting; "nothing specific, and no decision reached."

Asked what the discussion had been about, Richberg said, "What the next step is." He refused to admit that the President had decided to ask for new NRA legislation.

Richberg Urges New Law.

Richberg, it was learned authoritatively, is urging that a new and valid NRA can and should be drafted. He believes, it is understood, that sufficiently definite standards and limitations for the delegation of power to the President can be drafted to meet the court's objection to the "unfettered discretion" permitted under the old NRA.

Also Richberg is represented as not agreeing with those who think the Schechter case ruled out the possibility of federal control of wages and hours. He interprets the case merely as a finding that the Schechter company was not engaged in interstate commerce, and he is believed to have laid this view before the President.

The Doughton resolution, which Richberg drafted, is regarded by him, according to reports, as sufficiently restricted on the matter of interstate commerce to stand a court test on wages and hours.

Planned to Rush It.

Richberg and other New Dealers were planning to push this Doughton resolution revising NRA through congress before any Supreme court decision was announced. They would then have continued operations on the pretense that the revised law had not been declared unconstitutional. Congressional delay foiled their scheme.

Admitting that they are now in a weak position psychologically, Richberg and his NRA board are understood, nevertheless, to have urged the President that he still follow this course of action, calling for the immediate adoption of the Doughton resolution. To pull them out of their psychological stymie, Richberg and others are representing the country as on the brink of chaos and therefore in need of immediate NRA revival.

Reports on price wars, wage increases or cuts, and other developments in industry and trade throughout the country are being gathered by NRA, Richberg said. No digest of these reports has been made as yet, he added, but he hopes to have one ready for the President by tomorrow.

The future course of the administration on NRA may be determined largely by these reports. The President has disclosed a predisposition to believe that chiselers on wages and hours will wreck the employment lists and pay rolls which he regards as the foundation of recovery.

In the midst of their disaster the New Dealers are finding time for a squabble over personalities precipitated by the reappearance among White House advisers of two-fisted, blunt-spoken Hugh S. Johnson, who was once driven into outer darkness by his rivals, Richberg and Secretary Perkins.

Early Admits Rankling.

Stephen Early, assistant secretary to the President, admitted to newspaper men this morning that the prominence given to the excommunicated general in the press was rankling some of those in active New Deal service. Early did not mention any names, but Richberg and Miss Perkins are known to be the leaders of the anti-Johnson coalition. Mr. Roosevelt has been careful never to have these three in his office or reception room at the same time during the last two days.

To allay the sting, Early insisted again today that Johnson was not being given any more attention than any of the other 100 odd persons whom Mr. Roosevelt has consulted. Johnson is writing an opinion for the President on how the NRA can be salvaged, but it is only one of several for which the President has asked and which he will consider, Early insisted.

As a result of the sweeping Supreme court decisions invalidating the NRA and the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage moratorium, there is scarcely a phase of the New Deal that is not in jeopardy, either in congress or the courts.

AAA Decision in Fall.

The projected amendments to put more and bigger teeth in the AAA were so clearly out of harmony with the Supreme court's denial of federal control of intrastate business that even the most visionary New Dealers conceded the futility of pressing their passage, so consented to their return to the senate committee on agriculture.

The AAA will have its showdown in the Supreme court when the tribunal reassembles in October. Its constitutionality is fundamentally under fire in one case already set for hearing and three others on the way up from the Circuit Courts of Appeals.

The Tennessee Valley authority is suffering from the impact of the Supreme court's arresting decision. The pending legislation to broaden the scope of the institution is to be curtailed.

"TVA," said Representative John J. McSwain [Dem., S. C.], chairman of the house military affairs committee, "has gone far beyond the fondest dreams of congress and this committee. They have operated in excess of the language and intent of congress along lines which congress would not have had the constitutional authority to approve.

TVA Outside Authority.

"The original TVA was constitutional, but it was not authorized to undertake reforestation of farm lands, improvement of cattle breeds, regional mosquito control programs, and the buying and selling of power distributing plants. I have grave doubts of the constitutionality of the section of the TVA bill passed by the senate authorizing TVA to acquire private power generating and transmission systems and sell them to communities."

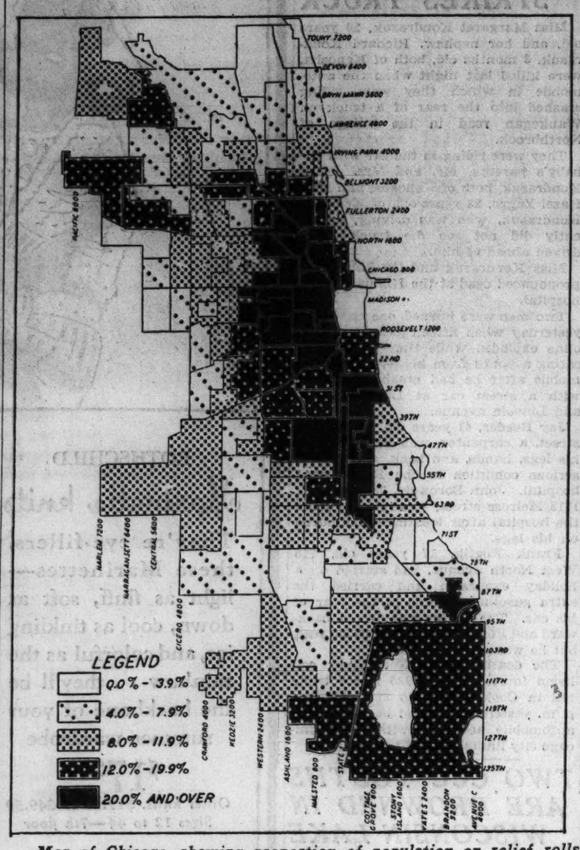
The administration measure to destroy utility holding companies is under a far hotter fire in the senate as a result of the court's formidable stand in the Frazier-Lemke act decision against the taking of property without due process of law. The spectacular rise of utility shares on the stock market this week is believed due to the widespread conviction that the bill, if passed, will be declared unconstitutional.

Both the Wagner labor disputes bill, passed by the senate, and the Black 30 hour bill have been hard hit by the Supreme court ruling against federal interference in intrastate enterprises. The 30 hour bill, moreover, bases federal jurisdiction on control of goods shipped across state lines. Prohibition of child labor based on that principle was invalidated by the Supreme court some years ago.

Attack Tarif Setup.

The court's strong stand against the unrestricted delegation of law making power to the President caused Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] to attack the constitutionality of the reciprocal tarif agreements now being negotiated by Mr. Roosevelt. Likewise the validity of the 5 billion dollar work relief act has been questioned on this ground.

DISTRIBUTION OF RELIEF



Map of Chicago, showing proportion of population on relief rolls throughout the city. The white portions are areas where the number on relief is less than 4 per cent of the population of that area, while the black shows those areas where relief proportion is highest.

Survey Classifies Load

More than half of the population is on relief in the area bounded by Roosevelt road, 18th street, the Chicago river, and Ashland avenue, it was shown yesterday by a survey made by the Cook county statistical service of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. In this section, the heaviest relief district of the city, 58.8 per cent of all residents are supported by taxation.

All sections of the city having large relief populations are among those with the highest birth rates from 1928 to 1932. In general, communities with high death and high infant mortality rates also had large proportions of their residents on the relief rolls. For the purpose of the study the city was divided into 120 sections.

A heavy relief load was found in sections with large colored populations.

The greatest decreases in relief rolls from October, 1933, to October, 1934, were in four south side sections in west Englewood, Burnside, and Roseland. Here the reductions ranged from 11 to 23 per cent.

CANADA RELIEF WORKERS VOTE PROTEST MARCH

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 30.—(AP)—Relief camp workers were virtually unanimous in their approval at a mass meeting today of proposals for a massed march on Ottawa of all relief workers in Canada. The workers also voted, 623 to 270, to continue their strike in protest against existing camp conditions.

"I think we have properly laid our case and grievances against the relief camp system before the people in Vancouver and British Columbia, and we intend to take our case ourselves direct to the federal authorities," a spokesman said.

"At least 1,000 should leave Vancouver and by the time we reach Ottawa we should number thousands."

The march was scheduled to start Monday.

CONGRESS PLANS TO ADJOURN BY FIRST OF JULY

Weather Is Expected to Hasten Action.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—[Special.]—Responding more to the Washington weather than to the appeals of harassed business men, administration leaders in congress have set July 1 as their adjournment goal. They are not talking about "quitting and going home," but "getting through and going home."

Business men, if their views are reported correctly by the nation's leading bankers appearing before the senate banking and currency committee, want congress to quit and go home without passing or threatening to pass any more radical legislation so confidence may be revived.

The administration, however, still insists upon carrying out its "must" program at this session, and President Roosevelt has informed the congressional leaders that he is eager for this to be accomplished by July 1.

Seek Banking Bill Compromise.

The President, it was learned, was told that an adjournment by July 1 could be managed without great difficulty if he would dispense with the highly controversial Title II. of the administration's banking bill for this session. Mr. Roosevelt indicated that he would give consideration to this proposition after deciding what to do about a substitute for the NRA.

It is the opinion of administration leaders in the senate, however, that the President will insist upon passing the whole bill substantially in the form as already passed by the house.

Besides the banking bill and possibly some "emergency" legislation to take the place of the demolished NRA, the administration's "must" program includes the social security bill, the public utility bill, ship subsidy, and transportation legislation. The banking and the social security bills have been passed by the house, leaving the public utility bill, ship subsidy, and transportation legislation for action in that chamber. The senate, however, still has to act upon all these measures.

Other Measures Favored.

Other legislation not included in the "must" program, but nevertheless favored by administration leaders, includes the AAA amendments, still pending in the house agriculture committee and recommitted in the senate; the TVA amendments, passed by the senate but defeated, 13 to 12, in the house military affairs committee; the Wagner labor relations bill, passed by the senate but still pending in the house labor committee.

The house leadership is expected to put over the Wagner bill, despite the contention of lawyers that it is "palpably unconstitutional" in view of the Supreme court's NRA decision, and the TVA amendments are expected to be pried out of committee, although they, too, are under fire from the constitutional experts.

Federal Judge Grubb of Birmingham, Ala., has ruled that TVA has no right to engage in the power business as such, but the administration insists upon increasing the corporation's authority to expand such activities, without waiting on the Supreme court.

In addition to all these measures congress must pass a tax bill before adjournment, for the reason that miscellaneous taxes aggregating some 400 millions a year expire July 1 and these are to be extended.

MORE CCC WORKERS TO GET JOBS IN PARKS OF STATE AND COUNTY

Improvements in state and county parks, which will be made possible by Illinois' increased Civilian Conservation corps enrollment, were described yesterday in a bulletin from Conrad L. Wirth, assistant director of the national park service, department of the interior. This state's quota of men has been raised from 22,000 to 38,000, effective July 1.

"Development of a state or county park in this program," Mr. Wirth declared, "calls for hiking and bridle trails and bridges, picnic areas, parking spaces, outdoor fireplaces, shelters, lookout towers, log cabin communities, recreational lodge and concession buildings, places for swimming, boating, and controlled fishing, and water and waste disposal systems."

Wirth said that new companies of CCC men will be placed at the following places in or near Cook county: Park Ridge park at Park Ridge, Palos Hills park near Lemont, Salt Creek park near Western Springs, Thornton park at Thornton, Parkway No. 54 at Elmhurst, in Du Page county, and Hinsdale Parkway park in Du Page county. Six new companies will be put to work at other parks in Illinois, in addition to the 27 companies already assigned to such projects.

NEW POLITICAL ORDER SEEN AS NEW DEAL AIM

Col. McCormick Tells of National Danger.

Cape Girardeau, Mo., May 30.—(AP)—Asserting that the administration has no intention of trying to found a new economic order, but is only spreading a smoke screen to conceal a new political order, Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, tonight called on his listeners here to "Save your country."

"The Supreme court decision on the NRA," he said, "has re-established the federal constitution as the bulwark of American liberty.

"A handful of men can't be found anywhere able to direct the future of agriculture in America. There is no intention to found a new economic order on the part of the administration. It is only a smoke screen concealing a new political order."

Eleven Counties Represented.

Representatives from eleven southeastern Missouri counties heard Col. McCormick at the dinner sponsored by the Southeast Missourian, local newspaper.

Former Gov. Henry S. Caulfield of St. Louis also had his bit to say about the recent invalidation of the NRA. He declared:

"This should be really Thanksgiving day, not Memorial day. Thanks should be given that the constitution has been preserved."

Col. McCormick attacked programs for the redistribution of wealth as schemes which in the past have led to "mass robbery and pillage, murder, horror and universal suffering."

"Men who without exception have been parasites their entire lives, have never produced anything and never intend to produce anything, each of whom has always lived at the expense of others and plots to live better than others who support him, call this 'dividing the wealth,'" he said.

Leading Toward Confiscation.

The publisher declared some of the proposals provide for taxation which eventually would mean confiscation by the government.

Envisioning such a system, Col. McCormick said:

"We would find no profits to divide and no taxes with which to pay the cabinet officers, senators, congressmen, governors, and other idlers of the dole.

"There would be no profits, no wealth, no taxes—but universal starvation and misery, such as our government knows exists in Russia. Such is the inevitable outcome of the policies of the Washington plunderbund."

HOLD PRIVATE DETECTIVE IN GEM PLOT CASE

New York, May 30.—(AP)—After the novel experience of a night in jail, Noel C. Scaffa, private detective who has recovered more than $1,000,000 worth of missing jewelry, was arraigned today in federal court on a charge of illegally transporting stolen gems.

Scaffa, questioned by the federal grand jury last month about the mysterious recovery of $185,000 worth of jewelry stolen from Mrs. Margaret Hawkesworth Bell in Miami, Fla., was charged with transporting jewelry from Miami to New York City.

The charge was sworn to by William B. Moran, special agent of the department of justice. Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey fixed bail at $10,000. There have been charges of a plot to split the reward.

Scaffa has been questioned for several hours in the offices of the division of investigation of the department of justice last night before he was taken to the federal house of detention. He was handcuffed to two agents when brought into court today. Others mentioned in various ways in the case are Eugene F. Bryant, resigned chief of detectives of Miami Beach; Fred W. Pine, prosecutor of Dade county, Fla., and Benjamin Cohen, who was counsel to Nicholas Montone and Charles Call, convicted of the robbery.

AUSTRIA SEIZES HIGH OFFICIAL AS NAZI AGENT

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, May 30. — How strongly entrenched the Nazis are in Austrian government departments despite repeated "purges" was shown today when one of the highest officials of the ministry of finance, Director Henkovski, was arrested secretly for Nazi activities. The Austrian press is strictly forbidden to refer to the arrest.

Henkovski, it is stated, had been regularly supplying to the Nazis confidential information concerning Austrian financial affairs.

At the request of the Italian government the Austrian government has suppressed the South Tyrolese organ, Suedtiroler, which since the annexation of the former Austrian province of South Tyrol by Italy in 1918, has kept the fate of the Southern Tyrolese under Italian domination before the eyes of the Austrian public.

GOLDIE OBSERVES THE TRENDS; NRA DIES—AND LOOK!

Elmer Stried, who resides near Zion, has a Jersey cow called Goldie.

Goldie has a great talent—so it seems—for observance of trends.

In 1933, before the influence of NRA and AAA was being felt, Goldie presented her owner with triplet calves.

When 1934 came around NRA and AAA were going good. Goldie produced just one calf, in line with the controled production theories in vogue.

On Monday the Supreme court of the United States handed down its decision wrecking the NRA and casting serious doubts on all control of production. Yesterday Goldie had twins.

ATTACKS NRA RULE AS TYRANNY ERA IN BUSINESS OF NATION

Washington, D. C., May 30.—[Special.]—Capt. William H. Stayton, secretary of the American Liberty league, in a speech today charged that under NRA "for two years there were oppression, confiscation of property, jail sentences, arbitrary and burdensome taxes, cracking down, and congenital bad manners of the administrator and some of his associates."

"Lawyer officials must have known that their law was unconstitutional, for they deliberately avoided a test," he declared. "They carried a case to the Supreme court and then trickily withdrew the appeal and evaded a decision," he charged.

Thousands of executive orders were issued under authority of the NRA which the President was unable to consider, Capt. Stayton said, so that "numberless clerks, not chosen by the people, wrote thousands of laws about which congress knew nothing."

CAFETERIA FIRE SENDS 200 HOTEL GUESTS FLEEING

Nearly 200 guests of the Saratoga hotel, 21-29 South Dearborn street, were driven to the street yesterday by fire that broke out in the grease chute of the Harmony cafeteria on the first floor of the building. Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan estimated the damage at $5,000.

Guy Vignola and Clifford Jones, elevator operators, calmed the guests as smoke filtered up through the eight floors of the brick structure and made repeated trips to take patrons to safety. Among them was Albert Sidney Katt, 72 years old, wartime governor of Florida, who is here on business.

The cafeteria was closed for Memorial day.

30 POLES FACE JAIL FOR RIOTOUS COUNCIL MEETING

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

LODZ, Poland, May 30.—Thirty city councillors in this, the second largest city in Poland, may be sentenced to two years at penal servitude as a consequence of Tuesday's riotous meeting.

The Nationalist and Anti-Semitic majority in the city council is being sued for disorderly conduct and inflicting injuries on city officers while on duty.

The Lodz council, with its anti-government Nationalist majority, has seen many hot controversies in the last few months. On Tuesday a quarrel between the Socialists and Jewish members ended in a battle with seven injured when police were called and public prosecutor ordered an investigation of the case.

Will Contestants Seek to Exhume Widow of Nine

Boston, Mass., May 30.—(AP)—Contestants of the will of Dr. Helen G. F. Welch, who outlived nine husbands, have asked Attorney General Paul A. Dever and District Attorney Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex county to order exhumation of her body to determine cause of death, it became known tonight.

GEORGIA PICKS TALMADGE FOR PARTY'S COUNCIL

Calls Him "Jeffersonian Democrat."

Atlanta, Ga., May 30.—(AP)—Laying plans for voicing his anti-Roosevelt sentiments in the 1936 Democratic convention, Gov. Eugene Talmadge today took over the national committeeship from Georgia.

GOV. EUGENE TALMADGE.

The governor already is stumping against the Roosevelt administration program. The state executive committee unanimously named him to succeed the late Maj. John S. Cohen, who was vice chairman of the national committee until his death recently.

Congressman Sends Reply.

Reaction came quickly from Washington where Congressman E. E. Cox, the first member of the Georgia delegation to challenge openly Talmadge's criticism of the President, said the governor would have no voice in national party affairs "until he has ceased his warfare on the party and its leader, the President."

"If the governor hopes to have any influence in Washington," Cox said, "he first will be compelled to recant and make proof of his loyalty to the party which has often honored him and which he has been endeavoring to undermine and destroy."

Committee Backs Governor.

Backing Talmadge in his criticisms of the administration, the committee adopted a resolution calling on the people of Georgia to reiterate their adherence to the platform adopted by the Democratic convention in 1932 and extolled the governor as the exponent of "pure Jeffersonian democracy."

Another resolution, explained by its author as merely a courtesy a Democratic committee owed to a Democratic president and not intended as "an attack on anybody," which was unanimously adopted, read:

"We extend to President Franklin D. Roosevelt greetings and wish for him divine guidance in his untiring efforts to restore peace, happiness and prosperity to the nation."

Full endorsement of the Talmadge administration in Georgia was voted by the committee.

Echo of Earlier Fight.

A letter from Ryburn Clay, Atlanta banker, named committeeman by Talmadge's 1934 state convention which voted to declare Maj. Cohen's post vacant, saying his membership on the directorate of the Atlanta Federal Reserve bank prevented his acceptance of the office, paved the way for Talmadge to take over the job.

Postmaster General Farley as chairman of the Democratic national committee declined to accept the convention's action last year and Maj. Cohen continued to serve.

NORMANDIE SETS 29.5 KNOT PACE EARLY IN VOYAGE

Higher Than German, Italian Averages.

ABOARD S. S. NORMANDIE, AT SEA, May 30.—(AP)—The Normandie sped westward at a new high average speed of 29.5 knots tonight, racing for New York in an attempt to win the blue ribbon emblematic of the swiftest Atlantic crossing. The records, held by German and Italian ships, are for averages just below 29 knots.

The great French liner, on its maiden voyage, passed Bishop's rock, from which it started on its record attempt, at 11:48 a. m. The 79,000 ton ship had averaged 28.5 knots on the first stage of its voyage from Le Havre to Southampton.

Memorial day was honored in the first sea service in the ship's chapel, celebrated by Msgr. Quinn. Mme. Le Brun, wife of the president of France, attended the services.

Lighted Up in Port.

The Normandie was cheered on by an enthusiastic throng at Southampton. Arriving shortly before last midnight, it rode rakishly at anchor for two hours in the English port, its graceful lines illuminated by searchlights on the shore.

Officials came out in a tender to extend the greetings of Southampton, Portsmouth and Southsea to the Normandie's commander, Capt. Rene Pugnet. When the delegation departed the tender saluted the mammoth liner with three shrill little toots on her whistle. The Normandie's response was three terrific roars from her siren, which reverberated deafeningly over Cowes roads.

The glow from her floodlighted trio of funnels gave watchers ashore an opportunity to follow her course until she dropped down over the horizon.

CONDEMNS SUPERLINERS

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 30.—The construction of giant liners for the purpose of capturing the "blue ribbon" of the Atlantic ocean was vigorously attacked today by Lord Runciman, 88 years old, the British shipping magnate and father of Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade.

Outlining the policy of the new Anchor line company at Glasgow, Runciman declared:

"This blue ribbon competition is of no good to anybody. It is a waste of capital which breeds unemployment. First you have to pay too much for it and it is not long before you see it lying in tatters."

The veteran shipowner was equally critical of Great Britain's new Atlantic challenger, the liner Queen Mary, and the proposal to construct a sister vessel.

"God save us from these ideas; we do not want the Queen Mary," he asserted.

At the same time Lord Runciman remarked that he is "risking something" in making that statement. The Queen Mary, he contended, should have been divided into three ships, which would return more than fifty times the profit of a single vessel.

Partners 50 Years, Deny Quarrel in Iowa Grocery

U. S. SUBMARINES SLIP TO SEA FOR FINAL WAR GAME

Battleships to Sail from Hawaii Today.

HONOLULU, T. H., May 30.—(AP)—With several divisions of submarines in the rôle of enemy off the eastern coast of Oahu Island, the United States fleet prepared tonight for a dash to sea. Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, commander in chief, issued final secret orders today for a sortie from Pearl Harbor, near here.

For the first time in the maneuvers, three of the four admirals in the navy will ride to sea with the fleet. Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations, will be aboard the cruiser Memphis; Admiral Reeves will be on the fleet flagship Pennsylvania, and Admiral Harris Laning on the battle force flagship California.

Maneuver 10 Days.

Hawaii based submarines and other local craft will return to Pearl Harbor after the sortie, leaving the 130 warships under command of Reeves to continue ten days of spectacular maneuvers as they proceed to San Diego, Cal. They are due there the morning of June 10.

More fighting ships steamed out to sea today, continuing the evacuation of Pearl Harbor and adding a thrilling touch to Honolulu's observance of a patriotic holiday.

Thousands of white jackets crowded Honolulu for the last fling ashore before reboarding their warships for the windup of six weeks of maneuvers.

Destroyers Watch for Subs.

Early this morning destroyers took up their vigil against submarines outside the entrance of the channel. Throughout the day other destroyers slipped cables and steamed seaward in continuation of the exit started yesterday.

The Utah, carrying the fleet marine force of 700, will spend three days at the island of Hawaii.

A Memorial day parade was participated in by 1,200 sailors and marines, who joined local organizations in one of the last social events of the fleet's visit.

Shop Owner Grapples with Young Robber

Arthur Lavy, 62 years old, owner of a haberdashery at 4753 North Damen avenue, struggled with a young robber who entered his store yesterday. The bandit fired one shot, which grazed Lavy's neck, and fled without loot.

A Brand New Christmas Savings Plan

Interest at 6% per annum will be added to all payments made in advance to apply toward the purchase of Christmas Savings Certificates, redeemable in merchandise.

As a service to thrifty, foresighted folks who believe in planning and saving, we offer the above liberal interest rate on all payments made, beginning June 1, 1935, to apply upon the purchase of Christmas Savings Certificates. These Christmas Savings Certificates may be used in buying merchandise beginning November 25, 1935. This affords an easy method for you to build up a fund for use in your Christmas shopping.

We cordially invite the public to take advantage of this plan. Full information on request. Following are some of the details:

A. Payments of $1.00 or multiples thereof will be received at intervals convenient to the purchaser from June 1, 1935, to November 16, 1935, inclusive.

B. Payments will be received at the Christmas Savings Cashiers' Offices—Main Store, Third Floor, South Bridge; also in Evanston and Oak Park Stores of Marshall Field & Company; and in The Davis Store—Tenth Floor, North Building.

C. Interest at the rate of six per cent per annum will be calculated on each payment from the date thereof to December 1, 1935, when interest will cease. Payments made on or before June 10 will be entered as of June 1.

D. Christmas Savings Certificates for the total payments plus accrued interest will be issued beginning November 25, 1935. These Certificates, usable by bearer in payment for merchandise, will be issued in such denominations as seem convenient and practicable.

E. The payments made hereunder and the interest thereon are to be applied to the purchase of Christmas Savings Certificates only and will not be repaid in cash.

F. Marshall Field & Company and The Davis Store will accept Christmas Savings Certificates in payment for merchandise only, beginning November 25, 1935. This will allow ample time for Christmas purchasing.

G. We reserve the right to limit the amounts of payments.

Small, regular payments will insure a happy, bounteous Christmas.

Application may be made at our special Christmas Savings Cashiers' Offices

PAY TRIBUTE TO 28,500 U. S. WAR DEAD IN FRANCE

U. S. Ambassador Makes Plea for Peace.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 30.—With a plea for the prevention of war and the restriction of aircraft to peaceful purposes, the United States ambassador to France, Jesse Isidor Straus, today led memorial services for the 28,500 American war dead buried in France.

Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the A. E. F., in full uniform, attended a memorial service at a church in the morning.

American organizations in Paris, including the American Legion post, the Battle Monuments commission, the American Overseas Memorial association, and the embassy received more than 100,000 messages giving directions for attentions to particular graves.

Flowers, Wreaths Placed.

These instructions were carried out, including the placing of flowers, and the reading of memorials. But regardless of messages, no grave was neglected. Buglers sounded taps, and an American flag, a palm wreath, and poppies were placed on each grave in the eight cemeteries where rows of white crosses mark the American dead.

French troops paraded by the large cemetery at Suresnes. Memorial services were held in the American cathedral and in St. Joseph's church. Ambassador Straus placed a wreath on the stone behind the eternal flame France's Unknown Soldier in Arc de Triomphe. Special services were held at the grave of Edward Mandell Stone, first American victim of the war, who was killed in 1915 while serving in the French army.

Services in London.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 30.—Americans participated in three memorial services for Yankee war dead. The American Legion placed a wreath at the cenotaph in Whitehall. Embassy officials attended the memorial services in St. Margaret's church and later Ambassador Robert Worth Bingham placed a wreath at the grave of Britain's Unknown Soldier in Westminster abbey.

SENATOR LEWIS ASSURES VETS THEY'LL BE PAID

Senator James Hamilton Lewis last night told 375 disabled veterans from the Hines and North Chicago hospitals at a Memorial day dinner in the Hotel Sherman that a modified plan for payment of veterans' adjusted compensation was under consideration in Washington and would become law. The dinner was given by the Cook county council of the American Legion.

Later Senator Lewis told reporters that new legislation on the bonus designed to pay ex-soldiers on an instalment basis "shortly will be carried through with the approval of the President."

"Your leaders will indorse the plan under consideration," he told the veterans. "The contract with you will be fulfilled. Your pay is sure."

Other speakers included Gov. Horner, Col. James H. Campbell, national chief of staf of the G. A. R.; Matthew J. Murphy, commander of the Cook County council of the Legion; Col. Hugh Scott of Hines hospital, and Paul G. Armstrong, Illinois state commander of the Legion.

Second Division Plans Service for War Dead

The Illinois branch of the Second Division association will hold a reunion in honor of its war dead at the Adventurers club, 14 North Michigan boulevard, next Thursday evening. Seventeen years ago that day the 2d division went over the top at Chateau Thierry and American soldiers were definitly established as shock troops.

PRINCE MEETS HIS WIFE

Declare All's Well

New York, May 30.—[Special.]—Alfonso de Bourbon, eldest son of the former king of Spain, arrived here today on the liner Washington for his first visit to the United States. He was met at the pier by his wife, the former Edelmira Sampedro of Cuba.

Judging from the words and actions of the young couple, who have been apart since last November, there appeared to be no basis for reports that the prince of the Asturias and his commoner wife had separated. Incidentally, the prince insisted that that was his title now and that his wife should be addressed as "your highness," although she registered Wednesday at the Hotel St. Moritz as the countess of Cavadonga.

Perched on a ping-pong table on the liner, the prince faced reporters and camera men smilingly. His wife had her arm around him.

"Everything is O. K.," he said. "Would she be here like this if there was anything in these stories?"

Asked if he didn't want to go to the Polo grounds to see a ball game, he wanted to know if that wasn't "where Tommy Hitchcock plays?"

"My father used to play polo," he added wistfully.

Veterans of Foreign Wars Pay Gen. Wheaton Honor

Rockford, Ill., May 30.—[Special.]—Rockford Veterans of Foreign Wars conducted memorial services today at the grave of Gen. Lloyd Wheaton for the Lloyd Wheaton post of Chicago. That is the senior post in the Illinois department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Gen. Wheaton was buried here in 1918. He had served in the civil, Spanish-American, and Indian wars. He was on home duty during the world war at the time of his death.

Upside Down Girl Is Given Kitten Born at South Pole

Boston, Mass., May 30.—(AP)—Alyce Jane McHenry of Omaha, Neb., of "upside down" stomach fame, has a kitten born at the south pole during the Byrd expedition as a pet. The 11 year old girl, whose misplaced organs were set to rights in Fall River recently, was given Pauline, a small black kitten, by Sidney R. Stanley, William B. Cann, and E. E. Finch, members of the expedition, when she visited the Charlestown navy yard today.

41 OF CIVIL WAR VETERANS IN BIG EASTERN PARADES

New York, May 30.—[Special.]—Only 17 civil war veterans appeared to "carry on" in today's memorial parade on Riverside drive. Twenty-four took part in the Brooklyn parade.

The Riverside drive pageant was reviewed by Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia, the first mayor in the 68 years of its repetition to act as reviewing officer. The mayor's "credentials" for the function, a specially designed medal, was pinned on him by Allen Morgan, 91 years old, grand marshal of the parade.

The oldest veteran in the procession was Timothy Creedon, 95, a retired New York police captain. He served in the war with the 82d New York volunteer infantry.

Twelve civil war veterans marched past the reviewing stand.

Approximately 20,000 veterans of the civil, Spanish-American and world wars took part in the celebration. About half this number were in line in Brooklyn.

Burglars broke a skylight in the radio store of Mandel Hollander, 2737 West North avenue, Wednesday night, lowered themselves into the store and carried out five radios, two dozen flashlights and 200 radio tubes.

RAIN, DISEASE HALT SUBURB'S MEMORIAL DAY

Rain and several scarlet fever cases conspired to prevent the holding in Western Springs yesterday of the decoration of a replica of the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National cemetery. The service was postponed until 2:30 p. m. Sunday. The day's services were to be unusual in that they were to be conducted by school children, the last civil war veteran living in the village having died a few months ago.

Members of Harry G. Maxsted post, No. 154, of the American Legion, had scheduled the ceremony for the village green. The rain prompted them to shift the scene to the McClure school. But Frank Martindell, chairman of the village board of health, forbade the indoor meeting on the ground that it might help add to the twenty scarlet fever cases in the town.

Some disappointed post members charged that the prohibition was unreasonable because the schools have not been closed, and demanded that Martindell resign as a member of the post.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, said scarlet fever was more prevalent throughout the United States now than it had been for several years. Avoidance of excessive crowding is a wise precaution, he said. Danger of contagion is not great in schoolrooms where there is no overcrowding and where ventilation is proper, Dr. Bundesen declared.

HONOR JOLIET AND MARQUETTE, HEROES OF PEACE

Acting on Mayor Kelly's plea that Chicago honor the heroes of peace as well as those of war in yesterday's Memorial services, representatives of the city paid tribute to Father Marquette and Louis Joliet, French explorers who were the first white men to visit the site of Chicago, in services at the Michigan avenue bridge. Municipal Judge Matthew D. Hartigan represented Mayor Kelly in the service, and Dr. B. A. Good of Holy Name cathedral appeared for Cardinal Mundelein. Jean Kraemer, French vice consul in Chicago, expressed the thanks of his nation for the honor accorded the memory of the explorers.

GERMAN SAILORS HAIL VICTORY OF JUTLAND BATTLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 30.—In accordance with a custom initiated by the late President Paul von Hindenburg, sailors mounted guard at the chancellery today and will do so again tomorrow and Saturday to commemorate the anniversary of the "victory of the battle of Jutland."

The sailors were cheered as they paraded through the city. Wreaths will be laid on the war memorial on Unter den Linden for Germany's sailor dead tomorrow. At that time Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's new war cross will be affixed to thirteen old naval flags. In the evening the survivors of the battle of Jutland and other naval engagements will hold a reunion. Streets near the naval headquarters are to be renamed for the three grand admirals who commanded the German fleet from 1906 to 1912—Grand Admirals von Koester, Prince Heinrich of Prussia, and Von Holtzendorff.

Public interest in the new German navy will be further stimulated by "Naval week" at Kiel from June 11 to 16, followed by a regatta.

REAL EXPERTS test whiskey by its aroma. You can test Gold Label that way before you buy it.

AMERICAN GOLD LABEL $1.20

TASTE that smooth, full flavor... from the heart of the grain country.

THE INTRODUCTION of American Gold Label Blended Whiskey has caused a bigger sensation with Chicago's dealers than any new whiskey since Repeal!

That's easy to understand. We have distilled fine liquors since 1892...mostly under private label. When Repeal came along we could easily have rushed in like so many others with a new blend.

We didn't. We waited. We made hundreds of blends and discarded them. Finally we achieved the perfect blend . . . at a price that at first seemed impossible.

Its success has already been overwhelming. Smell its fragrance...taste its richness...and you'll know why. What's more, we invite you to test it before you buy it.

Dealers will show you how to test American Gold Label just as the experts do. Two seconds will prove to you that it is the finest whiskey value in America today!

AMERICAN GOLD LABEL is tested before you taste it by skilled chemists. It reaches you in perfect condition.

CITY THUNDERS TRIBUTE AS WAR HEROES MARCH

Thousands Stand in Rain for Memorial Parade.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

They marched again yesterday.

Under gray skies and driving rain Chicago celebrated its 67th Memorial day with undimmed ardor.

Michigan avenue flaunted brave colors and echoed to the sound of music and drums all afternoon as the steady, tramping feet went by. The people lined the sidewalks almost as though the sun were shining. Wet cheeks and wet eyes greeted the veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic, the pale faces looking out from limousines as the disabled soldiers of the world war went by, and the young faces of those who have caught up the torch of the republic from feeble hands.

Chicago Matches Spirit.

It was a great parade that moved with clocklike precision through the intermittent showers. Its spirit was matched by the thousands of Chicagoans who came out to man the side lines.

What would a parade be without a crowd to watch and cheer? Well, they were there, too, the uncounted thousands, all the way from Chicago avenue to the reviewing stand in front of the Gen. John A. Logan monument, where Gov. Henry Horner doffed his high silk hat to the flags and men that support the state and the nation.

By his side stood Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, commander of the Sixth corps area, and Col. James H. Campbell, chief of staf of the G. A. R. Personal staffs, aids, military and civilian, with distinguished guests filled up the stand. In front of the stand, sitting on the sidewalk, were a dozen members of the G. A. R. They braved the rain and were tenderly cared for. Policemen brought umbrellas and raincoats for them. The governor helped to adjust a coat around one bowed old shoulder.

25 G. A. R. Veterans Turn Out.

There were twenty-five members of the old Grand Army to gather in Memorial hall at the library building and later join in the parade. The oldest man there was James Brown, a Negro who was released from slavery when the union troops arrived at his master's place near Baltimore. He is 102 years old and lives at 3422 Indiana avenue.

"When you hear those guns you'll be free," his old master told him. He participated in several battles in Virginia.

The youngest of the group was James Crugom, 84 years old, who enlisted as a drummer boy at the age of 11 with the First Wisconsin infantry at Milwaukee.

Never in Bed During War.

William N. Hodge, another youngster of 86, enlisted as a drummer boy at 16 with the 153d Indiana infantry. James G. Thomas, 92 years old, still lives in a house at 3981 Drexel boulevard which he built 54 years ago. He said that in three years during the war he never slept in a bed, never was in a hospital, and never fell out of march.

Comrade John Hood of the 51st Indiana volunteers, who marched from Atlanta to the sea in 1864, was one of those who objected to the solicitous attention of the Daughters of Veterans and to limousines and coddling generally. He was finally prevailed upon, however, to enter a car.

Last year 48 of the old army answered the call of Memorial day, the most precious day of the year to them. Death and the rain cut down the roll this year. In Illinois 130 have died during the last year. The old drummer boys have become commanders now.

Honored Age; Eager Youth.

Just behind the veterans marched the Boys' Alliance club drum and bugle corps of the South Chicago Y. M. C. A. No happier contrast could have been chosen. Many have stepped between, of course, to take up the flag. The Spanish War Veterans and the American Legion, the first of waning strength and the second in the full strength of adult manhood, come between the campaigners of '61 and these boys.

But these rosy cheeked youngsters, in scarlet and white, capes flying in the wind, enjoying the rain and the excitement, form the new generation that is being trained in the traditions of the republic.

Five grand divisions, including the National Guard, with cavalry, artillery, and dozens of auxiliary organizations, made up the spectacle.

Tribute to Hero of '76 and 1812.

Carrying the story of the nation farther back, special memorial services were held yesterday morning at the foot of the monument to David Kennison, soldier of the war of the revolution and the war of 1812, who died in Chicago in 1852 at the age of 115 years. The monument is in Lincoln park near Clark and Wisconsin streets.

Kennison helped to throw the tea overboard at Boston harbor, which started the rebellion against British rule. He was at the battle of Bunker Hill and witnessed the surrender of Cornwallis.

TRIBUTE TO HEROIC DEAD

Heroes of American wars, living and dead, were honored yesterday by thousands of Chicagoland citizens who gathered under sodden skies in cemeteries and suburban parks to offer tribute in Memorial day services.

Speakers were unanimous in envisioning the Memorial day observance as a living monument to the idealism of American democracy.

In one of the most impressive services in the city, nearly 1,000 veterans in the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital bowed their heads in silent tribute to departed comrades as taps was sounded during the celebration of solemn high mass. The Rev. Gabriel Sweeney of the Order of Passionist Fathers was the celebrant.

Edward A. Hayes, past national commander of the American Legion, spoke during the services.

Veterans unable to leave their cots were later visited in their wards by Col. Hugh Scott, manager of the hospital, and other staf members. Several of the veterans were taken downtown for the Michigan avenue parade and were guests later at a dinner in the Hotel Sherman.

Services at Cemeteries.

Memorial services in the suburbs and at cemeteries yesterday included:

ROSEHILL CEMETERY — Thirty-one organizations participated in the United Rosehill memorial service in the morning. Oscar E. Carlstrom, former Illinois attorney general, in his address pointed to the heroism of war veterans as a challenge to Americans to make a new fight in defense of their constitution and liberties.

German Veterans March.

GRACELAND CEMETERY—American Legion posts and civic groups participated in ceremonies at the graves of war dead. Municipal Judge John Gutknecht, who made the address, urged the nation to preserve the ideals of democracy and to fight Fascism and communism threatening it. A small detachment of the Steel Helmets, German war veterans who are now American citizens, marched in a procession at the cemetery.

LA FOLLETTE PARK—Brig. Gen. John V. Clinnin, retired, warned of the dangers in mounting radicalism in a service held by Austin Legion posts and patriotic organizations.

Decorate Confederate Graves.

OAK WOODS CEMETERY—Paul G. Armstrong, Illinois commander of the American Legion, made an appeal for preparedness in his Memorial day address before 15,000 persons. Frank Munsell, 93 years old, one of two survivors of 800 members of post No. 91 of the Grand Army of the Republic, read the roll call of 45 of his comrades while their graves were strewn with flowers. Daughters of the Confederacy held rites over the graves of the soldiers in gray. Hyde Park post, No. 34, of the American Legion, decorated the graves of John F. and Elizabeth Pershing, parents of Gen. John J. Pershing.

EVANSTON—Mayor Charles Bartlett, Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university, and others reviewed a Memorial day parade led by William P. Turner, 90 year old civil war veteran. The Wilmette coast guard under Capt. M. A. Jacobson scattered reeds on Lake Michigan as a memorial to sailors in the wars. Ceremonies were held at Park Ridge, Wilmette, and Winnetka.

OAK PARK—Nearly 5,000 persons gathered for services held jointly by Oak Park and River Forest. A parade, three miles long, led to Scoville park, where the Rev. Harold Holt of Grace Episcopal church gave the address.

LAKE COUNTY — Waukegan led Lake county observances with a parade and ceremonies at the American Legion home. Silas Nichols, 83 years old, one of six Lake county civil war veterans from among 2,000 who joined the Union forces, recited the Gettysburg address.

CHICAGO CHAPTER OF RED CROSS TO MARK 20TH YEAR

The annual meeting and twentieth anniversary celebration of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross will be held next Thursday noon in the Gold room of the Congress hotel. More than 500 members of the Chicago chapter and former active workers are expected to attend.

A colorful pageant illustrating the high points of the chapter's twenty year history will be presented on the staircase of the ballroom. One hundred persons, most of them members of the organization, will take part. Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, a director, will depict the Spirit of the Red Cross and Miss Margot Atkin, also a director, will be narrator.

Mrs. James B. Forgan Jr., chairman of the chapter, will preside at the meeting, at which the new officers will be elected.

PRESIDENT SENDS HOLIDAY THANKS TO KING LEOPOLD

Rain Cancels Washington Memorial Parade.

Washington, D. C., May 30.—(AP)—The big parade was called off, but in the rain a foursome of flags fluttered from the Capitol dome today in symbol of Washington's observance of Memorial day.

And across the Potomac, veterans joined with Boy and Girl Scouts in placing flowers on the graves of the 43,000 military dead who lie in Arlington National cemetery.

The Tomb of the Unknown Soldier was heaped with tributes. Within the marble amphitheater surrounded by Arlington's graves, Senator L. J. Dickinson [Rep., Ia.] appealed for adherence to the constitutional principles of "our forefathers."

Roosevelt Cables King.

President Roosevelt signalized the day's observance by cabling King Leopold of the Belgians the "grateful appreciation of the tribute paid by your majesty and your majesty's subjects to those Americans interred in Belgian soil who gave their lives for a great cause."

This was in reply to a message from Leopold that the Belgian people "with grateful hearts strew flowers upon the graves of your soldiers who fell upon our soil during the world war."

Sixteenth street's memorial-tree avenue fluttered with little flags. Down off Hains Point, which juts into the Potomac, officers of the Admiral Robert E. Peary ship of Veterans of Foreign Wars lowered a 6 foot anchor of poppies as the United States Navy band played "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep." A bugler sounded "taps."

Anchor Fashioned from Peonies.

At the foot of Lincoln memorial steps lay a model of the famous Constitution, with an anchor of white peonies on her deck.

The Fleet Reserve association put one red rose in its white peony anchor for each shipmate who died in the last year, then cast it adrift as the first minute gun was fired at Fort Myers at noon.

Representative Isabella Greenway [Dem., Ariz.] came bareheaded in the rain to the Titanic memorial, farther up the Potomac's bank, to eulogize heroes of peace—but the meeting was rained out.

Neither house of congress was in session. President Roosevelt, who originally had planned to review the Memorial day parade which the rain prevented, conferred with some of his key advisers on the question uppermost in capital minds—even on Memorial day—what to do about policies once embodied in NRA.

WOMAN SLAIN; HUSBAND HELD.

Abe Booker, 38 years old, colored, was arrested yesterday after his wife, Bessie, 38 years old, was found beaten to death in their home at 1448 West 14th street. Booker denied killing the woman. He said he found the body when he returned home after visiting friends.

Overnight Service Given to Eight Cities.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Competition between United Air Lines and Transcontinental Western Air for coast to coast passenger and express business is to be renewed here once more, it was indicated yesterday in an announcemnt made by W. A. Patterson, president of United.

Beginning tomorrow, Mr. Patterson said, his airline will make night trips, leaving Chicago at 9:10 and 9:45 p. m., daylight saving time, to eight Pacific coast cities, where the planes will arrive between 8 and 10 o'clock, Pacific time, the following morning. The cities thus given overnight connections with the east are Los Angeles, San Francisco, Sacramento, Portland, Spokane, Tacoma, Seattle, and Vancouver B. C.

Only One City Linked.

Hitherto the only city in the group linked in overnight service with the east was Los Angeles. Two of TWA's daily round trips, both east and west bound, are between that city, Chicago, and New York. United does not fly directly from the east to Los Angeles, but makes connections with General Air Lines at Salt Lake City for southwestern California.

United's new service is accomplished without adding new trips. Two flights which formerly left Chicago at early morning hours to arrive on the west coast late the following afternoon have been abolished in favor of the new night trips. The change is being made with the approval of post office officials who agreed to revise mail schedules.

The rivalry between TWA and United has been intense since TWA put Douglas DC-2 transports into service during the spring and summer last year. Before that United was far ahead with the Boeing 247's, which were regarded as the finest transport planes in the world until the Douglas was built.

On Nonstop Schedule.

Competition between the two companies has been hottest between Chicago and New York. In January, 1935, United was flying its 780 mile route in five hours. TWA was flying its slightly longer route in a few minutes under that time. Then on Jan. 8 of this year TWA began flying between the two cities in four hours—a nonstop trip.

In March officials of United announced that the newest Boeing, a 247D version, would go into service on the Chicago-New York route. These ships were scheduled to make the flight in four hours and five minutes, with one stop at Cleveland. In April TWA retaliated with a further cut in the flight to three hours fifty-eight minutes. Now the battle has been renewed on a transcontinental basis by United's latest move.

Observers here point out that this type of rivalry is largely responsible for the leading world position of American air transportation.

OPEN GAMBLING AFTER 5 MONTHS' LOUISIANA "LID"

New Orleans, La., May 30.—[Special.]—The sky was the limit in New Orleans tonight when gambling houses opened both in the city and in the suburban parishes of Jefferson and St. Bernard. Great crowds celebrated the occasion.

Dice tables, roulette wheels, keno, chuck-a-luck, and what-have-you are being operated in resorts that had been closed for nearly five months.

This afternoon handbooks which have been operated under cover opened full blast both in the city and in the parishes. The telephone company was busy installing phones, and the news service supplying them, recently raided, made no pretense at secrecy.

Senator Long intimated on the radio last night that he would allow gambling to operate in New Orleans and vicinity.

It was reported that the political leaders of the two bordering parishes, which for years have given Long practically unanimous majorities, served notice on him that they would desert his banner unless he allowed their resorts to open up. It is also reported that five Long leaders were selected to make assessments against the hundreds of gambling houses and the thousands of handbook operators. This assessment will reach a total of $125,000 a month, say those who profess to know. It is known that the "information bureau" has increased its fees for supplying racing results to the handbooks from $10 to $25 a day. The excuse is that this is to cover increased costs.

Two Devil's Isle Fugitives Sent Back to Penal Colony

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, May 30.—(AP)—Two fugitives from Devil's Island, who reached here a month ago after a daring escape, were placed aboard a ship today and sent back to the French penal colony. The prisoners, Albert Baladoux and Trouoy Yanha, had been allowed to stay here unmolested since their arrival in a small boat. British police seized them at the expiration of the month's period, however, and turned them over to French officers.

Rosalie Wagner, 19 years old, sought since March 17, 1934, when her brother, Joseph, was shot and captured while fleeing from a robbery at 1651 West Chicago avenue, was seized Wednesday by Sergt. Louis Pfannkuche of the Racine avenue police at Kedzie and Armitage avenues, it was learned yesterday. Police say the girl helped her brother in his robberies. Wagner was convicted and now is serving a sentence of one year to life in the penitentiary. Another brother, David Wagner, who operated alone, is serving a similar sentence.

HOPE TO RETAIN CHANUTE FIELD, SAYS GEN. BASH

The war department is making every possible effort to retain the army air school at Chanute field, Rantoul, and is seeking added funds to expand activities at Fort Sheridan and Scott Field, Belleville, Maj. Gen. L. H. Bash, quartermaster general of the United States army, said last night at a dinner for army and national guard officers in the Army and Navy club, 850 Lake Shore drive.

The dinner was given for Gen. Bash, Maj. Gen. George E. Leach, chief of the National Guard bureau, Col. Robert Sterrett, commandant of the Chicago quartermaster depot, and the faculty of the quartermaster corps subsistence school by the graduating class of the school.

"I have a personal interest in Fort Sheridan, since I am a former Chicagoan, and I know the needs there as well as any man in the army," Gen. Bash said. "I cannot, of course, assure that Illinois will receive $10,700,000 asked for the improvement of army posts within the state, but I can tell you that the war department is supporting the request."

Gens. Bash and Leach came to Chicago from Indianapolis by plane to attend the dinner. Today they will attend graduation exercises of the subsistance school at 1819 West Pershing road.

HUNT PILOT WHO FLIES AWAY IN ANOTHER'S SHIP

Obtains Plane at Curtiss Airport by Ruse.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., May 30.—[Special.]—Sheriff's deputies here and Forest Longeway, department of commerce aviation inspector for the Milwaukee district, still were without word tonight from a biplane obtained from the Curtiss-Wright airport by a ruse. In the plane when it took off were a man, tentatively identified as a young unlicensed student pilot, a woman, described as many years his senior, and a dog.

Through Longway, airports of the midwest were given a description of the plane with a request it be "grounded" if it landed.

Pilot, Woman, and Dog in Plane.

The plane is an open model, owned by Frank Petrusha, 3225 West Wisconsin avenue, holder of a trnasport license. A young man drove up to the airport at 4 a. m. with the woman and the dog and told Elwood Rokenbrodt, attendant, he had permission from Edward Mulick, port manager, to use the plane.

While Rokenbrodt was endeavoring to reach Mulick by phone the plane roared away. Mulick told Rokenbrodt that no such permission had been granted, and, knowing the gas supply in the airplane was low, telephoned the county airport where he surmised the aviator would land to replenish the supply. Attendants at the county airport said the plane had taken 15 gallons of gas and had left.

On Their Way to Auto Races.

The pilot registered as "Paul Smith, Minneapolis," at this airport and remarked, "We're on our way to see that race. It ought to be good." Authorities inferred that he referred to the Memorial day race at Indianapolis.

The sheriff's office was holding the automobile which the young man left on the grounds when he took the plane. Deputies were stationed at all airports here in anticipation of his return.

HUNGRY FAMILY TRIES MUSHROOMS, ERRS; FOUR CHILDREN DIE

Pine River, Minn., May 30.—(AP)—A fourth child of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Young died today of eating toadstools gathered by the family for food while awaiting a relief check.

Verda, 6, and Donald, 10, died today while two brothers, Robert, 8, and Raymond, 4, died yesterday. In a local hospital and likely to die was another sister, Rosella, 12. In beds near by, but expected to recover, were their brother and sister, Albert, 14, and Elsie.

Four days ago when their last food gave out and no money arrived, the family went to the woods for mushrooms. They found them and safely ate them.

The family made other expeditions and again found mushrooms. Tuesday some toadstools were gathered accidentally. Father, mother, and ten children ate them.

Neighbors—the Youngs' home is 11 miles from Pine River—now are supplying the family with food.

Youth Shot by Cornered Robber Dies of Wounds

Joseph Enk, 19 years old, 5405 Shields avenue, who was wounded last Saturday when a cornered robber attempted to shoot his way out after a crowd had chased him into a basement at 5631 South La Salle street, died of his wound yesterday in St. Bernard's hospital. The youth was shot by Leonard Favaro, 21 years old, 6701 Blackstone avenue, after Favaro had robbed a nearby grocery. Favaro was captured by Sergt. Joseph Morrison of the detective bureau.

DISCOVER MISSING BROKER'S BODY IN NEW YORK MARSH

New York, May 30.—(AP)—Two youths crossing the marshland near Jones Beach, fashionable Long Island summer resort, late today found the body of Gerald Hill, New York broker, who disappeared the night of April 6 after he told friends he was going swimming.

A former resident of Baltimore, where he was an attorney, Hill had applied for admission to the New York bar. A brother and a sister survive in Baltimore, detectives said.

Detective Charles Jones of the homicide squad will conduct an autopsy tomorrow, he announced late tonight, although he said no signs of foul play showed.

Jones recalled the statement of Albert Lowrey, a member of the Canadian trade commission, who was Hill's host and who reported the disappearance. Lowrey said Hill insisted on going swimming about midnight of April 6, although the temperature was in the 30s, and left the house attired only in shorts and sneakers.

PRODUCES DIARY TO PROVE FLYER REDFERN IS ALIVE

Jungle Adventurer Tells Tale of Discovery.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

COLON, Panama, May 30.—Tom Roch, German-American adventurer, tonight produced a battered diary to corroborate his oft disbelieved tale that Paul Redfern, the American aviator who has been missing nearly eight years, is alive in a South American jungle.

Redfern, he claims, is crippled and living with Indians—too badly smashed up in a plane crash to move without the assistance of an expedition.

Roch reached the Canal Zone recently from South America, was arrested as a vagrant, and told his tale of Redfern.

On the inside cover of the diary the following is written: "Mrs. Gertrude Paul Redfern, Toledo, O., U. S. A."

Roch claims this to be the address given him by the aviator.

Explains Silence Heretofore.

Asked why he did not tell American government officials in Trinidad or Venezuela his story, Roch replied:

"I was nuts with fever all the time."

Roch insists he told his story to Canal Zone police several times, but says they refused to listen to him. He also asserts that the members of the crews of Standard Oil company tankers on which he worked heard the story from him.

Here is Roch's story:

During a trip up the Amazon, Roch met three jungle Indians. They motioned to him to follow them. He paddled his cayuco [a small South American native boat] up a little river and entered a large lake.

He lived and fished with the Indians for a week. There came a day when the chief of the tribe occupying the village pointed at the differences in the coloring of their skins in an effort to tell Roch that another white man was farther up the lake.

"It took me two or three days to figure out what he was trying to tell me," said Roch.

Gets Banana Leaf Note.

Roch wrote a note which he dispatched with an Indian saying, "Please send me your name and condition on a banana leaf."

He said the Indian returned with a palm leaf on which was written with charcoal: "I am an American pilot and have been here five years and am crippled. Please come over and see me. NX-773 Paul Redfern."

Roch asserts that at the time he did not know who Redfern was.

He says he finally reached the hut in which Redfern, helpless and unable to return alone to civilization, was living. He asked his Indian guides to assist him in carrying Redfern out, but the guides, harboring the white man under a "medicine man superstition," refused to render aid.

Describes Redfern.

Roch said that Redfern was "approximately five and a half feet tall and of small build. He had dark hair, a mark on his neck under the left side of the chin and a spot on his left eye. He had dark eyes, but I am not sure whether they were brown or black. I tried the best I could with every finesse to bring him out with the two Indians, but the Indians would not do it."

He asserted that Redfern told him he took off from Brunswick, Ga., on Aug. 25, 1927, in an attempt to fly to Rio de Janeiro.

PARAGUAY AND BOLIVIA AGREE TO CHACO WAR TRUCE

Reach Accord at Parley with Neutral Nations.

BUENOS AIRES, May 30.—(AP)—A truce in the bloody fighting along the Chaco war front seemed likely tonight after Paraguay and Bolivia, the belligerents, tentatively agreed to halt hostilities pending the outcome of peace negotiations.

The Bolivian delegation here to discuss peace schemes with representatives of neutral nations conferred during the morning at the Bolivian legation and afterward issued this statement:

"Bolivia has agreed to negotiate a transitory truce, the two armies conserving their actual positions. During it [the truce] direct negotiations should be opened for resolution of the territorial conflict or to negotiate an agreement for legal arbitration which may end the Bolivian-Paraguayan controversy."

Paraguay Agrees.

Paraguay, while differing on some details of the truce, also had agreed to cease fighting along the present battle line.

Foreign Minister Luis Riart, heading Paraguay's negotiators, consulted President Eusebio Ayala by telephone this morning, but members of the delegation said later there were no new developments in the situation.

Dispatches from Asuncion, meanwhile, quoted authoritative quarters there as expressing the opinion that plans for the truce were not practicable and that Paraguay could accept only definite termination of the conflict with guarantees against its renewal.

Oppose Temporary Truce.

It was understood in the Paraguayan capital that Ayala, in his telephone conversation with Riart, asked if the foreign minister believed the negotiations could succeed and if he judged his further stay in Buenos Aires useful.

Paraguayan military leaders are described as opposed to any temporary truce on the grounds that it would enable Bolivia to recover from recent Paraguayan blows in the Mandeyupecua and Parapiti sectors.

NEW YORK POLICE AVERT PEACE MARCH RIOTING OVER RELIEF

New York, May 30.—[Special.]—An anti-war parade by 15,000 men, women, and children through the lower east side and Madison Square culminated this afternoon in a near riot in front of the main office of the emergency relief bureau, 902 Broadway at 21st street, where six paralytics had staged a hunger strike since Wednesday.

Only a quick decision by Inspector Charles Heidig to permit mass picketing prevented a bloody battle between 185 policemen and a belligerent crowd of 5,000, whose angry shouts echoed for blocks up and down Broadway.

After a few blows were struck the mob calmed down and picketed the building until a delegation was permitted to enter the building.

CRIMINAL COURT FAST TRIAL PACE REDUCING DOCKET

70% of Indictments Now Disposed Of in Month.

First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley yesterday reported to Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court that statistics show the court is consistently speeding up the trial of criminal cases. The prosecutor submitted a table to show that, if the judges of the court maintain the same pace trial of all criminal cases within 30 days of indictment will soon be a reality.

Speedy trial of all criminal cases is necessary to efficient prosecution, State's Attorney Courtney said when, after taking over the prosecutor's office nearly three years ago, he inaugurated the campaign to clean up the dockets. The report for April shows, Mr. Crowley announced, that 70 per cent of all indictments returned by the grand jury during that month were disposed of within 30 days.

Means Prevention of "Fixing."

"The quick trial of criminal cases prevents fixing of witnesses, tiring out of witnesses by repeated continuances, and makes for a more efficient administration of the criminal law." Mr. Crowley said.

"Quick trials also help the state in cases where identification is an essential element. If a case is tried within 30 days witnesses are better able to convince jurors of the truth of their identification of the criminal. When cases are allowed to drag along jurors are inclined to doubt identifications made months before. The witnesses also forget important facts after a lapse of time, and this is responsible for the loss of many cases in which the prosecution would get convictions if the cases were tried quickly."

Justice Gets Up Steam.

The following table, indicating the percentage of cases tried within 30 days in the years of 1933 and 1934 and in the first four months of 1935, shows graphically the steady gains which have been made in the campaign to speed justice:

Year of 1933	31
Year of 1934	45
Four months of 1935	60

The next table shows the percentage of cases tried within 30 days in each of the four months of this year in which a considerable gain over entire preceding years is reflected:

January	53
February	52
March	67
April	70

The speedy trial of criminal cases is also responsible for the reduction of crime, Mr. Courtney said, as reflected by the decrease of indictments being returned by the grand jury. In May, 1933, the grand jury returned 396 indictments; in May, 1934, the figure dropped to 270 indictments, and the May, 1935, jury returned only 177 indictments to clean up its work.

The number of indictments pending, which governs the ability of the courts to give speedy trials, shows a drop from 1,076 in May, 1934, to 247 for May of this year. The judges are now abreast of the grand jury, and Chief Justice Sullivan is making plans, he said, to keep the dockets in that condition during the summer vacation months.

Plan Staggered Vacations.

Instead of all the judges except the chief justice going on vacation during July and August, as has been the custom in the past, and allowing the cases to accumulate for disposal in the fall, Judge Sullivan is trying to work out a schedule that will hold enough judges at work all summer to keep the dockets cleared.

"There should be no letdown during the summer," said Mr. Crowley. "The judges should alternate their vacations so that at least three or four judges are always on the job. It has been a long struggle to get the dockets cleared, and we should not let them fall back into the old condition for the sake of long vacations."

Only three old cases which can be tried remain on the court dockets and two of them at least will be disposed of within the next two weeks. The last of the cases growing out of the strike against the Chicago Motor Coach company will be disposed of Monday with the dismissal of the remaining murder indictment against William Taber and Joseph T. Kehoe, it is reported. The two street carmen's union officials have been tried and acquitted twice, and inasmuch as the evidence in the case growing out of the death of Mrs. Mary Kennard, an injured bus passenger, is not considered as strong as in the cases already tried, a dismissal will be asked.

County Pleas Wind Up Another.

Joseph White and Edward Nackl, who confessed taking part in the killing of James Kelly, a bus dispatcher, will probably be allowed to plead guilty to manslaughter, it was said, when their case comes up Monday. The same punishment, one to 14 years, will be given to Albert Semple, actual killer of Kelly, who turned state's evidence.

The case of Dave [Long Count] Barry, prize fight referee, whose trial with Abraham Karatz, former St. Paul attorney, on charges of embezzling $54,473 from the Amalgamated Trust and Savings bank, was interrupted because of the illness of an attorney, will be put to trial again within the next two weeks, it was announced. Joseph Balatta, indicted with Barry and Karatz in the alleged embezzlement plot to gain funds for

The other old case remaining on the court's docket, the so-called bucket shop case against Leonard Rollnick and six others, which resulted in two jury disagreements, may be dismissed if the federal court agrees to try them on an indictment pending in that court.

Father Devine Leads 10,000 Cultists in Newark Parade

Newark, N. J., May 30.—[Special.]—Father Divine led 10,000 of his colored cultists through the streets here this afternoon. Most of the demonstrators marched, but about 2,000 of them rode in the automobiles and buses in which they had traveled to this city from New York, Long Island, other parts of New Jersey, and even as far away as the Pacific coast. Father Divine sat on the top of his open, seven passenger car, giving his blessing to the throngs who lined the route. Among the paraders were 100 white followers.

BELIEVE MOTHER SLEW DAUGHTER, KILLED HERSELF

Denver, Colo., May 30.—[Special.]—The bodies of two women shot to death were found in an apartment here today through the continued howling of a dog. The bodies were identified as those of Mrs. F. B. Newton, 60, and her daughter, Mrs. Ethel Roberts, 35, of Colorado Springs, Colo.

The body of Mrs. Roberts was lying on a bed with three bullet wounds in her head, and Mrs. Newton's body was found on the floor with a bullet wound through her temple and a revolver clutched in her hand.

Police believed that the elder woman had shot and killed her daughter and then committed suicide. No motive for the murder and suicide was found in their effects. A letter indicated Mrs. Roberts has a sister or daughter, Mrs. Frank Clark, living at the Hooper hotel, Gary, Ind.

FLORIST HELD UP AND KIDNAPED AS 35 WAIT IN SHOP

Unnoticed by thirty-five customers selecting Memorial day flowers in the rear, three young robbers yesterday invaded the Eriksson greenhouse in North Riverside, seized $131, kidnaped Ernest Eriksson, the owner, and fled toward Chicago, releasing Eriksson in Berwyn.

Eriksson was waiting on Adolph Lurie, 122 South Waller avenue, as the gunmen entered. They took $31 from Lurie and $100 from the till and Eriksson's pockets. Then at the point of pistols they marched Eriksson to their waiting automobile.

Lurie telephoned Chief of Police Arthur Beltz of North Riverside as the kidnapers drove away with their victim and an alarm was broadcast throughout the Chicago area. On 31st street in Berwyn, four blocks east of the police station, the robbers, satisfied that they had eluded pursuit, ejected their hostage and continued eastward toward Chicago.

Portrait of Prof. Shorey to Be Given U. of C. Today

An oil portrait of Prof. Paul Shorey, University of Chicago classical scholar who died on April 24, 1934, will be given to the university at 4 o'clock this afternoon. J. Leonard Hancock, chairman of a committee representing Prof. Shorey's former students, who contributed the painting, will present it. The acceptance will be by Dr. James M. Stifler, secretary of the university. The artist, Claude Buck; the widow, Mrs. Shorey, and others will attend the ceremony, which is to be held during a meeting of the Graduate Classical club in Wieboldt hall.

M'COY LENDING AID FOR BOOST IN R. O. T. C. HERE

Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, commanding officer of the Sixth corps area, said yesterday that he was trying to obtain additional army officers in order that R. O. T. C. units might be established in all Chicago high schools. James B. McCahey, president of the school board, and Supt. William J. Bogan have urged the increase.

Gen. McCoy said he had been corresponding with the war department in Washington in an endeavor to get men for the Chicago schools, but that the stumbling block was lack of money. The 400 million dollar appropriation for war department expenditures during the next fiscal year was passed by congress, but does not contain funds for increasing the R. O. T. C. along the lines asked by Chicago school officials.

The recommendation of Bogan is for one additional army officer and twenty-four noncommissioned officers to be assigned to the high schools. The number of cadets would be increased from 5,370 to approximately 10,000.

Rain Drives Alligator from Creek; Caught in Field

Gonzales, Tex., May 30.—(AP)—Thirteen inches of rain this month has left bottom lands too wet even for alligators. Herbert Wagner, farmer, noticed peculiar tracks leading up from a creek. He followed them into a cotton field. There, on high ground, he found a seven foot alligator. He lassoed the stray and brought it to Gonzales.

VOLIVA DEMANDS ARREST OF SIX ZION OFFICIALS

Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva of Zion took steps yesterday for the arrest of six town officials on charges of breaking and entering a municipal building he leases but does not use.

Mayor William Edwards, City Clerk John D. Luce, City Attorney L. Eric Carey, and City Commissioners William Farrar, Richard F. Hire, and G. Oscar McDowell are those named. All are Voliva's political enemies, and all except McDowell were formerly numbered among Voliva's faithful. The overseer instructed his attorney, J. A. Miller, to get warrants for the six today.

Voliva's demand came after the officials, at the close of a council meeting Wednesday, inspected the interior of the former city hall at 28th street and Sheridan road, with a view to turning it into a recreation hall. Voliva leased the building last March for five years at $100 a month and has paid the rent to date.

Present city officials have announced they will try to break the lease because, they say, it was negotiated by Mayor Edwards' predecessor, E. E. Harwood, Voliva follower, as a piece of political spitework.

BRAZIL MENACES U. S. SUPREMACY IN WORLD COTTON

AAA Cuts Production, So S. America Boosts It.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 30.—Latest returns from South American cotton growing areas today struck home to trade observers here the fact that the American cotton crimping program is working. The reports point up sharply South America's threat to replace the United States as the major factor in the world cotton market.

Brazil is now picking the largest cotton crop in its history. The sixth largest cotton producing country in the world, it has more than tripled its output in the last three years. Peru has increased its production nearly 18 per cent. Argentina grew more in the 1933-34 season than it ever did before.

In the United States, on the other hand, with the New Deal's crop limitation program in the saddle, production has dropped nearly 44 per cent in the last three years. The United States grew 62 per cent of the world's cotton in 1931-32. It now grows 43 per cent.

Figures Show Brazil's Gain.

Statistically speaking, the production picture for the three leading South American cotton countries and the United States, given in bales of 478 pounds, looks like this:

Country—	1931-'32	1933-'34	1934-'35
Brazil	448,000	969,000	1,591,000
Peru	242,000	276,000	276,000
Argentina	169,000	200,000	.....
U. S.....	17,095,000	13,047,000	9,634,000

Figures for 1933-'34 and 1934-'35 are preliminary estimates of the American Bureau of Agricultural Economics; other figures from official sources.

The threat this offers the American cotton industry is emphasized by Brazilian export figures. Cotton exports from this South American nation swept up from 46,772 bales in 1933 to 506,183 bales in 1934. American exports of cotton tumbled 41 per cent during the last year while exports of all other commodities were climbing 27 per cent.

The Agricultural Adjustment administration's reduction program has succeeded, temporarily at least, in boosting prices for the American cotton grower, but, as one expert analyst here put it, the AAA, because of that very success, is now in grave danger of boosting the American cotton grower clear out of the world market.

Civil War and AAA Likened.

Old timers in the cotton trade point out that the American civil war brought about precisely the same changes in the world cotton picture that the cotton hobbling policy of the AAA has effected.

Before that war began the United States had been supplying most of the world's cotton. When this source of supply was suddenly cut off by the war blockade, a powerful stimulus was given to the growth of cotton all over the globe. Great activity and enterprise was witnessed in India, Egypt, Africa, the West Indies, Australia, South America, wherever cotton could be produced.

In a few more years the world would have been able to get along comfortably without the American cotton. The end of the war came in the nick of time, however, and America rapidly regained her lost markets.

Same Sort of Boom on Now.

Examination of data on South American cotton regions reveals that substantially the same sort of boom is occurring now, under the stimulus of the AAA reduction scheme, as occurred during the civil war.

Paraguay has discovered that millions of acres on the banks of the Paraguay river are suitable for cotton. Growers are encouraged by the free distribution of seed cotton by the Banco Agricola del Paraguay.

Colombia, too, has been investigating the possibilities of raising more cotton, and is reported to be attempting to engage for the first time in production on a commercial scale.

In Argentina the jungle is being moved back to clear acres for cotton. Cheap public lands are available on which farmers pay neither taxes nor rent. The soil and climate are well suited for cotton growing. Production shot up to 200,000 bales in 1933-'34 from 150,000 bales in 1932-'33. The American Bureau of Agricultural Economics reports that the upward trend in acreage and producton will probably continue.

New Variety in Peru.

Peru, whose Incas long ago had a hand spinnng and weaving industry, one of the oldest in the world, now has its production on a solid commercial basis. A new variety of cotton has been developed in recent years which has forged to the front so rapidly that it comprised about 90 per cent of the entire 1933 crop. Production climbed from 234,000 bales in 1931-'32 to 276,000 [preliminary] for 1934-'35.

It is Brazil, however, aided by thousands of Japanese immigrants which presents the real menace to the American cotton industry. Exports of ginning machinery from the United States to Brazil leaped from $68,000 in 1933 to $558,000 in 1934. Only this week arrangements were completed for the transfer of one of the largest rayon mills in the southern United States to Brazil. The mill will afford employment to 2,500 Brazilian laborers.

A large cotton merchandising concern in the United States not long ago sent a large staf to Sao Paulo to handle the coming cotton crop. A big cotton oil mill has been transferred from North Carolina to Brazil. Compress machinery and cotton gins are similarly on the move.

From Coffee to Cotton.

Brazilian cotton exports—valued at $39,000,000 in 1934—now rank second only to coffee. Abandoned coffee plantations are being converted into cotton fields throughout Brazil. And the present production — estimated at 1,591,000 bales for 1934-'35—is not even close to the potential output, for there are enormous undeveloped areas ideally adaptable to cotton growing.

Cotton has had a long history in Brazil. Indians there were found by explorers and settlers in the 16th century to be using cotton garments. The plant is believed indigenous in certain regions. Cotton was exported as early as 1700 and spinning and weaving mills were in operation by 1775.

It was the civil war which gave the Brazilian industry its great stimulus, nearly 400,000 bales being exported in one of the war years. After the war, however, the Brazilians were not able to meet the American competition and production slumped. Coffee and rubber ascended in importance.

Cotton Climbing Again.

Now, cotton is again in the ascendancy. The rubber industry has declined. The government is restricting the further planting of coffee trees, and seeking to develop cotton as a supplement to coffee. Foreign and domestic capital are also becoming interested in cotton as its market enlarges [see AAA] and production becomes profitable.

Brazilian newspapers have played an important part in the development of cotton. Editorials, publicity from both official and private sources, stories of sales of cotton abroad and accounts of money made by local planters and farmers from cotton have been worked into the program.

In the past, two major obstacles have prevented the development of Brazilian cotton production to a point where it could threaten America's supremacy. They were [1] a limited labor supply and [2] inferior quality. These two shortcomings enabled the United States to recapture the markets lost during the civil war, and to hold those markets until the present New Deal retreat.

Conditions Change.

Unfortunately for the American cotton grower, Brazilian conditions are not the same now as they were in 1865. It is not so certain now whether the United States, even minus the AAA, could regain its lost markets. For an alert government in Rio de Janeiro, seizing its AAA sent opportunity, has acted [1] to obtain an adequate and cheap labor supply and [2] to improve the quality of its cotton until it can compete on an even basis with the best American variety.

Immigration into Brazil has been heavy in recent years. Large numbers of Italians, Spaniards, Portuguese, and—most significant of all—Japanese have poured into the southern cotton states. Approximately 200,000 Japanese are in Brazil now.

The importance of this Japanese influx is indicated by a statement of the Japanese consul at Sao Paulo. He estimates that 42 per cent of the cotton grown in Sao Paulo in the 1933-'34 season was produced by Japanese labor.

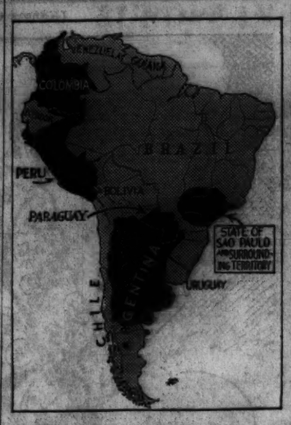
Many of the Japanese, rather than become day laborers in the cotton fields, have founded new cotton raising settlements for themselves, buying new cotton lands for around $5 an acre. They have also established towns, with schools and hospitals.

In the matter of quality, Brazilian varieties are coming more and more into direct competition with the American. The American bureau of agricultural economics admits that "the recent heavy increases in cotton production in southern Brazil, which in 1933-'34 accounted for more than half the total Brazilian crop, are of particular interest in view of the direct competition that this cotton offers to American cotton in the world markets."

The Brazilian federal and state governments have plunged into the problem of improving quality by establishing experiment stations, inaugurating federal and state gin inspections and control of seed distribution.

"The systems of seed control and gin regulation," asserts the American government's report on the world cotton situation, "seem likely to further improve the quality of Brazilian cotton. The trend [of acreage and production] will continue upward, particularly in the southern states."

Latin Cotton Boom



Map shows in black the leading cotton growing regions of South America—the Sao Paulo region in Brazil, northern Argentina, Peru, Colombia, and Paraguay. Production has spurted in all these countries as American production, restricted by the AAA, declines. Cotton is also being grown in others parts of South America.

Pastor and Woman Shot, Feudist Fights to Live

Mobile, Ala., May 30.—[Special.]—A family feud of 17 years' standing was renewed at Union Grove, Ala., today, resulting in three being wounded in a pistol duel between Robert Shumate, 46, and Tom L. Haney, 37. Shumate is dying in a hospital. The Rev. R. J. Johnson of Guntersville and an unidentified woman were wounded by wild shots. Haney in 1919 was shot and paralyzed by shots from a pistol in the hands of Shumate.

GUFFEY BILL'S OPPONENTS CALL 'STRIKE' A BLUFF

Say Coal Miners' Chief Is Setting Stage.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—[Special.]—As union leaders gathered here today to plan a strike of 450,000 coal miners at midnight June 16, indications increased that the strike threat is merely to help lobby the radical Guffey coal bill through congress.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, summoned his regional chieftains to Washington. One representative of coal operators commented: "John Lewis is pulling the biggest bluff in history."

Accused of Breaking Parley.

Lewis and the Ohio and western Pennsylvania coal operators favor the Guffey coal bill. They are accused of having torpedoed the recent wage negotiations, thereby bringing about the strike "crisis." Although other operators wanted to continue the wage discussions, Lewis and the pro-Guffey operators voted adjournment.

Having thus manufactured an "emergency," it is charged by some, Lewis is proclaiming "there is one safe haven for the industry," the Guffey bill. The Supreme court's junking of the NRA and the coal code played into his hands, setting the stage for the disruption of the wage negotiations.

Senator Pushes Bill.

Senator Matthew M. Neely [Dem., W. Va.], leader of the Guffey bill forces, is convinced that with the "emergency" looming in the near future the senate will pass the Guffey bill, perhaps with some changes, in the near future.

Neely, however, does not believe himself that he can get the bill through any house of representatives committee, where the congressmen from southern, anti-Guffey districts will pigeonhole it.

Southern and some Illinois operators are opposed to the bill because of the production allocation features. Those would allot output on the basis of averages over ten years or some like period. Such averages would give undue weight to the Ohio and western Pennsylvania fields. Some Guffey bill supporters would be willing to turn this controversial allotment problem over to a commission if that would win over the opponents.

Take Peace Vote Tomorrow.

Canton, O., May 30.—(AP)—Employés of three closed steel plants will vote Saturday on whether to return to work, Mayor A. R. Turnbull of Canton said tonight.

The strike, which started Monday at the Berger Manufacturing company plant and spread to other subsidiaries of the Republic Steel corporation here, continued without violence today.

Threaten Steel Strike.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 30.—(AP)—Talking strike, approximately 400 steel workers at the Carnegie Steel company's Duquesne plant met tonight and fixed a "zero hour" for a walkout if their demands are not met. The hour was set for 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The men, members of the ousted "rank and file" group of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin workers voted to send a delegation to confer with company officials at 10 tomorrow morning and to present their demands.

These include a $1 an hour wage rate, a six hour day, a five day week and "recognition" of the union by the company, a mighty unit in the United States Steel corporation.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Sheep Get Sister

May 30, 1935.

There is a new member in the sheep family at the Wheaton farm. It is a Corriedale ewe, 1 year old, recently brought from the Grundy farm, Beechwood, Mich. The ewe has a fine fleece and is considered an excellent addition to the 239 sheep already located on the Wheaton farm.

The flock was brought in to a field adjoining the shearing place yesterday and will be ready to shear as soon as they have two or three days of warm weather.

The second hawk of the week was trapped yesterday. It was a big Coopers hawk and was snared in a pole trap.

A new "worker" moved into the row of pens and coops for raising game birds behind Carl Henderson's house yesterday. A Japanese silky bantam hen was placed in one of the coops to incubate a clutch of Lady Amherst pheasant eggs. The next addition to this "village" will be a clutch of quails' eggs and a little later the boys will set the Chukar partridge eggs.

One chicken surprised herself and everybody else the other day. She was setting on turkey eggs in one of the coops when out popped a baby chick. The only conclusion is that she laid the egg after she had been given the job of setting the turkey eggs. The chicken egg hatched in three weeks, and the turkey eggs were not due for another week. The chick was taken away from the hen and the lady is now concentrating on her turkey poults.

Carl and the boys had a hard time with a colt the other day. The young fellow was offered a ride in a truck, but would have none of it. Eddie and Ernie kept leading the colt's mother up the runway into the big truck, with the idea that the colt would follow, but the youngster had other ideas. He would follow the mare right up to the runway, but then he would do an about face and run. Finally Carl got a halter out of the stables and the colt was pulled into the truck by main force.

The boys on the Yorkville farm who run the plows have a "following." This group consists of about five or six grackles which trail in the wake of the plows in search of worms. The newly turned earth gives the birds plenty of opportunity to get an easy meal.

There is at least one animal on the farm that is afraid of Silver Victor, the big white shorthorn bull. Clarence Thurow recently bought a brown gelding and put him in a field next to the bull, but the animal was so afraid of his neighbor that Clarence had to move him to another spot. Silver Victor wanted to make friends with the new animal, but the gelding refused. The gelding weighs 1,750 pounds and is 3 years old.

One of the boys was plowing the other day on the south side of the Fox road and happened to notice a big mud turtle in the field crawling away from the river. Just why he was headed away from water is a problem.

Southbridge, Mass., on Alert for Pyromaniac

Southbridge, Mass., May 30.—Special.]—With spotlights trained on the principal buildings, all policemen and firemen held on 24 hour duty, private detectives and state police patrolling streets, and watches at local factories doubled, all Southbridge waited apprehensively today to see where its firebug will strike next. Three disastrous incendiary fires in three nights have spread uneasiness through the town.

Six Arrested Following Meat Strike Disorders

New York, May 30.—[Special.]—Six persons were arrested in various parts of Brooklyn today in minor disorders growing out of the housewives' strike against the high prices of meat. Leaders of the city action committee against the high cost of living and the United Council of Working Class Women declared that the strike was still "going strong."

JUDGE REQUESTS QUIZ OVER U. S. COLLEGE SUPPORT

Philadelphia, Pa., May 30.—[Special.]—President Judge Harry S. McDevitt of Common Pleas court No. 1, in a letter sent to President Roosevelt today urged an investigation of the educational division of the Federal Emergency Relief administration with special reference to Commonwealth college, Mena, Ark., to which the FERA has contributed federal support.

The judge cited a legislative inquiry in Arkansas that "disclosed that atheism, communism and immorality are the higher subjects taught in this institution."

"Particularly alarming," he continued, "is the testimony that the FERA is financing four scholarships in this communistic and immoral citadel of iniquity. The investigation showed that sexual immorality was openly practiced by students of both sexes and this immorality was condoned by officials of the college."

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

THE MOMENT OF DECISION FOR THE NEW DEAL.

President Roosevelt is taking counsel from his advisers in the government to determine the future course of the administration. The first impulse may be to seek ways of turning corners where the Supreme court has erected walls and thus continuing without a real change of direction, trying to ignore the fact that centralized government has had its limitations laid down to it in definite interpretation of final law.

Pride and obstinacy of opinion might insist upon such a course creating a breach between the administrative and judicial branches of government such as politics made in the earlier history of the republic when the courts were attacked because of limitations they put upon strong willed men.

Many of the President's advisers are stubborn special advocates. They planned the revolution, intending to make a political change from the ground up in the American system of government, removing the federal Union to make room for a central autocracy to which congress was giving the delegations of power now forbidden by the courts. The special advocates did not consider constitutional limitations. They counted upon an acceptance of their dictum that the old law could not restrict political action in modern economic conditions. The peaceable revolution was to do without the constitution.

The opposition to the revolutionaries was attacked in the manner with which the country has become familiar. Citizens who based themselves upon just such points of law as the Supreme court has reaffirmed were to be destroyed by opprobrium. They were called enemies of the common good, selfish and destructive tories, liars, servers of special interests, oppressors, chiselers, seekers of privilege, etc. The purpose of attacks of such character was to ruin, if possible, the moral quality, the honesty and sincerity, of Americans who could not see their old form of government destroyed and keep silent.

When attackers have behind them usurped powers, when they have control of communications, control of the treasury, of borrowing power, of taxation, of distribution of public money; when they can give or withhold relief, when they can dominate the radio and threaten the newspapers, when they can frighten cautious men into silence and put little men in jail, they can make opposition a dangerous position to assume. The moral denunciation of criticism had the prestige of the White House behind it. The point to be gained was the persuasion of the American public that the critics of bad and dangerous government were themselves bad and dangerous men.

The Supreme court decisions have swept the revolutionaries off that ground. It is one which extremists will always seek to entrench for their protection. Obloquy and opprobrium are their heaviest guns. But they must deal now with a criticism validated by the highest tribunal in the land. The opponents of centralized autocracy, which would eliminate the states and overrun guaranties and rights, have the law with them. The right is on their side. They cannot be destroyed by being held up to scorn. It is a change which clears the air.

There are many men in the Democratic party, not in the circle of special advocates of revolution, who realize that criticism cannot be destroyed any longer by the great publicity machine of the federal government. Men who risked their political careers and men who put their private enterprises to hazard by condemning the New Deal have been given the floor, justified in what they have said and done. All the press agents in Washington cannot undermine their moral position now.

It may be the rash decision in the New Deal to continue with methods previously used to accomplish fixed purposes. The battle will be joined on that.

RAILROAD CO-ORDINATION.

An astonishing number of laws defeat the very purpose for which they are created, inducing the conviction that the best possible method of arresting a desirable development is to have congress establish a bureau to foster it. It has long been immediately and the period between 1920 and 1930 witnessed fewer consolidations than any similar period since the civil war.

Just so with the more recent coördinator act, framed to promote the correlation of railway activities and reduce duplication of facilities and service through the unification of yards, terminals, stations, mechanical equipment, and train service. By natural processes over a period of years some twenty-five thousand miles of track has been saved by carrier running rights and over six thousand instances of joint terminal use have been instituted. At the time the coördinator act was passed the railways had under consideration some eight hundred additional projects with estimated annual saving of twenty millions, but of these only ninety-four with savings of two million dollars have been actually put into effect. Instead of being helpful, the government bureau is back pedaling.

The question of extension of the temporary railway legislation is now before congress. If no action is taken the office of coördinator of transportation will be abandoned on June 16, 1935. As the coördinator is clearly not only a burden to the railways but a deterrent to coördination, the office should be abolished.

THE MASSACRE.

The city council has adopted a resolution authorizing Mayor Kelly to apply for federal funds to begin construction of an elevated highway system in Chicago, and it is high time. Two hundred ninety-two deaths, six thousand one hundred nineteen injuries in a total of one hundred forty-eight days. Two killed and forty-one injured every twenty-four hours. The cold figures seem possible only for a wartime period of organized destruction.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has sought for years a method of impressing these shocking conditions on the public and the city council. We first published "The Hands of Death" for a period, but abandoned the daily publication of the figures when it was apparent that they were accomplishing no good purpose. When a constructive plan of elevated highways was devised and statistics prepared to show that with this segregation of the through traffic 98 per cent of the accidents would be eliminated the clock was reinstated with the caption appeal "Avoidable."

Now that the way is cleared for immediate action, any further delay through arguments weighing lives against real estate values clearly exhibits callousness on the part of those in power. We will place the responsibility for the deaths of innocent people where it belongs, at the door of city planners, with the not to be controverted title "Massacre."

CLEMENCY FOR KIDNAPERS.

The young woman who has been trying, with success, to induce the governor of Missouri to overrule a jury's sentence of death for her kidnaper suggests the type of female who wants to meet a caveman and be treated rough. It has produced a rather familiar heroine for writers of romance and has no mystery for the modern psychologist.

The surrender of the governor is explainable, on other grounds, in the considerations of politics which yield to the sentimentalism that has so much more influence in our affairs than it deserves in itself or from actual public opinion it represents.

The governor's duty to sustain the verdict of the jury in this case was clear. Kidnaping has become the most serious menace in American criminality and the jury's application of the extreme penalty was not only justified but gravely needed to check this intolerable evil. The use of executive clemency was without a shadow of excuse in the circumstances. The anguish endured by the parents of the child kidnaped in Washington state is translated into fear in the hearts of every parent and the governor of Missouri is responsible for intensifying it throughout the country. He has failed in duty deplorably and inexcusably.

Editorials of the Day

WHAT A SENATOR SHOULD BE.

[Rock Island Argus.]

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia refuses to be classified as a "public servant." There is nothing servile about this old-fashioned conservative Democrat. Considerations of popularity fail to move him. What influences him most of all is his conception of his duty. When it comes to duty he refuses to bow to a public opinion that is obviously manufactured or to the will of the administration which happens to be in power. We are frank to say that Mr. Glass embodies our idea of what a senator of the United States should be.

When the medal of the National Institute of Social Sciences was conferred upon him, he accepted it and discussed the "public servant" idea as follows: "To me it was never intended to mean abject subservience to the popular will, however uninformed or misdirected. I prefer to think of a United States senator as the representative of the sovereignty of his state and subject every moment to the promptings of his own conscience and the preservation of his own intellectual integrity."

He went on to say that "it is a self-evident proposition—that the public man who permits himself to pause long enough to inquire whether a thing is popular or unpopular, instead of seeking to know whether it is right or wrong, is not only useless but dangerous to his country. He is a coward to begin with and a menace always."

These are the utterances of a man whom the American people thoroughly admire and respect. They point to him as a distinguished representative of a group whose numbers have been greatly diminished. They may not always agree with him, but they know he cannot be swayed by whim or caprice and that he goes on his way secure in the knowledge that the course he pursues has the approval of his conscience. Of such senators we cannot have too many.

HAS A SORT OF GRIM FAMILIARITY.

[Daily Pantagraph, Bloomington, Ill.]

Studying the news from Europe, one is almost persuaded sometimes that a grim and implacable fate is at work, compelling men to duplicate the costly errors of former days.

One of the most recent dispatches from overseas told how Great Britain has at last begun a race to match Germany's expansion of her air force. Production has been speeded up, plane and engine manufacturers have been forbidden to accept foreign orders, and a new defense program is to be presented to the house of commons.

Given the present state of international politics, it is hard to see what else the British can do; and yet—is not the whole thing horribly like the Anglo-German naval race of pre-war days?

That competition paved the way for a war that almost wrecked both nations. Will the new competition in aerial fleets have the same results?

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

"'BACK TO THE FARM FOR ME! I'll Love It!' Says Barbara Hutton."—Headline. Certainly, Barbara, because your new husband, Count Something-or-Other, has an ancestral estate in Denmark. Going back to the farm is great stuff when you can press a button and a butler in the uniform of a field marshal or a rear admiral appears like a jack-in-the-box with the cocktails. A farm is grand when all the farming you do is to look out the window and see the happy peasantry cutting the oats or digging the potatoes. But, Barbara, when back to the farm means getting up at four-thirty in the morning and milking the cows and keeping some of those damn heifers from putting their hind foot in the milk pail, it's quite a different matter. And getting dinner for ten or fifteen harvesters and churning the butter and chasing the hens around the lot to make 'em lay—well, Barbara, your raving about going back to the farm just makes old Dobbin laugh. As they used to say in the long ago, "Dearie, you don't know nothing yet."

EVOLUTION.

Eons formed this paragon,
Subdued the brute and stilled a fear,
Brought the miracle of dawn
To the night once lingering here.

Lifted brows of beetling mien,
Smoothed the forehead, tamed the cry,
Gave to mind the vision keen,
Portents men might know Him by.

Eons yet shall be impressed
In His labor, out of Time,
Out of love, to heights unguessed
Working miracles with slime.

CLARENCE MILLIGAN.

THERE'S A MOVEMENT being pushed in Washington right now to have somebody take the glass case off the copy of the Constitution of the United States in the Congressional Library and take it out and make a copy of it and have it circulated among the New Dealers. Since the Supreme court decision, lots of them have expressed a curiosity to know what it's all about.

HE FIT 'EM BOTH— YANKS AND GRAMMAR.

R. H. L.: To be sure, a man who would say or write "We busted the fort at ninerclock and scatered the niggers. The men is a cillanem in the woods" might not be beyond "fustest" and "mostest." But (what a killjoy I've turned out to be) this Forrest report that Lloyd Lewis quotes is probably not genuine, either. (Lewis is a careful biographer, his "Sherman" is a honey, but in this case he did not read far enough.) It is a long story, but this is the synopsis:

The Union General, J. G. Wilson (the most competent of the Northern cavalry leaders, and the one who finally defeated and captured Forrest), was the editor of the Appleton series of American Commanders. He included the famous "ninerclock" dispatch in his article on Forrest in the Appleton's Cyclopedia. Upon publication many of Forrest's officers questioned its genuineness. Wilson wrote to General J. R. Chalmers, second in command at Fort Pillow, who replied that he did not believe Forrest wrote the dispatch, particularly as the statements are not in accordance with the facts. (The fort was not successfully assaulted until mid-afternoon.) General Wilson then withdrew the dispatch from subsequent editions, but by that time it was beyond recall as a part of the legend of Forrest's illiteracy.

And now I have to go weaken my case. Here is one that is authentic. A soldier of his command sent in an application for a furlough. Forrest needed every man just then, and on the application appears an indorsement in the General's own hand, "I told you twist (twice) Goddamit know," and the man knew that his application was denied. But this is hardly baby talk. R. B. B.

"NOW WHAT?" people demand at any and all kinds of conversations nowadays, referring, of course, to the Supreme court decision on the late lamented NRA. I haven't been able to answer the now-whatters yet. It's getting to be a famous question this "Now what?" I only say when they ask me that I am still worrying about other great questions that have precedence over this current problem—"Where was Moses when the light went out?" "Why does a chicken cross the road?" "How old was Ann?" and "Which came first, the hen or the egg?" After I get those things settled I'm going to jump right in and find the correct answer to "Now what?"

VOYAGE.

Here goes my fragile bark to sea
Out of the shallows, anyhow,
Half seaworthy, a god for me,
Part imp, part angel on the prow.

Out of the shallows with the tide,
And I lack much for voyaging,
With this mad chart I've drawn for guide.
This sextant from a pigeon's wing.

To share exultant joyous fears
The eager helm is mine—is mine!
The sea is one dark pool of tears
And I can read the stars' design.

The spray is cold as marble dust—
Thy heart beneath is melting hot—
I'm sailing on to where I must
If I come back again or not.

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

WATER INTOXICATION.

MANY of us do a lot of senseless things and in so doing we punish some of the most important functions of the body. Repeated mention has been made in this column of the pernicious practice of drinking huge quantities of water merely as a fad, particularly by individuals who are in middle life or beyond, and in whom the circulation may not be up to par.

Water drinking is fine, but there is a big IF: If we need it, if the tissues will make use of it and then excrete it, and if it will not embarrass an already tired heart. Superior intelligence is not needed to understand that a weakened circulatory system will not endure a fluid overload. It would be like trying to pump an increased flow of water through a wornout hose; something would give way somewhere.

In a recent article Helwig and others call attention to numerous observations that have been made by clinical workers to the effect that the tissues can become water-logged. Rowntree noted symptoms of the excessive retention of water in the body such as headache, nausea, and a staggering gait. He was able to show that when given distilled water small animals were positively poisoned through the accumulation of too much water in the tissues.

Whenever the general tissues of the body are gorged with water the brain claims its share and swells. Helwig and his co-workers report a case of water intoxication following the use of an excessive amount administered by rectum. Because of the striking symptoms the authors determined to test the procedure on young animals and, as a result, they found that the condition could be reproduced by merely giving an increased amount of water.

As can be well understood, in order that water shall be eliminated from the tissues, it is necessary that it contain certain salts. It was proved that in the presence of an excess amount of water and in the absence of salts the brain tissues swell and the liver is usually damaged. Water craves salts, and in order to satisfy this craving salts are abstracted from different parts of the body—the brain losing fifty per cent of its chlorine.

For many years it has been known that workmen who perspire freely and as a result drink large quantities of water may exhibit one of the chief symptoms of water retention, namely, severe muscular cramps. It was found that this symptom would disappear rapidly if salt were added to the drinking water. Stokers on ocean liners who perspire quarts during each period of duty complained of cramps until thin, salted gruel was given them to drink. In other words, salts lost through perspiration were restored.

Some readers may recall that we have strongly advocated the omission of common salt [sodium chloride] from the diet in certain conditions. In this connection it must be recalled that the program outlined suggested the substitution of ammonium chloride or potassium chloride for common salt. With such a regimen, and with plenty of chlorine atoms, water is rapidly lost that would otherwise be retained.

From the experiments cited we may readily conclude that any large amount of pure water, unless reinforced by some salt, such as ammonium chloride, potassium chloride, or even common salt, tends to store fluid in the various tissues and organs of the body with the result that function may be completely destroyed. Unless water retention is rather promptly counteracted serious results may ensue. It appears anomalous, but it is nevertheless true that pure sparkling distilled water may, if other conditions are favorable, act as a poison.

No single observation tends more strongly to indicate the delicate chemical balance that is maintained in the body. Too much of anything is not a good thing. Forced water drinking may not only place a heavy load upon the circulation but damage vital structures irreparably. Natural thirst is an excellent guide.

TUBERCULOSIS OF KIDNEY.

A. M. S. writes: A member of our family has tuberculosis of the kidney and our neighbors tell us it is contagious. We would like to have your viewpoint and also comments on the disease.

REPLY.

Tuberculosis of the kidney may be secondary to tuberculosis elsewhere in the body. In tuberculosis of the kidney tubercle bacilli are frequently thrown off in the urine. Investigation should be made to determine if both kidneys are involved. If only one is diseased and the other is functioning properly the diseased kidney may be removed. One kidney, under ordinary conditions, is more than enough for the lifetime of the normal individual.

As you speak of the condition it is not ordinarily thought of as a contagious form of tuberculosis.

CELLULITIS.

L. B. K. writes: What causes cellulitis? In our recent experience with the disease it seemed to be a complication of measles which did not break out. Does it follow any other ailment?

REPLY.

Cellulitis is generally spoken of as an infection of the cellular tissue between the skin and the muscles. This may be a source of widespread infection with great toxemia and, if extensive, is serious in character. It is caused by an organism, that is, a bacterium [frequently the staphylococcus, sometimes the streptococcus], and usually appears only when the patient has become greatly weakened by some other disease. In treatment the infection should be brought to a focus—abscess formation—if possible, so that the pus may be drained.

OCCUPATIONAL ECZEMA.

K. S. writes: I mark cardboard boxes for a clock house. My hands crack and bleed and I suffer severe pain. My finger nails are wrinkled. Could this be from a chemical in the box material?

REPLY.

It may be an eczema or dermatitis that is due to absorption of some chemical associated with your work. A physician can make proper tests to determine the cause. Why not wear light cotton gloves?

VACCINATION.

M. H. writes: At 9 months I had my little girl vaccinated and it didn't take. Six months later, when she took the Schick test for diphtheria, I had her vaccinated again and it didn't take. She is now 5 years old and I had her vaccinated again and still it didn't take. Why is this and what should be done about it?

REPLY.

Either the vaccine used was inert [not potent] or blood from the scratch destroyed the vaccine. It is possible your daughter is immune. It would be wise to repeat the vaccination against smallpox about once each year until a good "take" appears.

ESTATE DISTRIBUTION.

Chicago, May 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My mother died and left a small estate to be equally divided between my brother and myself, sole executors. 1. Is it necessary to have the Probate court appoint three appraisers [2] to appraise the stocks and bonds after they have been appraised once before and pay each one of these men a fee which would be an added expense to both of us? The stocks and bonds have practically no value. A. L.

1. The necessity for probate depends on who is in possession of the assets, on whether the parties can agree, and on other facts not before us.

2. The appraisal relates only to the tangible goods, such as clothing and furniture. Presumably you will employ an attorney for the proceedings, and he will be in a better position to advise you than we are.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LEGAL TITLE.

Chicago, Ill., May 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. There are four vacant lots alongside of my bungalow, all of which are forfeited for taxes. I would like to fence in the one next to me and make use of it for a yard and garden. 2. Could I get a permit to do that? If so, to whom should I apply for the permit? 3. I do not want to pay the taxes on the lot. P. E. M.

1. If you wish to try to make a good legal title it seems probable that the best course would be to arrange to have the county authorities foreclose the tax forfeitures on the specified understanding that you would make a bid at the tax sale. We advise you to employ an attorney.

3. If no one is paying any attention to the property this is another way of saying that no permit would be necessary in order to fence.

3. In this case you could not expect to make a good title.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON. — Means of decreasing child labor and raising the intellectual standard of the British people by making education compulsory until the age of 15, instead of 14 as at present, are being studied by the British government.

Prime Minister MacDonald received recently a delegation of educators, churchmen, workers' representatives, and business men. He stated that the board of education had been instructed to examine the possibility of raising the school-leaving age to 15. He was convinced that it should be done, he said, but he refrained from committing the government and, though pressed by the delegation, refused to name any date when the reform should be made.

"That five-sixths of our population should be sent into the world at 14 is a calamity—a waste of the most precious material which this nation possesses," said MacDonald.

He added that difficulties stood in the way of the reform and until those difficulties had been solved it would not be wise to order the reform.

The chief difficulty, he said, is financial. Then there is the question of determining what should be taught in the additional year of education. In addition, the churches—the Church of England, Nonconformist, and Catholic—must come to agreement about the religious problem and about state aid for their schools.

The archbishop of York, urging MacDonald to name a date for the reform, said he thought that the Church of England and the nonconformist churches would come to an agreement quickly, and Col. Sir John Shute, one of the business men in the delegation, expressed the Catholic layman's view not what they should be in the 20th century, argue the reformers.

Col. Shute, as a business man, said that as life became more and more complicated more education was essential. Teachers stated that "at 14 boys and girls are just beginning to get interested in education," and urged that the additional year between 14 and 15 should be made compulsory without delay.

Child labor is one of the social problems of Great Britain, especially because of the great number of men and women out of work. Fifty thousand children left school at the Christmas term and joined the ranks of the unemployed, which rose in January by 239,553 after declining throughout 1934.

THE INTERN PRESENTS HIS FACTS.

Chicago, May 28.—I am appealing to your sense of fair play to correct what I consider a grave injustice. On May 21, 1935, the first page of your paper carried an article headed "Police Patient Barred from Hospital Dies," in which you described the death of a 60 year old colored man after an intern had refused him admission to the County hospital. The article contained some statements which were not true and, in addition, gave the impression that incompetence on the part of the intern was responsible for the affair; since I am the intern involved I trust you will not deny me the opportunity to tell you what happened.

In the first place, newspapers have a code of ethics and I expect them to follow that of others—the value of the story was not enhanced by the publication of my name, and this did me incalculable harm. If the incident were due to my oversight [and it was not] it is unfortunate that mistakes made in my profession should lead to consequences so serious, but even physicians are human and apt to make mistakes.

At autopsy this patient was found to have died from a brain hemorrhage and a fracture of the left hip. I desire to make no implications, but I wish to state that the patient walked into the hospital when I saw him and walked out. I found him only to be intoxicated, although not stuporous, and to be suffering from bruises. There was no evidence of fracture and, I repeat, the patient walked. Previously during the day the receiving office of the hospital had notified me that there were only three empty beds in the male surgical wards and asked me to admit only emergencies. Any patient who is mildly intoxicated and walks perfectly well cannot be said, as you did, "to have been found apparently seriously ill," and can certainly not be considered an emergency. In passing, let me state that it is no more work for me to admit a patient than to refuse him. I was acting in the interests of the hospital when I refused him.

The next morning the patient was still well enought to walk to court to be fined and to return. After his return he began to complain of being ill. The police then called me and I advised them to bring him back. This must have been around noon, and the police did not return with him until early in the evening. Where was he all this time? And yet your article states that repeated efforts had been made to get medical attention. If the police said this they were liars; if they didn't say so, your reporter did.

Testimony further showed that the police took the patient to the Bridewell hospital after calling me and there were refused admission because the man was a stretcher case. What sort of a hospital is it, I wonder, that refuses patients who are confined to stretchers, and what sort of a newspaper is it that lays the blame at the door of the hospital that refused him when he was able to be up and around?

I ask you to publish this letter to help remove a certain portion of what I consider undeserved stigma. In regard to my qualifications I might ironically add that, about one year ago, your paper thought well enough of me to publish my picture because of the fact that I wrote the best examination paper among the applicants for county internships that year. I also feel quite strongly that an apology is due me in your "Beg Your Pardon" section as an indication that you are willing to suffer for your mistakes as you attempted to make me do for what you wrongly considered mine. DR. J. C. EHRLICH,
Intern, Cook County Hospital.

THE RED HAMMER.

Chicago, May 28.—In your editorial entitled "Moscow Rebukes Hitler" you refer to the sickle and wheat as being emblematic of the soviet union. Is it possible that the Reds have thrown away their hammer or is the editorial writer in error? H. P.

DEFENSE OF THE TVA.

Chicago, May 27.—We read your article in the May 20 issue of THE TRIBUNE, under the scare head "TVA Waste." As you mentioned our company we feel that we have a right to make a comment. This article was evidently written by some one who is not at all familiar with the construction field and is, therefore, exceedingly unfair. We believe that if this work was investigated by experienced, fair minded construction engineers, with no regard to politics or prejudice, it would present an entirely different picture.

Naturally we want all the business that properly belongs to us, but in all fairness we are obliged to admit that after studying the job we sometimes find the only machine we have to offer is not the best type for the particular work. If another machine especially designed for the work is available we are not entitled to the business. If the engineers in charge of this job find a tool better designed for the requirements of this job and purchase it at a figure higher than our bid we think they used good judgment.

We cannot help but feel that your article has done many men a great injustice and we are not in favor of your policy of printing only one side of a story for political reasons.

H. M. CAPRON,
President, Equipment Corp. of America.

THE TURNING TIDE.

Dubuque, Ia., May 24.—I was much interested in reading the fine editorial in THE TRIBUNE this morning commenting on the bonus. It was a very clever statement, both ethically and politically, of the facts.

The tide is beginning to turn against the administration and if the Republican party will handle the situation with just average intelligence I believe there is not money enough in the country to prevent the defeat of the President next year.

What we need for a candidate is a man who is absolutely sound on fundamentals; with good political sense; the best vote getter available, and one who will not unduly arouse the opposition of any of those classes of voters who will be inclined to vote against Roosevelt.

Some of the party leaders should interest themselves sufficiently to prevent the nomination of a candidate who could not possibly be elected. With the right man at the head of our ticket, and a vigorous campaign, I feel confident we will win. JOHN T. ADAMS.

BACK TO McGUFFEY.

Wheaton, Ill., May 27.—Back in 1933 I wrote Vox Poppa to say I would like to see a new edition of McGuffey readers in use in the public schools again. Permit me to quote from Boston's Journal of Education:

"McGuffey's readers, with which father used to wrestle in his school days, ranked today among the pills a Wisconsin legislator would administer to a world sick with depression.

"Senator John E. Cashman urged: 'No textbooks since have equaled those readers. Every lesson had a moral to it. They taught love of country and didn't criticize the government. There's too much criticism and not enough patriotism given the children now.'"

These readers might be able to teach a little honesty, too. We could use some in these days of graft. PORTIA GILPIN.

OUT OF THE MORASS.

Chicago, May 29.—Praises be to Old Glory and to our Supreme court of our United States! Millions of loyal Americans would bow to the ground before our great supreme body and utter their heartfelt thanks for the message that the constitution still lives at Washington, as it does in the hearts of the people. Lead us out of the morass and into the kingdom of business activity with a job for every one who wants to work.

BELIEVE 10 DEAD AS FLOODS HIT COLORADO TOWNS

Heavy Rains Send Rivers Out of Banks.

BULLETIN.

Glendo, Wyo., May 31 [Friday].—(AP)—An undetermined number of persons were reported to have been lost in flood waters near here early today. Ernest Adams, mayor of Glendo, was reported to have telephoned his wife that he saw two motor cars plunge into a washout, overturn and plunge down a swollen stream. He was reported unable to determine how many persons were in the two machines.

Colorado Springs, Colo., May 30.—(AP)—Torrential spring rains sent devastating floods rolling down creeks at the eastern edge of the Rocky mountains late today, sweeping three persons to their deaths, leaving seven missing and paralyzing transportation and communication.

Rushing down Fountain and Monument creeks, the flood waters covered parts of the southern residential section of this city to a depth of eight feet.

Most of the deaths were in this vicinity. The crest on Fountain creek moved on to Pueblo, scene of a disastrous flood fifteen years ago, but families were moved out of the lowlands there and the crisis was believed past tonight.

List of Dead and Missing.

The dead:

Mrs. A. E. Clark, Colorado Springs.

Unidentified man and woman, swept from the top of their automobile at the Nevada avenue bridge. The woman was said possibly to be Eunice Wennermarck, Pueblo violinist.

The missing:

V. Cimino, reported hurled from his horse by rushing water.

Mrs. V. Armstrong, 32.

Ennis Minson, 11.

Mabel Miller.

Buddy Miller.

Esther Towsley.

Mrs. Oscar White, 30.

All the missing are Colorado Springs residents.

Capt. Pete Cramer of the Colorado Springs fire department, who once was believed to have drowned when engaged in rescue work, made his way to safety.

Cherry Creek Flooded.

Cherry creek, which bisects Denver, was flooded by the rain. Its stage above the city was described tonight as greater than that of two years ago, when it wrecked several bridges and caused considerable property damage in Denver.

Elbert, a small village 26 miles east of here, was struck with stunning effect by a water wall that moved down Kiowa creek. Dot Wetmore, a plucky telephone operator who stuck by her post as most of the town's 300 residents fled to the hills, said she saw eight business buildings and scores of residences crumble before the torrent.

Power, gas, and water facilities were restored partly to Colorado Springs as the crest of the flood passed tonight. Highway and rail trafic to the south still was blocked by wrecked bridges and inundated roadbeds.

Relief Forces Get Busy.

Firemen, police, CCC and relief forces joined in relief work and city officials reported the city would be able to take care of its homeless without outside help.

Heaviest property damage here was along the creeks which combine a short distance from the city and flow through it just west of the business section. Many houses were wrecked, some carried away by the flood, others heavily damaged by water and silt.

At Pueblo 400 American Legionnaires, Red Cross emergency men, and FERA workers patrolled the lowlands, ordering residents to evacuate.

Officials of the Colorado State hospital quickly removed 300 patients from the annex of the eastern outskirts of Pueblo when Fountain creek waters swirled over part of the grounds, damaging outlying property.

Stunt Flyer Goes Into Spin and Dies in Crash

Wahpeton, N. D., May 30.—(AP)—Wesley H. Rupp, 29, of Wahpeton, was killed here late today when the airplane he was piloting went into a tailspin at 500 feet and crashed into a cornfield near the State School of Science airport. The ship spun during a barrel-roll stunt.

Hurt in Parachute Jump.

Montpelier, Ind., May 30.—(AP)—G. S. Buchanan, cadet pilot of Selfridge field, Mich., received minor injuries today when he jumped with a parachute from his blazing plane.

FEAR TWO DEAD WHEN FREIGHTER AND TUG CRASH

New York, May 30.—[Special.]—Two men are missing and believed drowned, and eight others were rescued after a collision early today in the Hudson river near Peekskill which resulted in the sinking of the tugboat Russell No. 2 of the Newtown Creek Towing company of Brooklyn.

The tugboat, under the command of Capt. Walter Stilwagon of Broad Channel, Long Island, was proceeding south towing an empty oil barge when she came in collision with the motorship Chester of the Ford Motor company, northbound with a cargo of 1,600 tons of sugar.

As the two boats drew together bow on the shock threw Capt. Stilwagon and seven members of his crew, who were on deck at the time, into the river. The tugboat heeled over and sank within a few minutes. The two who are missing, Sigri Anderson, 35 years old, and Thomas Moran, 38, both of New York, are believed to have been asleep in their bunks and trapped.

Capt. K. T. McUeeley of the freighter launched boats immediately and picked up the survivors, who were taken ashore at West Point and removed to the Cornwall hospital. Six of them were able to leave after treatment, but Capt. Stilwagon and the tug's engineer, John Davies, had been injured in the crash and remained.

BLIND MAN DIES AFTER FALL.

Andrew Johnson, 69 years old, a blind man, tripped on a carpeting in his home at 1247 East 46th street, several days ago, fell and fractured his hip. Complications set in, and he died yesterday at his home.

SECOND VICTIM DIES AFTER GAS BLAST AT WELL IN MICHIGAN

Mount Pleasant, Mich., May 30.—[Special.]—A blazing gas well trapped nine men last night in the Millbrook oil field. Two are dead and another is not likely to recover. They were working at a derrick when the gas ignited.

Two who died in a local hospital are: William A. Williamson, 55, a driller, who came here from Sistersville, W. Va., and Milton Santee, 35, a tool dresser, of the same state. C. W. Trowbridge, 37, of Logan, O., assistant drilling superintendent, is likely to die. The men were striving to cap the well when the fire started. James Hamilton, 37, a tool dresser, of Mount Pleasant, is among the more seriously injured. The well is said to be the largest in the Millbrook field.

Lightning Hits Naval Radio Station; Operator Is Dazed

CRISTOBAL, C. Z., May 30.—Radioman George Alfred Massaro had a close call yesterday when lightning struck and set fire to the operating room at the naval radio direction finder station at Toro Point, across Limon bay from Colon. Massaro was wearing head phones when his set was struck. He was shocked and dazed. A downpour quenched the flames.

ARREST 2 WOMEN AND 4 MEN AFTER BRAWL IN TAVERN

Two women and four men were arrested on disorderly conduct charges yesterday as the aftermath of a battle over money in the Subway café, 509 North Wabash avenue.

All six are to be arraigned before Municipal Judge Edgar A. Jonas in the Women's court today. They are: Daniel J. Dore, 49 years old, 1525 East 71st place, bartender in the café; William Riley, 34, of 2124 Hudson avenue; George Kilman, 21; Charles Spurlock, 32, of 3516 Pine Grove avenue; Miss Joan Huber, 22, of 535 Cornelia avenue, and Mrs. Irene Meyers, 31, of 422 Melrose street.

Spurlock, who entered the place with Miss Huber and Mrs. Meyers, complained to Dore that his change from a $10 bill had been taken from the bar. A fist fight ensued, in which Riley and Kilman joined. When matters livened Spurlock was struck on the head with a blackjack, he said, and Miss Huber was struck in the ear. She later claimed $8 had been taken from her purse. Policemen arrested all six after failing to establish who was responsible for the fight.

PREACHER-KILLER TO BE EXTRADITED FROM LOUISIANA

Texan Held for Slaying of Police Chief.

De Ridder, La., May 30.—[Special.]—Declaring he would use every legal means to prevent being turned over to Orange county, Tex., authorities, the Rev. Edgar Eskridge, crusading Baptist minister, who can write his name with bullets from a "six gun," tonight said he would return to Texas willingly with rangers. He is held here for Texas authorities on a charge of having shot and killed Ed J. O'Reilly, police chief of Orange. Gov. James V. Allred today requisitioned his extradition.

Talking freely of his past life and disclosing that he formerly was a lawyer, captain of cavalry during the world war, federal prohibition agent, and member of the rangers, the Rev. Mr. Eskridge refused to discuss the killing of O'Reilly, whom he recently had baptized.

Early Sunday morning the Baptist crusader led a party of friends in a raid on a night club. At that time he represented himself to be a ranger. Many threats against his life had been received and he was going about the streets armed. Tuesday when he appeared on the streets of Orange carrying two guns O'Reilly disarmed him and placed him under arrest.

It was said resentment over the arrest had caused the minister to kill his close friend, whom he always had defended from his pulpit, while assailing other law enforcement officials, charging them with laxity.

SHOPPERS HUNT FOOD BARGAINS IN RETAIL MART

Sales Cause Prices to Show Variation.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Open season is on for bargain hunters in city and suburban retail groceries and butcher shops. Sales in many stores during the last two weeks have caused prices to fluctuate. This has encouraged consumers to take their baskets and search for the low priced foods.

Bargain sales held last week on many grocery and meat counters will be repeated again today and tomorrow. Not all stores are featuring the same articles of food.

In contrast to the recent boycott among meat consumers resulting in the closing of many butcher shops in New York City, dozens of Chicago butchers in cooperation with local packers, are holding sales and are offering choice cuts of beef at reduced prices. Most kinds of fresh and frozen fish are lower in many shops than they were last week

List Lower Prices.

Retailers generally have lowered prices since last week on American cheese, oranges, bananas, radishes, green onions, carrots, asparagus and cantaloupe. Some have marked their prices down on butter, lemons, celery, grapefruit, and lower grades of sliced bacon.

Prices have been raised in most stores on fresh spinach, green beans, fresh peas and strawberries. In some places tomatoes are higher than they were a week ago, while other dealers are offering them at about the same price.

The quality of fresh tomatoes is not as high as it was earlier in the season. This is due to unfavorable weather conditions which have checked ripening in the southern states. Head lettuce prices also vary in the different stores; some of the variation is due to quality. A few stores are offering lettuce poor in quality and high in price.

Lamb and Pork Higher.

While many of the high grade beef cuts are on the bargain counter, lamb and pork roasts are higher than last week.

With wholesale sugar prices collapsing under the sharpest break in ten years in New York early in the week, housewives may expect lower retail rates during the busy canning season.

These lower quotations, however, have not yet reached local retail stores generally. There will be found a variation in retail prices today and tomorrow. Some retailers cut rates as much as 2 cents on a 10 pound cloth bag this week, while others did not change their price tags.

Fresh strawberries are of good quality, but the supply is beginning to dwindle. They still are coming from Illinois, Indiana, and Kentucky. Next week merchants expect shipments from Michigan.

High Quality Raspberries.

Shipments of high quality raspberries are increasing and prices are coming down. Market experts point out that this fruit is low enough in price to compete favorably with strawberries.

Lower quotations on fresh vegetables may be expected soon. Unfavorable weather interferred with planting for early vegetables in the great gardening area around Chicago, and cool weather has retarded growth. However, home grown products are about ready to harvest and liberal supplies are expected to be brought in by local gardeners next week.

BARBECUED MEAT BEGS FOR PEPPY TYPE OF SAUCE

Home Cooks Petition for Zestful Recipe.

"Carving Made Simple," a booklet containing instructions for carving sixteen varieties of meat, fowl, and fish, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 2 cents. By mail, 3 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Has the barbecue spirit become that of amateurs as well as professionals? Our letters of the last month or so would seem to indicate affirmatively. In almost every mail comes a request for a barbecue sauce for home preparation. Some of them probably are going to be used at small roadside inns and possibly at more imposing establishments, but the home barbecue-ers lead in number.

Incidentally it's rather fun to see how wayside "Bar-B-Que" stands have influenced the spelling of that word. In almost all of the letters it was written just that way—and a good idea, in this editor's mind, for the hyphenated word is a pleasant one to roll over the tongue.

More important is the question of finding a barbecue sauce which pleases the tongue as much as does the word. For real, honest barbecued meat, roasted whole on a rotisserie (a rotating device which cooks the meat before or over an open fire), or for steak patties, wieners, liver, and other less rugged fare here's the taste teasing sauce we'd recommend:

Barbecue Sauce.

1 cup water
1 cup vinegar
1½ cups tomato juice
½ cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons oil or bacon drippings
1 teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon chop suey sauce

The list of ingredients may be long, but the actual combination is easy. Simmer the green pepper for a minute or so in the hot oil or drippings, blend in all the seasonings, and add the water, vinegar, and tomato juice. Let the sauce come to the boiling point slowly, over a low heat, and conclude the cooking after a three minute boiling. During the roasting baste the meat frequently with the sauce.

This sauce with baked liver is something that home barbecue enthusiasts shouldn't miss. Such a highly seasoned mixture isn't for coaxing youngsters to eat their liver, like dear sweet children, but it has been known to create a reconciliation in grownups with stronger digestions and former prejudices.

But just to even things up let's give the youngsters a break in the way of a pretty little dessert trick. As a party dessert, even as highlight refreshments of a children's party, these fruit filled baskets arouse young imaginations as well as appetites:

Posy Baskets.

4 large oranges
1 banana
½ cup crushed pineapple, canned or fresh
8 marshmallows
1 package lime flavored gelatin dessert

Cut off the tops of the oranges about one inch down from the stem end. Carefully remove all of the orange pulp (a sharp curved grapefruit knife is good for this) and cut the skinned segments into small pieces. Notch the edge of the baskets with a sharp knife. Then combine the orange pulp with the sliced banana, the pineapple, and half the marshmallows, quartered. Fill the baskets about two-thirds full of this fruit mixture. Meanwhile you will have prepared the gelatin dessert according to the directions on the package. When this is firm and cold break it finely with a knife and completely fill the orange baskets with broken gelatin. Use the remaining marshmallows for daisy petals, snipping the long slender strips from their edges with wet scissors. Put a yellow gumdrop in the center of the broken gelatin and arrange the white petals around it. Serve cold.

Marshmallow place cards for a children's party are pretty tricks, too. With scissors dipped in hot water cut a cavity about the size of a marble into the center of each fat marshmallow. Dilute a few drops of red, green, or yellow vegetable coloring, and with a toothpick paint criss-cross lines on the sides of the hollowed marshmallows to represent basketry. Cut long gum drops into flexible strips for a handle, fill the basket with tiny colored candies, and moisten to stick to a place card.

SPRING GRILLED SUPPER.

3 eggs, well beaten
3 tablespoons top milk.
3 tablespoons butter.
Salt and pepper to taste.
3 tomatoes, peeled.
9 slices toast.
6 slices bacon.

Combine the eggs, milk, and seasoning and scramble in the melted butter. Meanwhile have the tomatoes broiling and the toast browning. The tomatoes should have been peeled, cut in half, sprinkled with pepper and salt, and then placed in a pan under a hot broiler flame until partly cooked. Six of the toast slices should be cut into rounds and buttered and a broiled tomato half placed on each. Arrange these rounds on a hot platter. On top of each tomato pile a tablespoon of hot scrambled eggs and over that lay a curl of broiled bacon. Cut the other three toast slices in triangles, butter them, and use the sprigs of parsley as garnish.

RECIPE TELLS HOW TO MAKE RHUBARB JUICE

Lends Air of Tartness to Jellies, Sauces.

Rhubarb juice made from stalks too tough for other purposes may be canned now for use this summer in cooling fruit beverages, in combinations with other fruit juices to give tartness to jelly, and in jellied desserts and pudding sauces.

The New York state college of home economics suggests the following way to extract and preserve rhubarb juice:

Cut the rhubarb into small pieces, cover them with cold water, and cook slowly in a covered kettle until they are soft. Strain by pouring the cooked fruit into a jelly bag, and allow the juice to drip overnight.

Permits Sediment to Settle.

This permits the sediment in the juice to settle. In the morning, carefully pour off the clear juice, and, if desired, clarify by passing it through three or four layers of cheesecloth.

Rhubarb juice is pasteurized if heated for 20 to 30 minutes at 160 to 170 degrees Fahrenheit. If desired, ½ to 1 cup of sugar may be added to each gallon of juice.

New Rubbers To Be Used.

Place a new rubber on each jar, adjust the cover, and partly seal by adjusting only the upper clamp or by slightly screwing the lid.

Place the jars on a rack in a large kettle of water; be sure that the water covers the jars to a depth of at least 1 inch. Count the processing time when the water reaches a temperature of 160 to 170 degrees Fahrenheit. Pasteurize pints for 20 minutes and quarts for 30 minutes. Remove the jars from the water bath and seal them completely. Cool them as rapidly as possible away from all drafts. Rhubarb juice made in this way is usually diluted before it is served.

NEW NUT BREAD RECIPE HELPS USE SOUR MILK

Sour milk as well as sweet finds its way into the recipes collected by Dr. P. Mabel Nelson, head of the foods and nutrition department at Iowa State college, for she is a firm believer in using plenty of milk in the diet.

Butterscotch nut bread, one of the recipes she recommends, was tried out by a class in advanced foods. It is made with sour milk. The recipe:

BUTTERSCOTCH NUT BREAD.

2 eggs, well beaten.
2 cups light brown sugar.
2 cups sour milk.
4 cups of flour.
3 tablespoons butter.
1 teaspoon soda.
2½ teaspoons baking powder.
½ teaspoon salt.
1 cup walnut meats.

Beat eggs, add sugar, then milk and melted butter, and rest of ingredients. Place in loaf pans and bake in a slow oven 45 to 50 minutes.

Tribune Recipes

STRAWBERRY AND PINEAPPLE JAM.

2 cups crushed fresh strawberries.
2 cups fresh or canned pineapple.
3 pounds sugar.
½ bottle liquid pectin.

Wash and hull the strawberries and crush them to a pulp. Use crushed canned pineapple or finely cut fresh pineapple. Combine the sugar and fruit in a large kettle and bring them to a full boil over a hot fire, stirring constantly. Boil hard for one minute, then remove from the stove and stir in the pectin. Now, for the next five minutes stir and skim by turns. This will cool the mixture a little and prevent floating fruit. At the end of this time, turn the jam quickly into sterile jelly glasses and seal at once with hot parafin. About 10 medium sized glasses will be needed.

MANY VARIETIES OF SALADS; NEW ONE EVERY DAY

Booklets by Mary Meade Are Available.

Just as the chain letters jumped from a mere one or two to an infinite number, so are there an immeasurable number of salad possibilities. Do a little figuring with these numbers—38 salad dressings, 22 fruits, 27 vegetables—and even though you're a poor mathematician you will see that by combining different ones each time it is possible to serve a new salad every day of the year.

The 38 aforementioned salad dressings are in Mary Meade's booklet, "Simple Salad Dressings." Many of the dressings are variations of French dressing and mayonnaise and may be made with home made dressings or mixed in a jiffy with commercial dressings.

SCALLOPED FRANKFURTERS AND CORN.

5 frankfurters.
2 cups canned corn.
1 cup medium white sauce.
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento or green pepper.
½ cup buttered cracker crums.

Cut the frankfurters into one-half inch lengths and brown them slightly in a little fat in a frying pan. In a buttered casserole arrange alternate layers of canned corn, white sauce, and frankfurter pieces. Season the layers. Also scatter the minced pimiento or green pepper over each. Sift the buttered crums over the top and bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] for 30 minutes.

CROWDS ATTEND NUDIST COLONY AT PACIFIC FAIR

San Diego, Cal., May 30.—(AP)—Crowds paid "two bits" a head today to enter Zoro garden, where nudists abound, at the California-Pacific International exhibition. But the spectators found the forces of the law had tamed some of the roar out of "Gold Gulch," where police said there had been gambling. Gone was the faro bank from the stamp mill of "Gold Gulch." So was the roulette wheel, while the Chinese laundry, in which a lottery had been started only yesterday, was boarded up.

It was estimated that at least half of the 60,000 exposition visitors during the first day visited the nudists.

While the gambling devices of the gulch were gathering dust a beaten path marked by a thousand feet grew dusty along the back yard fence of Zoro garden.

John Trainer Weds June 29 in Stockholm

Sails Tuesday for Marriage to Swedish Girl.

BY JUDITH CASS.

NEXT Tuesday in New York City John Milton Trainer Jr. is embarking for Europe with two of his friends and when he returns the end of July he will bring a lovely Swedish girl with him as his bride. Miss Barbro Gyllenkrok, a member of an aristocratic Stockholm family, and Mr. Trainer are to be married late in the afternoon of June 29 at the altar of Hedvig Eleonora, a Stockholm church.

A reception will follow at the residence of Miss Gyllenkrok's parents, the Hon. Col. and Mrs. Knut Sperling Goran Gyllenkrok, which is also in the Swedish capital city. Mr. Trainer will have Andrew McNally III. and Truman W. Morsman of Omaha, who are going abroad with him, for his groomsmen.

All of these plans have been made by Mr. Trainer and Miss Gyllenkrok by way of trans-Atlantic letter. He has not heard, however, who Miss Gyllenkrok's attendants will be, but it has been decided that the wedding couple will go north to the land of the midnight sun on their wedding journey and then spend a week or more in Norway. After this Mr. Trainer will bring his bride to this country and to Chicago's north shore, where they are to make their home in a house yet to be selected.

Taking the Kungsholm across to Sweden, Mr. Trainer, Mr. McNally, and Mr. Morsman will disembark June 12 at Gothenburg and there they will be met by Miss Gyllenkrok and her father and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pope Jr. Young Mr. and Mrs. Pope left several weeks ago to go abroad and they are extending their trip to be in Stockholm for the wedding.

Plan Motor Trip Through Denmark.

The Gyllenkroks, with their American guests, will leave Gothenburg by motor for Copenhagen, visiting a number of small villages en route. After several days in Denmark's capital they will wend their way back north again, stopping for visits with at least four families who are friends of the Gyllenkroks and who live in castles that are now more generally known as châteaux.

These visits will be somewhat curtailed for Miss Gyllenkrok and her father want to have their guests back in Stockholm in time for the celebration of Midsummer day, June 24. This is a festival observed throughout Europe, but it takes on special gayety in Sweden.

Peasants flock into the cities and bigger villages by the thousands. Houses are decorated with birch leaves and the graceful, white stemmed branches are used to outline the doorways. There is dancing around midsummer poles . . . Maypoles in this country . . . garlanded with green and topped with blue and yellow, Sweden's national colors. The festival celebrates the nativity of St. John the Baptist.

Chicago and the north shore will not be foreign to Miss Gyllenkrok when she comes here a bride in July, for she was here the summer of 1933 to represent her government at A Century of Progress. It was during this visit that she and Mr. Trainer met.

Tell Engagement of Frances Crandell.

An engagement of interest that is being announced today in Oak Park is that of Miss Frances Reese Crandell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Burton Crandell of 329 Clinton avenue, to Hyde Perce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hyde Wallace Perce, whose home is at 216 North Grove avenue in Oak Park.

Miss Crandell, a tall, slim brunette, was graduated from Smith college in the class of 1928. Since then she has

A LAD named Clinton Burchette of Route 3, Benton, Ky., wrote on a strawberry box that turned up in the kitchen of a Chicago restaurant that he was crazy to marry. His message was repeated in this space. That young Clinton should look in his own strawberry patch before wooing in the far-off hills is indicated by the message on the back of the box that held the Sunday strawberries of Paul Davis, bought at the neighborhood green grocery. It read:

Romance—Eyeful—Ball—Dancer.

"Hazel Darnall, Benton, Ky. Route 1. I am a girl weigh 95 pounds and 16 years of age. A student of Benton High school.

A DIGNIFIED looking woman —middle aged, gray haired, and stout—gave dancers in the Joseph Urban room a shock a few evenings ago. Her dress was a becoming gray and orange chiffon, her hair was neatly waved. Suddenly she gathered her chiffon dress up about her knees, exposing a length of gray satin slip. Evidently this did not facilitate her dancing enough, for suddenly she stopped dancing, took off her satin slippers, then went on dancing, the slippers dangling from her hand on her partner's back.

Accessories Take to White for Summer

Hats, Gloves, and Handbags Are Eye Catchers.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

White magic for all your summer street clothes! Dazzling white accessories that will make an eye catching success out of any simple or listless dark frock.

White hats that are the last word in summertime smartness, all of them with friendly brims to shade you from the sun.

White gloves that fit as smoothly as kidskin or your favorite doeskins, that tub as quickly as your handerchiefs.

White belts in every fabric and material imaginable.

And what is unquestionably the biggest assortment of white handbags ever unpacked.

Piqué is top interest for all these new summer hats, with linen, linen straw, and shiny white straw coming along in close succession. Piqué in the old fashioned narrow wales, and the new waffle pattern fashion some headline attractions that are well worth the excitement they are causing; in sailors with the crowns casually listing well toward the front, in trick small hats with big chenille dotted veils, for dark contrasts. Or in molded close-to-the-head small hats with unusual shapes that feature a front brim and a dark velvet headband arrangement for contrast.

White gloves are extremely effective in new weaves of washable material such as fine ribbed stuff with a short flaring cuff split to show the wrist, or the same sort of ribbed cotton with mesh palms and inside fingers.

Another new arrival to go out with trim tailored street suits and ensembles of linen or cotton are the short one button length gloves of smooth, rather heavy fabric resembling doeskin. The button is extra large and of white pearl and instead of clasping the glove in the usual position it fastens on top.

Capaciousness is featured in most of the white handbags, from the swanky white kidskins for dress parade to the white linens, the white patent lethers and the white wooden bead affairs. White linens made to match all of the high fashion linen suits and dresses are especially attractive this summer. They are available in every size and shape and style you might wish.

Fashion photograph . . . showing a trio of new white accessories. The kettle brim hat is of piqué with a blue cire satin bow. The cuffed gloves are called bracelet gloves because of the wrist monogram worn on one hand only. The material is fine ribbed wash cotton. The unusual pouched bag with hand straps is of soft kidskin. The short sleeved dark blue sheer linen blouse comes in other dark and pastel shades. All available in a Chicago shop.

Mrs. H. B. Gardner, Former Sarah Morgan, Is Bride

Princeton, N. J., May 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Junius Spencer Morgan of Constitution Hill, Princeton, today announced the marriage of her daughter, Mrs. Henry B. Gardner, to James L. Breese, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James L. Breese, of Southampton, N. Y. The ceremony was performed yesterday at Constitution Hill by the Rev. Tertius Van Dyke of Princeton, and was attended by the immediate families. Mrs. Gardner was given in marriage by her brother, Alexander Perry Morgan of New York. Mr. Breese had his brother, Sidney Breese, as best man. Mrs. Breese, the former Sarah Spencer Morgan, was married to the late Henry B. Gardner in 1914. Mr. Gardner died in 1932. Mr. Breese lives in Santa Fe, N. M.

Society Folk Brave Chill to Watch Races

A number of society folk braved the unpleasant weather yesterday to see the races at Washington Park.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hughes were among the early arrivals. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. Prentice Porter, Mrs. Paul Walker, Mrs. Marjorie Letts, and Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Eddy. They were rooting for Silent Shot to carry the Hughes silks to victory in the big handicap.

Mrs. Hughes wore a powder blue tailleur—in fact, the suit was the costume of the day for most of the feminine fans. Her soft tie of knotted silk was in red and white candy stripe and her hat was a felt breton sailor in navy blue.

Mrs. Walker wore a gray flannel suit and gray hat, beige hand knit sweater and a gray caracul coat. Mrs. Porter wore an oxford gray suit with full length belted coat in Russian effect and a black glace hat of coarse straw worn well back from the face, and a silver fox scarf. Mrs. Eddy was in black, with a large brimmed black hat. Mrs. Letts was in a blue suit with brown topcoat and hat.

One of the large dinner parties was that given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. McCulloch. They entertained for Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fisher of Detroit. Mrs. Fisher wore a blue ensemble and a gray kidskin coat. Mrs. McCulloch was in steel gray with a gray and black hat. Mrs. William Cummings wore an ensemble of three tones of blue with blue hat, and Mrs. Britton I. Budd wore dark blue with touches of white. Mrs. Joseph Savage was in a blue and white print and silver fox fur.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wright, just back from the east and the south, were at the track for the first time this season and entertained a group of guests. Mrs. Wright was another of the stylishly attired women who wore a gray suit.

James G. Condon, one of the directors of the track, was the host for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Aagard and Leonard Florsheim.

Mr. and Mrs. William Lyman Jr. also entertained, and Mrs. Lyman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Harding, had a party for Mr. and Mrs. John Pelley of New York and Washington.

Dr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Moorehead were with Mrs. Harold Cudney and Paul Dessimoz. Mr. and Mrs. Weymouth Kirkland and Mr. and Mrs. J. Clarke Dean came together.

Mrs. John Hertz wore an almost ankle length topcoat of tan suede. Steamer rugs were in vogue throughout the clubhouse, and Mrs. Wright's rug of blue and red and gray matched her ensemble.

Oak Park Party

MRS. A. MONACO.

Mrs. A. Monaco of 424 South Grove avenue, Oak Park, is general chairman of the card party to be given by the Oak Park Civic Symphony orchestra at the Elks' club, 938 Lake street, Oak Park, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. The proceeds of the party will be used to meet the deficit incurred by the orchestra during the last season. The party is the first ever given by the orchestra. Tickets may be procured by calling Euclid 721.

Schumann-Heink Tries Talkies, Forgets; Then Sings

Hollywood, Cal., May 30.—(AP)—After sixty years in opera and on the concert stage Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink yesterday made her debut in motion pictures, forgot her lines, cried, and went home. Today she sang for "her boys" at the Memorial day program in the Coliseum.

Edith Mason to Go Camping in New England

New York, May 30.—(AP)—A "terrific urge" to go camping in the New England woods is bringing back Edith Mason, lyric soprano, to the American opera stage after years of "exile" in the music centers of Europe.

A native of St. Louis, she has been engaged for next season at the Metropolitan, where she made her degut in 1917, but left to sing leading rôles with continental companies.

"The grandest life in the world," she said today of her prospective camping trips. "Sitting around in the hot sand of the Lido all day and then getting dressed for the casino in the evening didn't appeal to me at all. I'm too American to change. I'd rather go fishing."

While at the "Met" she was married to Georgio Polacco, conductor, who "fell in love with my blonde wig as Macaela in 'Carmen.'" Their daughter Graziella, now 9 years old, was born in Italy.

"I am very happy to come back to America," Miss Mason continued, "and to rear my child as an American.

"I think the Metropolitan should be for American singers—when they are ready for it. I don't believe in making it a training school for young singers, but if you have worked all over the world you should have a chance in your own country."

Her favorite rôle is Cho-Cho-San in "Madame Butterfly."

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

With our passion for violet eye shadow you can be sure that our sales resistance to a new amethyst mascara and a matching shadow was absolutely nil. We fell like the well known ton of bricks, but we've never been sorry. We think it looks swell on us of an evening, and even those among our friends who have a bit of the tabby in them have admired it.

If you feel that amethyst mascara is just too much please take our word for it that it isn't a bit garish. On some blue-eyed and many brown-eyed it's grand but not a bit gaudy, especially under evening lights. It gives the eyes a depth of color and a soulful violet shadow that we think is a knockout.

The shadow to match it intensifies the effect. We do wish this shadow was "spreadier" than it is, but then we have something of a complex on that subject. Eye shadows can't be too creamy in texture where we're concerned. If they are nice and moist the most inexperienced can apply them with deftness and then, too, there is no pulling on the eyelid. The color of this one is excellent—rather a deep violet that does delightful things for certain eyes.

You can try this shadow and mascara in the little makeup salon in one of our loop stores which features the products. This is an extremely pleasant arrangement, because you won't be going off on theory when you do invest in the things. In eye makeup especially it's important to have an actual trial of what you'd like. You never know beforehand because the flat rules that the blue-eyed can wear this and the brown-eyed that don't always work in practice.

Two Chicago Youths Awarded Prizes in Contests at Yale

Two Yale university students from the Chicago territory were honored last night in mathematics and literature, dispatches from New Haven, Conn., said. William C. Childs, son of George W. Childs, 850 North Sheridan road, Highland Park, an insurance man, was awarded the Benjamin F. Barge mathematical prize. It is given annually to a student for the best solution of original problems.

William is a freshman at Yale.

The other prize winner is Albert N. Williams Jr. of 350 Winnetka avenue, Winnetka. His father is president of the Chicago and Western Indiana railway. He was awarded the John Hubbard Curtis prize for literary or rhetorical work on assigned topics. His one-act play, "Recapture," won the recognition for Williams, who is a junior.

His mother said he had not notified them that he was to receive the prize.

THE SLEEPING CHILD

By Alice Grant Rosman.

SYNOPSIS.

The girls of the Chevening family of Fendon Edge are pursuing careers. Pauline producing plays; Eleanor is studying medicine; Jenny, the youngest, runs a hat shop and changes fiancés now and then. Audrey, an orphaned cousin, with a talent for design, has for fifteen years been as a daughter to Anne and George Chevening, the girls' parents. Audrey becomes engaged to Miles Buchanan. Miles has been forced, through adversity, to shut up most of the Priory, his inherited home. He and Geoffrey Burton are partners in a stock breeding venture. Albert King, wealthy newcomer to Fendon, wants to buy the ruins of an ancient monastery on the Priory grounds. Anne Chevening had been in love with Audrey's father, Hector Chevening. Her parents had broken up the romance and persuaded her to marry his cousin. Later Hector, a victim of the war and penniless, had brought his wife and child to visit the Chevenings, at George's invitation. Anne still loved Hector and knew he still loved her. Shortly after they left, Hector shot his wife and himself. Neighbors had heard them quarrel. Audrey was in the next room, apparently asleep. No one ever spoke to her of the tragedy. Anne loves Audrey as her own child, but her sense of guilt has formed a barrier between them. When the engagement is announced, gossip begins. Miss Dorset, Miles' aunt, has stated that Audrey's father was killed by the Turks. Miss Fell, village gossip, calls Audrey a cuckoo in the nest. Both remarks are overheard by the rector's children, Minx and Binks. They come to Fendon Edge for a visit and repeat the remarks to Audrey. Eleanor brings home a detective magazine with a lurid cover of a murdered woman and carelessly leaves it before Audrey. Audrey fears that Geoffrey Burton, who has become a woman hater since the desertion of his faithless wife, will break up partnership with Miles when they marry.

INSTALMENT XXXV.

THE FINAL AWAKENING.

Audrey slept well that night, youth and exhaustion prevailing, and came down cheerfully in the morning to another big mail, from which she read out choice extracts every now and then. All the society photographers were treading on each other's heels in their earnest desire to add a study of her to their portrait galleries, and several gave her to understand that an early sitting was urgently needed for supply to the press.

"No royal academician has offered to paint me yet. I feel hurt," she said. . . . Now this is more like it—check with compts."

It was belated payment for a drawing sold last year and almost given up for lost, a very heartening communication therefore.

The next letter was headed rather mysteriously: "The Stars Never Lie."

The writer, who had given a lifetime of study to the heavens and was now apparently hand in glove with them, wished for the modest sum of three guineas to cast her horoscope and disclose the important events which he had already discovered to be in store for her. "There are dangers to be averted. Do not delay!" read Audrey dramatically.

"Such fellows ought to be locked up," said her uncle indignantly. "Charlatans! Destroy it, my dear."

"But what a risk," began Audrey, pretending to be impressed and enjoying his discomforture. "With three guineas under my nose to avert the danger, too. . . . Ah, well, perhaps I'll get a lower offer."

George, watching her as she opened her three remaining letters, saw her stare at the opening of the first, then turn to the signature, fold the sheet and slip it into its envelope unread.

Suspecting more chicanery, he inquired:

"What next?" But Audrey was already deep in a closely written page, and did not respond at once.

"Um? . . . O, these are congratulations of sorts . . . They are not really fit for your young ears. I have such lurid friends. . . . They're being terribly clever about the holiday I didn't have, and want to know if Miles is knock-kneed and swivel-eyed, that I've been keeping him dark, and when the twins are due."

She went secretly to her room and locked the note in her desk.

That successfully silenced her uncle's inquiries, and if she spoke rather hurriedly he did not notice. Her aunt, too, was safely engrossed with a letter of her own, and Eleanor uninterested. Audrey, reading and re-reading the two letters of congratulation, and hiding the third, felt that the meal would never come to an end.

When it did she went down into the shrubbery where she was hidden from view and extracted the third letter, she looked at it again

"Dear Audy——"

It was this form of address, familiar yet unfamiliar—vaguely unpleasant, too—which had given her warning at breakfast to hide the letter away. For she had not been called by this stupid diminutive since long ago, before the days of Fendon Edge, or thought of the name, signed with a flourish, at the end.

". . . Perhaps now you are a grownup young lady and going to be married, I should say 'Dear Miss Chevening'," began the writer, "but you will always be little Audy to me, and I hope you haven't forgotten your 'Uncle Bert' and the happy days at Eastbourne the last year of the war and what times we had together. Your mother was a kind friend to your old uncle on leave, and I've often wished I had gone over the top as she did, poor girl. The world has not been any too kind to me since, and that's a fact, but it is good to know that you are happy and prosperous, little Audy, and going to marry a fine fellow as I'm sure he is.

"Forgive me for troubling you at such a time, but I'm out of a job. Things could hardly be worse with me, and if out of the goodness of your heart you could spare a fiver for your mother's sake it would be a godsend to your old friend, HERBERT BLESSON, ex-Capt., R. A. F.

"Address c/o Jinks, Newsagent, Barrow Street, London, E. C. 16."

An hour and a half later Mrs. Chevening met Audrey just coming into the house. She had been searching for her everywhere and exclaimed:

"Where have you been? Your parcel has come from Maple's, and Amy Jones will be ready any minute now. I've sent it to the sewing room."

"I'll go up," stammered Audrey, avoiding her aunt's glance.

"Dreamer!"

The word followed her like a reproach, and a thousand other words from the same source, especially innocent in intention, were marshaled behind it and suddenly misinterpreted to her by the letter from the ex-Capt. R. A. F. who called himself Uncle Bert.

It had been left to this opportunist to encompass the final awakening of the sleeping child, carrying her memory back not only to Eastbourne, but to other places and other pseudo relationships, not at the time understood, but now all too plain to the adult mind of the girl.

This then was the reason for everything—what they did not want her to know, and why her aunt, though trying to be kind, was always so strange and rather . . . watching almost. As though she thought. . . . But Audrey could not face that just yet.

Running as though eager to be off to open her parcel, she turned at the top of the stairs to her own room instead, pulled the note from the front of her jumper and locked it away in an inner drawer of her desk. She did not know what she was going to do about it, but she wanted it out of her hands and shut away, as she would have shut it from her mind.

Her aunt would be waiting for her in the sewing room and wondering where she was; the Jones girl would be coming to make the curtains. As though this were something to hold on to, she fumbled in a drawer for the measurements Miggs had written down, and hurried out with them in her hand.

In the sewing room was Miss Jones, anæmic and a little nervous. Somehow this sight was a help to Audrey, so she was able to say in a natural tone:

"Good morning. No, please don't get up. I've only come to see my exciting parcel."

Miss Jones was helping to unroll and measure the two pieces of material, cheered by their bright colors.

"I expect you'll get rather tired of so many curtains," remarked Audrey, having shown Miss Jones exactly what she wanted her to do.

"O, no, Miss Chevening. I don't tire—I'm very wiry, really. These will be for your new home, I expect, and I wish you every happiness, I'm sure."

"Not at all, Miss Chevening. I heard about your marriage before your auntie wrote to me. I was at Miss Dorset's for the mending. A day a month I go to her, and I was all excited because my mother's brother was taken prisoner by the Turks, a sergeant-major, he was. Well, when they told me about your father, killed out there in the war by the same wretches, it drew me to you. It seemed sort of appropriate for me to be coming out to help with your sewing, when Mrs. Chevening's letter came, and I said to father: 'There, if that isn't a strange coincidence!'"

"Yes, it was, wasn't it?" said Audrey faintly, now seeing the origin of the Turk in a red fez introduced to her by the demons; but at this moment her aunt came in and the conversation was interrupted.

Making Choice of Proposals Is Difficult

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She is a woman nearing 30, whose years have been devoted largely to caring for dependent family members. This burden is now lifted and the woman finds herself pretty much alone as far as home life is concerned. There are two marriage prospects, curiously enough. One man is years older, the other 5 years younger. The older man has a fine position, she tells, money, and she has known him for five years as a man of estimable character.

His wife died a couple of years ago. There were no children. The younger man she has known only a year. He, too, represents the best in character and reputation. His salary at this time is small. There's nothing definite about the security of his job. Nevertheless, the woman believes that this younger man is the man who will make her happier or, to put it rightly, the latter is the man to whom she feels she would be happier married.

It's a problem and a rather serious one. The sentimentalists would advise the younger man and having one's fling at love's young dream, even a belated fling. The younger man naturally would have more fire, more enthusiasm, be more stimulating in many ways. But security is something we would like to see given a woman whose life, up to 30, has been spent doing for others. Not that a 5 year seniority in the woman's years is any argument against marriage, but coupled with insecurity and beginning all over again with a responsibility about making ends meet might just take the rosy edge off the love dream.

Of course, we may be talking all wrong. If you're the kind of woman who loves to do for others, nothing but that will keep you happy. And who knows, after all, what is security in this day of ours or what today's security will be tomorrow or a year, 2 or 5 from now. There's no reason to assume that marriage with the younger man wouldn't bring happiness.

been at the Institute for Juvenile Research, where she has been recognized for her splendid work. Mr. Perce was graduated from the University of Michigan in the class of 1926.

His parents are just back from a trip around the world on which they embarked the middle of the winter. Miss Crandell and Mr. Perce plan to be married late in June and then have a month's wedding trip.

As hostess with Mrs. Wardell Nelson Cronwall Sunday evening at a buffet supper party at the Oak Park Country club Miss Crandell will be showered with good wishes and Mr. Perce with congratulations. Mrs. Cronwall and Miss Crandell are giving the party for another of their Smith classmates, Miss Anna Armiger, who is to become the bride of Vernon Balch in a home ceremony Wednesday evening.

Annual Meeting of Red Cross Thursday.

Mrs. Frederic W. Upham's dramatic talents will come into play next Thursday when she portrays the spirit of the Red Cross in a colorful pageant that is to feature the annual meeting and the 20th anniversary celebration of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross. The meeting will be held at noon in the Gold ballroom of the Congress hotel.

Mrs. Upham, who is a member of the board of directors of the Chicago chapter and also of the board of incorporators of the national organization, will appear on the ballroom's large staircase with a cast of more than 100. Miss Margot Atkin, another director of the Chicago chapter, will be the narrator for the pageant.

James B. Forgan Jr., Chicago chapter chairman, will be the toastmaster at the breakfast that is to precede the pageant. Officers will be elected and the annual treasurer's report will be made by Col. Albert A. Sprague. The military band at Fort Sheridan will furnish the music. At 2 o'clock the meeting will be adjourned with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

Arranging the breakfast and pageant is a committee that includes Mrs. Ellen S. Ament, Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr., Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. C. Morse Ely, Mrs. Irene Sidley Hussey, Mrs. Charles Garfield King, Mrs. John MacMahon, and Mrs. Upham.

Tennis Tourney at River Forest.

Tennis-loving society will make the River Forest Tennis club its headquarters for the week of June 17-23, for at that time the club will be host to the national clay court championships of the United States Lawn Tennis association.

Outstanding among the social events of the tournament will be a tournament dinner-dance Wednesday, June 19.

Mrs. Earl J. Bush, whose husband is president of the River Forest club, is chairman of the social committee. Assisting her are Mrs. Henry R. Armstrong, Mrs. Ernest W. Badenoch, Mrs. John T. Barlow, Mrs. John R. Heindel, Mrs. Ernest R. Melchert, and Mrs. Wilfred C. Woodyard.

On Miss Jean Hyman's busy prenuptial calendar today there is the luncheon the Frank M. Gordons' daughters, Marion and Isabel, are giving at their parents' home. Tomorrow Miss Hyman and her fiancé, Lincoln Harris, are to be given a dinner-dance at the Saddle and Cycle club by Mr. Harris' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hayden B. Harris. Miss Hyman and Mr. Harris are to be married at 4:30 next Wednesday afternoon at the altar of St. James' church.

Mrs. Philip Loring Reed and her children are leaving next Thursday to spend the summer at their home in Marion, Mass. Mr. Reed will be with them at least a part of the time.

John Peale Bents at Virginia Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. John Peale Bent [Mary Reed] are among several young couples from all parts of the country honeymooning at Hot Springs in Virginia. Other Chicagoans at the Virginia resort include the Sterling Mortons, the James E. Bennetts, and Edmund J. Doering.

Mrs. William B. Schrauff will arrive from her Long Island home next week to visit her aunt, Mrs. James Otis Hinkley, in Lake Forest. Mrs. Hinkley plans to spend the summer in Lake Forest.

The Francis Peabody Butlers, who have been stopping with his mother, Mrs. Hermon B. Butler, in Winnetka, are moving tomorrow into a house at 580 Washington road, Lake Forest, which they have taken for the summer.

The Raymond O. Mitchells are moving tomorrow to the Wayne house of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III, to spend the summer. The Mitchells have an apartment on Astor street.

Smart Cotton for Afternoons

WOMAN'S DRESS.

One of the pretty printed cottons will make a lovely dress to wear afternoons, using this design. Sleeves have become unnecessary when there is a cape collar, for it covers the upper arm in the style of the moment. The long V of the collar, finished with a small bow, is a slenderizing detail.

The pattern, No. 2817, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure.

Lubrication Is Vital Factor in Care of the Complexion

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Once in a while a woman will write and tell me that she thinks all of this talk of facial care as advocated today is so much nonsense. Women of older generations, she will tell you, didn't even bother with a jar of cream. It was only a specialized group, the privileged class, who were able to have their chemists prepare a cream. And so on.

What such a correspondent forgets is that we live today in an entirely different environment than was our ancestors' better fortune. Too, it's a question in my mind, if they had such beauty of skin as is the universal rule today. I suspect that the hardy, weather beaten skin in their day was not a social handicap as it would be today. But their work was not so sedentary in character.

Even the housewife of today is denied such muscle toil as those ancestors knew, what with our labor saving devices and so on. They simply did not live in the hothouse environment in which our complexions are raised today. They didn't have the factory smoke and grime, the motor dust and dirt and, above all, they did not have the steam heated dwellings in which we are forced to live today.

Our whole living system is so artificially tuned that we have to adapt artificial methods to make up for those certain things our skins are normally denied. We just have to keep the skin lubricated with cosmetic oils or we become victims of dry skins, parched tissues, and early wrinkles. The plain truth is that the woman today, unless her skin is oily, who doesn't supply her skin with some lubricant and protection daily, looks the part. And if her skin is excessively oily, she has another trouble to combat.

I would like to make a special plea for more use of protective creams for the reason described above. You have to protect this hothouse skin you've raised against the high winds and the hot sun; against the soot and grime you can't keep out of pores any other way than by providing a screen through which the foreign particles can't seep. That screen and the protective measure against hot sun's rays and biting or burning winds must be a good protective cream.

Fields Makes 6 Films in Row; to Take Rest

Actor Without a Vacation During Series.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 30.—[Special.]—Bill Fields, whose health hasn't been too good during his last two pictures at Paramount, is going to celebrate completion of six films in a row without any vacation by the announced intention of going to the bayou country and spending a long layoff fishing and sitting. Fields' last two were "Mississippi" and "Everything Happens at Once." The southern flavor of the former intrigued him and if he can find a village where nothing happens once or any other time it will be okay with Bill.

Leona Maricle, stage brunette from New York, is being brought to play the feminine lead to Wallace Beery in "O'Shaughnessy's Boy" in her very first film. Metro is importing her, it is announced, because of her "vivid personality."

Helen Gahagan, just finished with her fine performance in Radio's "She," turned down that studio's offer of a long term contract because she "doesn't want to be tied down." Miss Gahagan said, "I want to be able to travel whenever I please," and is proving it by accompanying her husband, Melvyn Douglas, to the orient on a steamer leaving next week.

The adopted son of Ruby Keeler and Al Jolson has been brought home from the hospital and is out of danger. The baby's life was threatened by an infection of the inner ear. Miss Keeler delayed her departure for Annapolis for the Warner picture "Anchors Aweigh" until physicians told her she could leave the little fellow with perfect assurance by Monday.

A friend of John Barrymore here says the Dolores Costello divorce rift originated not because of cruelty, lagging love, financial trouble, or any other of the mentioned reasons, "but because John just couldn't stand it to look at any more diapers, and, being a Barrymore, couldn't think of any other way to get away except to follow an impulse to walk out and get as far away as he could." The friend won't permit use of his name. John and Dolores Barrymore have two infant children.

Norma Shearer's baby is expected in a week or ten days and the actress will resume film work as star in "Marie Antoinette" some time in July, according to studio announcement. . . . Gloria Stuart (Mrs. Arthur Sheekman) goes to Santa Monica hospital maternity ward next week.

The horses in Radio's studio's "Last Days of Pompeii" wear horseshoes made of rubber so their hoofs can be heard sharply but still won't drown out Preston Foster's dialog. . . . Jane Withers' mother informed her that her latest film, "Ginger," was to be previewed in Pasadena. "That's fine, mother," said 9 year old Jane, utterly unconcerned. "I wonder what the other picture on the bill will be."

Chick Chandler's real name is Fehmer Chandler. No wonder Chick talks, moves, and thinks fast. If he gave the other fellow time to ask questions he might be asked what his first name is.

Mrs. Jack Coogan Sr., with Jackie Jr. and her younger son, Robert, is making a long summer voyage from here to New York with Arthur Bernstein, manager of the Coogan interests. She plans to visit Mrs. Mary Coogan, mother of her husband, who was killed two weeks ago in an automobile accident here. The senior Mrs. Coogan lives in Syracuse, N. Y. . . . Jackie Coogan has practically recovered from injuries, including two ribs fractured, which he suffered in the accident that killed his father. . . . Jim Thorpe, Indian athlete, is a Roman centurion in "Pompeii."

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

THREESCORE YEARS AGO.

I happened to be browsing through an old work on auction by a very prominent authority of thirty years ago. Did you ever look through the family album and wonder how Aunt Samantha ever fell for high-collared, button-shoed, derby-hatted Uncle Will? Or how Uncle Will manevured Aunt Samantha and her bustle around sharp corners? There was something sweet and kindly in the bridge of that day. Everybody led honestly and trusted each other's leads, although the author did say at one point that declarers were very apt to be full of duplicity. Take the following hand, for example—you take it:

NORTH
♥9-5-4
♦A-6-3
♣7-6-5-2

WEST	EAST
♠K-J-10-2	♠Q-7-5
♥6-3	♥K-J-8-7
♦Q-J-7-5-4	♦K-8-2
♣9-8	♣K-Q-3

SOUTH
♠A-9-3
♥A-Q-10-2
♦10-9
♣A-J-10-4

South carried off the contract for one no trump. Remember, this is auction. West opened the five of diamonds, the fourth best of his longest and strongest suit. South refused to take for three rounds in order that "East might have no more of the suit." He then played a small club. East, of course, went up with the queen. South won and played back the jack, throwing East on lead.

Instead of trying to find his partner by a spade shift, East naturally returned the fourth best of his longest and strongest suit. Applying the "rule of eleven," the declarer found that West could not hold a heart above the seven spot. Therefore he passed the lead so as to take the trick in dummy with the nine spot. A heart was returned and the ten finessed. East at this point presumably shook his head and gave his partner a dazzling smile, saying: "Iguess that lead didn't work out." The ten of clubs was played, and dummy entered with the seven of clubs. Look at all the re-entries that turned up in dummy! A third and final successful heart finesse developed South's ninth trick.

This hand was given to illustrate the advantages of playing for the longest suit [clubs in this case] in the two combined hands. It failed to mention the advantage of having every card located favorably in the hand of a moronic defender.

TOMORROW'S HAND
♠Q-10-8
♥J-2
♦Q-9

WEST	EAST
♠5-4-2	♠9-7-6
♥K-10-5-4-3	♥A-9-6
♦K-8	♦5-4-3-2
♣10-4-3	♣J-10-6

SOUTH
♠A-K-J-3
♥Q-8-7
♦A-J-10-7-6
♣5

Another little hand from this volume. South, of course, makes three no trumps. Could you beat three no trumps if you concentrated very hard?

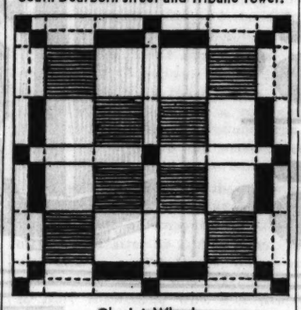
Brown Employed Attractively in Beautiful Quilt

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.



Chariot Wheel.

BY NANCY CABOT.

As far back as 1863 brown in dark yet live shades was popular for quilts, because the color could be laundered without "running," resisted soiling, and furnished a beautiful background for the brilliantly tinted designs. The color never has gone out of style and it is as popular now as then. "Chariot Wheel" is one of the designs which has favored brown to harmonize with not only the warm but also the cool shades of blue and green.

With her book of quilts, Nancy Cabot now offers 10 patterns of her own choice at a combination price of 10 cents (12 cents by mail). The booklet alone is 5 cents; by mail, 7 cents. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Bear Head of St. Dominick Through Streets of Rome

ROME, May 30.—(AP)—A great procession wound through Rome this afternoon bearing the head of St. Dominick, the founder of the Dominican order, as the capital celebrated the 700th anniversary of his cannonization. The relic had arrived from Bologna, where it had been kept for seven centuries, and was received here with military honors by thousands of troops. Both clergy and laymen participated in the religious honors.

Latter-Day Saints.

The Mutual Improvement association of the Church of the Latter-Day Saints will conclude its year's activity with a grand ball in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel tomorrow night. The ball will follow an honor day festival at the Latter-Day Saints' chapel at Sawyer and Wrightwood avenues. Representatives from five neighboring states are expected to attend.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Settlement Teacher Asks Music.

"Dear Miss Brown: I have taught music for many years, and am at present connected with a settlement house in a poor district. I havec harge of all the music work, singing, harmony, etc., but have no material for my pupils, some of whom are exceptionally talented. Extra copies of popular songs, light opera, theory books are needed. We also are much handicapped by the lack of a piano, and will appreciate receiving a usable one."—Miss A. B.

Baby Carriage Needed for Invalid.

"Dear Sally Joy Brown: My baby is an invalid as a result of a serious illness. With good care and plenty of fresh air and sunshine, she has some chance of recovery. Although nearly 2 years old, she is unable to sit up, and I need a large baby carriage in which she can lie comfortably. I am unable to purchase one, as we are on relief."—Mrs. P. M.

The Dominant Parent Often Harms Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Are you a natural executive?

Are you the managing type?

Have you a positive, dominating personality that would verge, if you let it, on the domineering?

If you are or if you have, beware.

I've seen husbands robbed of their initiative by wives, no matter how loving. I've seen men's confidence lessen, achievement in the world of affairs elude their grasp, and even neuroses develop because of their struggle to free themselves from being dominated by a person whom they deeply loved.

Children can be victims in a similar way of the parent who is of a dominating sort.

This kind of mother is in danger of doing several things to her child.

She may repress him.

She may make him timid and indecisive and dependent because she makes his decisions for him. She may keep him from thinking and acting for himself.

And as he gets older, she may drive him into acting [in his rebellion] in a way not good for him and grieving to her.

Several letters that I am not free to quote have furnished examples of this latter situation. Mothers have pushed their ambitions on their child, they have mapped out a career contrary to the boy's or girl's talents and desires, they have demanded subsurvient obedience to rules about boy or girl companionship, or thwarted marriage.

The result in the early or late teens when the boy or girl rebels may be:

1. A breaking of the spirit, or
2. Devious or deceitful ways of gaining their own ends, or
3. Open rebellion [this being the most wholesome though least pleasant on the surface].

Don't let your positiveness, your cleverness, your managing ways lead you astray in dealing with your children—of any age.

Kansas City's Toy Symphony May Go on Tour of Japan

Kansas City, Mo., May 30.—(AP)—Thomas Bruce knows what to do with children who insist upon making loud noises—put them in a symphony orchestra.

His organization, the Kansas City Toy Symphony, with 95 children ranging in age from 4 to 9, has proved so popular plans are being made to take it to Japan in 1936, Bruce said today.

The children, some of whom started training for the orchestra when only 2 years old, play such difficult pieces as Rachmaninoff's "Prelude." They also takes turns at directing.

HOW I WON MY MAN

by a Blonde

"ONE day I discovered why other blondes were more popular than I—their hair was like brilliant, shimmering gold, while mine was faded and lifeless. BLONDEX, an amazing special shampoo, has now made my hair young again, gleaming with the golden sunshine color that fascinated the man I was to marry. My husband now says that had it not been for my beautiful hair he does not think he would have noticed me among so many attractive girls. How glad I am I discovered BLONDEX in time!" NOTE:—BLONDEX contains no dye, no harmful chemicals—it is amazingly beneficial, giving the hair a wavy, silky softness and lustrous sheen. BLONDEX comes in two sizes—the big economical $1.00 bottle and the new inexpensive 25c size. Get it today at any drug or department store.

WHITE SOX BEAT INDIANS, 8-4, LOSE 4-0; CUBS DIVIDE

DEFEAT COSTS CHICAGO TEAM LEAGUE LEAD

Whitehead Pitches Eighth Victory.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

With a flourish of base hits in support of John Whitehead's quest for his eighth straight victory the White Sox polished off Cleveland's Indians, 8 to 4, yesterday in the front half of a double header before 42,000 howling spectators. But that performance exhausted the afternoon's supply of happiness. In the afterpiece the Sox were as meek as they had been unruly in the first game, so they folded up by 4 to 0 and at the same time moved out of first place. The Yankees, by winning a pair at Washington, took the lead which had been in the Chicagoans' possession since May 11.

Items that entered into the first game success were principally homers off the usually steady Oral Hildebrand. Jim Dykes, the manager, hit one. So did Zeke Bonura, making his ninth of the year. But for real production in this fashion Rip Radcliff set the pace by exploding his fifth four baser of the season while two mates were on the bases. This happened in the fourth to complete a five run splurge and give Whitehead more of a working margin than was needed to keep his major league slate unsullied.

Quarrel Breaks Out.

The Radcliff homer in the fourth not only fixed everything to suit the Sox but brought on a few additionally stormy minutes for the victim, Hildebrand. As soon as Dykes stepped to the plate after Radcliff's knockout punch, the Cleveland pitching expert let one go at the manager's head and the latter suspected it was more intentional than otherwise.

Dykes dropped his bat and strutted out to the mound to discuss the matter. It proved just another one of those baseball rows in which much is said and nothing done. The umpires shooed Dykes away and then refused to heed his complaint that Hildebrand's pitch was intentional and that he should be banished under the rules. Dykes then drew a pass and the rumpus broke out again.

Simmons Is Hit.

Simmons lined a long foul to right on the first pitch and the next was so close to him that it cracked him on the left wrist. Like Dykes, he regarded this as part of the Hildebrand strategy. The Milwaukee duke ran out to the mound and athletes came from all around, but after the usual haranguing quiet was restored. The only guy who appeared anxious to act was Pat Gharrity, the Indian coach, but his mates led him away.

The cause of the shutout for the Sox, their second of the year, in the second game, was Willis Hudlin. He more than upheld his reputation for being a tough fellow for right handers to hit. There were only two innings in which the Sox had two men on the bags, but they managed to send only one man as far as third. Meanwhile, the Indians with some timely hits had registered three runs off Carl Lefty Fischer, the ex-Tiger. The last run was at the expense of Joe Vance in the ninth.

FIRST GAME

Before Hildebrand was shaken loose from five runs he had turned out three fairly effective innings. During that time he surrendered only two hits but they were of a healthy variety. One was the homer Dykes sailed into the left field lower deck with one out in the first. The other was a triple aimed

Cubs Whip Pirates, 6-4, but Here's Sad Part: Lose 2d, 4-1

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 30.—A crowd of 40,430 paying fans, the largest that ever attended a National league game in Pittsburgh, this afternoon saw the Cubs knock out their sensational youngster, Cy Blanton, and win, 6 to 4, in the first game of a double-header. Then they stuck around to see Red Lucas, a broken down pinch hitter, administer a 4 to 1 licking to the Chicagoans in the second game.

Blanton was after his eighth victory in the first game. Previously he had pitched nine full games. The Cubs drove him to cover with ten hits in 4 2-3 innings, including two singles and a triple by Stanley Hack. He was replaced by Guy Bush, making his first appearance against the Cubs. The former Cub faced 10 men before giving away to a pinch batter and not a one of the ten got to first base. The tenth, Ki Cuyler, was the only one to get the ball to the outfield.

Henshaw Stops 'Em.

Roy Henshaw was the winning pitcher. Roy held the Pirates to four scattered hits after relieving Tex Carleton with one out in the first inning. Tex had yielded a triple and three singles for two runs before Henshaw stepped in and pitched a double play ball.

Larry French made his first appearance against the Pirates when he started the second game. Except for a fit of wildness during which he walked four men in the second inning and the first one up in the third inning, he was a fair pitcher. But as he found in his first two losses of the season, the Cubs are not consistent in the hitting department. Lucas would have had a shutout but for infield errors on the first two batsmen who faced him in the second. French himself drove in the Cubs' only run.

Only Fans Fight.

There was no threat of recurrence of brawling among members of the two teams, but police and ushers had to break up several rousing fights among spectators.

FIRST GAME

The Cubs got a run in the first inning before Blanton was pulled out with a double play. With one down Herman landed on Vaughan's fumble and stopped at second on Hack's single to center. Hartnett also singled to center, scoring Herman and putting Hack on third. Stainback then tapped to Thevenow, who started the double play through Young.

L. Waner led off the Pirate half with a triple to the left field corner, held third while Hack threw out Jensen, and strolled home when his brother lined a single to right center. Vaughan singled to center, putting P. Waner on third, after which Young singled to left, P. Waner scoring and Vaughan stopping at second. This was enough for Carleton. Henshaw took over his job and Suhr hit to Herman, who tagged Young and tossed to Cavarretta for a double play.

Cubs Get Going Again.

The Cubs stirred up some new action in the third. Henshaw dropped a double on the foul line back of first and stopped at third on Galan's single to right. Herman sent a long fly to P. Waner and Henshaw came home with the tying run. Hack singled to right, putting Galan on third. Hack took second and Galan held third while Grace was slapping down a wild pitch by Blanton. Hartnett and Stainback fanned.

Henshaw opened the fifth with his second and the Cubs' sixth hit off Blanton. Galan sacrificed. Henshaw held second while Herman bounced out to Thevenow, but trotted home on Hack's third successive hit, a triple to left center. Hartnett lined a single to left, scoring Hack. Gabby stopped at second on Stainback's single to left. Cavarretta singled over second, Hartnett scoring and Stainback taking third. Blanton was yanked for the first time in ten starts this year.

Holiday's Major Sports Events Draw 542,000

Promoters of major league baseball, automobile and horse racing reaped a rich holiday harvest yesterday as approximately 542,000 paying patrons trooped through the turnstiles at the major centers for the three sports.

Major league baseball in eight cities, where a full schedule of double headers was played, attracted 267,373 to lead the sports parade for the day. The 500 mile automobile race in Indianapolis was run off before 155,000, a new all-time record, and horse racing at five major tracks played to approximately 120,000.

Belmont Park led in turf attendance for the day with 35,000, while Washington Park was second with 30,000. Tracks at Rockingham in New Hampshire and Detroit drew throngs of 20,000 each, and 15,000 watched the card at Latonia in Kentucky.

The White Sox topped the American league with 42,000, and the Giants were high in the National with 63,943. Park records fell at Detroit and Pittsburgh, where the crowds were 38,000 and 40,430 respectively. Baseball figures for the day:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Brooklyn-New York	63,943
Chicago-Pittsburgh	40,430
Boston-Philadelphia	18,000
Cincinnati-St. Louis	18,000
Total	140,373

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

30,000 WATCH EVERGOLD TAKE STAKE IN MUD

BY FRENCH LANE.

The big chestnut horse Evergold, from the stable of Dick and Pat Nash of Chicago, found a muddy track that was just to his liking at Washington Park yesterday. He charged up on the outside at the head of the stretch, smothered the little horses that were running against him and won the $5,000 Blue and the Gray handicap.

A crowd of 30,000, one of the largest that ever gathered at the course near Homewood, watched him whip his field and win by two lengths. Bluebeard, the son of Blue Larkspur, owned by Mrs. R. B. Fairbanks of Indianapolis, was second. Hit and Run, little more than a selling plater, but a bear in the muddy going, was third.

Scratches Cut Field.

Trailing the leaders home were Silent Shot, Cotton Club, the favorite, Late Date and Dust Girl, a stable companion of Evergold. Track conditions had reduced the original starting field of a dozen to seven which lined up at the barrier. Such leading contenders as Watch Him, Quatre Bras II., South Gallant, and Gusto had been withdrawn.

Evergold reeled off the mile and a furlong in 2:00 4-5, which wasn't fast time in any sense of the word. It was ten seconds off the track record, yet the track over which these horses ran was deep in heavy mud.

Bluebeard and Silent Shot fought it out all through the early stages for the lead. Bluebeard was the leader and Silent Shot was forcing the pace. They ran this way to the lower bend, but Evergold was third and seemed to have a picnic watching them run each other into exhaustion.

Evergold Moves Up.

On the lower bend Evergold started to pick them up. He towered over the two small horses like a giant. Truly he was a genuine "boss" of this party, and his boss, Mr. Nash, must have taken great pride in the victory.

In the great throng were many who fancied the chances of the Nash entry. The mutuel payoff on Evergold was $7.50 to win, $3.60 to place and $2.96 to show. Bluebeard paid $10.16 to place and $5.78 to show. Hit and Run's show price was $5.30.

Evergold earned $4,280 for the Nash brothers by his victory. Bluebeard's share for being second was $1,000, and Hit and Run picked up $500 for finishing third. Silent Shot's fourth money was $250, which hardly paid for the big party which Owner John E. Hughes gave to the friends he had invited out to see his great mudder run.

Fans Jam Track.

The huge crowd, which wagered $472,495, was a stunner for the new

Talking It Over

DUKE university, which has just completed a 27 game schedule with 24 victories, has won 112 out of 147 games under the coaching of Jack Coombs, former Athletic pitcher, in the last seven years. . . .

Jack Robinson, center on the 1934 Notre Dame football team, is planning a trip to Europe this summer. . . . Indiana university soon will have another Wilshere as a leading pitcher. . . . Seward, 19 year old brother of Whitey, who now is making good with the Athletics, will enter Indiana next fall. . . . In his first appearance with the Skaneateles, N. Y., High school nine this spring he turned in a no-hit performance. . . . Max Baer has adopted tennis as part of his daily training routine. . . . Dick Colina, Michigan State's star half back, has been elected senior class president for next year. . . . Eulace Peacock, colored sophomore at Temple university, recently broad-jumped 26 feet 8 inches in his last trial in a meet in Philadelphia only to fall backward. . . . It would have been a world record had he held his balance. . . . Coach Thornhill of Stanford believes his football team's strongest opposition next fall will come from Jimmy Phelan's University of Washington eleven. . . . "We have about as much luck against the Huskies in Seattle as we do in the Rose bowl," Thornhill says, "and that is next to zero." . . .

President Ford Frick of the National league is holding a lifetime pass for Jouett Meekin, major league pitching star in the '90s, who was last heard of around New Albany, Ind. . . . His present whereabouts is unknown.

The 15 round match between Wesley Ramey and Leo Rodak at Mills stadium June 13 is one of the most attractive cards Chicago has had in months. . . . Ramey whipped Tony Canzoneri shortly before the lightweight champion won a decision from Rodak at the Stadium. . . . He gave Frankie Sagilio a thorough drubbing in his last Chicago appearance. . . . Rodak hasn't fought since his bout with Canzoneri, but there are hundreds of Chicagoans who feel he would have an even chance with the champion in a 15 round battle. . . . The winner of the Ramey-Rodak match will stand out as a real challenger for Canzoneri's crown. . . . The late Knute Rockne founded the Central Intercollegiate track meet to provide an objective for nonconference schools. . . . It has developed into one of the most important events of its kind. . . .

The Giants still rate the Cubs inferior to the Pirates. . . . So do the Pirates, no doubt. . . . When Cavalcade went to the post at Belmont last week he was accompanied by three detectives, four handlers, and a mob of fans, but after he lost to Head Play only a groom returned to the stable with him. . . . Wib Henry, Illinois sophomore who won football, basketball, and baseball letters this year, has a good start toward equaling the record of Burt Ingwersen, who won nine letters in these sports. . . . Clark Shaughnessy, Chicago football coach, is visiting relatives in Minneapolis. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—Rogers Hornsby, St. Louis second baseman, was appointed manager of the Cardinals. . . . Gabby Hartnett knocked out his fourteenth home run as the Cubs defeated Pittsburgh, 11 to 2. . . . The St. Louis Browns defeated the White Sox, 15 to 11. . . . Tiger Flowers arrived in Chicago to start training for his bout with Jock Malone.

HEAD PLAY WINS SUBURBAN WITH DISCOVERY 2D

New York, May 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Silas B. Mason's Head Play today won the 49th Suburban handicap at Belmont Park in the smashing time of 2:02 for the mile and a quarter. Cavalcade, 3 year old champion of 1934, unseated his rider, Johnny Gilbert, at the start, disappointing thousands who had made the famous colt a 7 to 5 favorite. Thirty-five thousand saw the race.

Cavalcade galloped riderless through the stretch after stumbling at the break and sending his rider over his head.

Head Play, Preakness winner of 1933 and second in the Kentucky Derby of that year, scored by a length and a half over Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Discovery. Four lengths farther back, Only One, was third. Then, in a straggling line, came Identify, King Saxon, and Singing Wood.

Winner's Owner Gets $12,175.

The race grossed $15,450, of which $12,175 went to the owner of the winner. It pushed Head Play's earnings this year to more than $50,000. He was a 7 to 1 shot at closing.

Six minutes were lost at the barrier due to the bad behavior of Head Play and King Saxon. E. C. Potter, deputy to the stewards at the start, reported that no horse touched Cavalcade, and that he had only himself to blame. The first stride was a stumble, and Gilbert went over his head as the colt went to his knees.

Betters Like Cavalcade.

Cavalcade had 127 pounds up and was played down from an opening at 2 to 1 to 7 to 5.

The early running saw King Saxon, up to today defeated only once in two years, the early leader. Head Play first moved to contention at the far turn and passed Identify. At the head of the stretch King Saxon was tiring fast. Kurtsinger took Head Play to the outside and moved to the van in the next few strides. Discovery in the meantime had been brought along carefully, saving ground next to the rail. He charged strongly through the stretch, but was not good enough to run down Head Play. He had up 123 pounds as against 114 on Head Play.

WEATHERLY IS CRASH VICTIM; 155,000 ATTEND

First Car's Average 106.240 M. P. H.

First Ten

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 30.—[Special.]—The following is a list giving the driver, car, and average speed in miles per hour of the ten entrants that finished the annual 500 mile automobile race here today:

Driver and car—	Av. speed.
Kelly Petillo, Gilmore Speedway Special	106.240
Wilbur Shaw, Pirrung Special	105.990
Bill Cummings, Boyle Products Special	104.758
Floyd Roberts, Abels-Fink Spec.	103.223

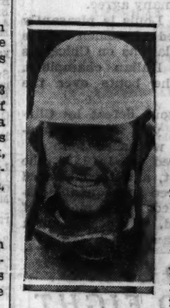
Deacon Litz, Shaler Rislone	100.907
Doc Mackenzie, Pirrung Special	100.598
Chet Miller, Milac F. D. Spec.	100.474

All ten of the cars were powered with four cylinder hand built engines. Front wheel drive jobs were ridden by Cummings, Miller, and Shaw.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., May 30.—The annual 500 mile automobile race here today opened with a fatality and closed with a new speed record before a crowd officially announced as 155,000, the largest in the history of the track.



CLAY WEATHERLY.

The victim was Clay Weatherly, 24 years old, riding as a substitute driver for one of the three drivers killed in the preliminaries last week. He was unmarried, resided in Cincinnati, and is survived by his mother, Mrs. Minnie B. Weatherly of Harmon, Ill. His death raised the toll of this track since 1910 to 29.

Leads for Last Half.

The victor was Kelly Petillo, 31 years old, a fruit merchant of Huntington Park, Cal. His nine year old boy saw the race. The Californian is a veteran dirt track racer and has had previous experience here.

Petillo took the lead at the half way mark and maintained this position to the end. His 4 cylinder Miller motored car covered the 200 laps around the bumpy two and a half mile brick track in 4 hours 36 minutes and 47 seconds. This was an average of 106.240 miles an hour, as compared with the previous record of 104.865 miles an hour rung up by Wild Bill Cummings in winning last year's event.

Shaw Is Second.

Finishing second, less than a lap behind, was Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis, whose average of 105.990 miles an hour was better than that of last year's winner. Cummings came in third, two laps behind.

Two other former champions among the starters, Fred Frame and Louis Meyer, failed to finish in the money and were waved from the track when the first ten had received the checkered flag.

Petillo won $27,050 in prizes aside from awards from the advertising of parts, fuel, and lubricants.

JOE LOUIS OPENS TRAINING CAMP; SPARS 4 ROUNDS

Prepares to Box Carnera in Title Elimination.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pompton Lakes, N. J., May 30.—On Independence day last summer in Chicago Joe Louis, Golden Gloves champion, fought his first professional bout for $50. This Memorial day afternoon, at Doc Bier's training camp in the Jersey foothills, Joe began work for his fight with Primo Carnera June 25 at Yankee stadium. For that fight, according to Mike Jacobs, president of the Twentieth Century club, Joe will receive approximately $75,000.

In 11 months Louis has had 22 bouts. Eighteen of these have ended in knockouts. And at least in these parts the huge Italian, now training near Oswego, N. Y., is tagged for the next knockout.

Joe Boxes Four Rounds.

Joe boxed four rounds this afternoon before a holiday crowd in which the elite of Harlem predominated. Seal Harris, giant Chicago sparring partner, who worked in King Levinsky's Grand Beach, Mich., camp before the King won from Jack Sharkey, and who then went on tour with Max Baer, had the first two rounds. Ace Clark of Philadelphia took the burden for the final pair of three minute rounds.

Joe never has learned to pull his punches. It was the same boy who knocked 'em out as a Golden Glover that shuffled flat footed across the Pompton ring this afternoon. Without a change of expression Joe dropped short lefts and rights to Harris' face and body. And in each round Seal had a bloody nose to exchange for his daily stipend.

Clark received more punishment. Notwithstanding a pawing left hand, in imitation of Carnera, Louis reached through to slap the protection rubber from Clark's mouth, and set him back to the ropes with another pair of left hooks. Then Joe pounded short rights to Clark's body. It appeared he could have knocked out the Philadelphian despite the big training gloves.

Knockout Is Predicted.

True enough, it's a bit early to get out on the limb with a prediction, but New York is on the Louis band wagon right now. Manager Julian Black has predicted a knockout by Louis within seven rounds and many agree.

Out of the ring Louis is pleasantly affable. He chatted of Golden Gloves and sent congratulations on Chicago's victory over the Italian champions. He listened to the bouts over the radio, he said.

"What about your defeat by Clinton Bridges when you were an amateur in Detroit?" we asked Joe.

"Bridges defeated me in 1933, the first year I fought, and then refused to fight me on three subsequent occasions," Louis replied. In a matter of fact tone he added, "I guess I am a bit better now than then."

CHICAGO C. Y. O. TEAM TO FIGHT LEMONT TONIGHT

A team from Lemont will oppose Chicago C. Y. O. boxers tonight at the C. Y. O. Center gym, 31 East Congress street. Eight bouts are on the program. C. Y. O. boys who will appear include Andy Scrivani, Johnny Anderson, Eddie Morton, Conrad Baranski, and Walter Klimcke.

Next Thursday the outdoor boxing season of the C. Y. O. will be inaugurated at 1140 West Jackson boulevard. The C. Y. O. champions of Grand Rapids will travel to Chicago to clash with the local title holders in the first of a series of intercity matches scheduled for the summer.

MINNESOTA NINE WINS PAIR FROM IOWA, 5 TO 3,7 TO 6

Iowa City, Ia., May 30.—[Special.]—Minnesota strengthened its claim to the Western conference baseball championship today by defeating Iowa, 5 to 3 and 7 to 6.

The double victory left the Gophers in first place in the Big Ten standing and relegated the Hawkeyes far down in the second division.

Henshaw Saves Opener in Rescue Role.

Bush came in and made Cuyler force Cavarretta.

Jensen opened the home fifth with a double off the right field screen and scored on flies by P. Waner and Vaughan. Young walked, but Suhr popped to Herman.

There was no more scoring until Hoyt went in to pitch the ninth. Jurges was safe on Vaughan's fumble and moved up on Henshaw's sacrifice. Galan fouled to Thevenow. Herman singled to right, scoring Jurges. Hack forced Herman.

With one out in the ninth Jensen was safe when Cavarretta dropped Herman's throw, but was forced by P. Waner. Vaughan singled to right, putting P. Waner on third. Young singled to deep short, P. Waner scoring. Traynor batted for Suhr and ended the game with a fly to Cuyler.

SECOND GAME

Galan opened the game with a double into the overflow crowd off the left foul line and went to third on Herman's infield out. Augie held third while Thevenow threw out Hack. Hartnett walked and Stainback fouled to Thevenow.

L. Waner opened te Pirate offensive with a single to left center and reached second when Cuyler juggled the ball. He went to third while Hack threw out Jensen. P. Waner fanned, but Vaughan lined a single to right, scoring L. Waner. Young singled to center, putting Vaughan on third. Suhr fanned.

Cavarretta was safe on Suhr's error at the start of the second inning. Vaughan fumbled Cuyler's double play ball, Cavarretta reaching second and Cuyler first. The runners moved up on Jurges' sacrifice, after which French lined a single to center, scoring Cavarretta. It was an obvious hit from the time it left the bat, but for some reason the runners held up and Cuyler had to stop at third. Galan sent a short fly to L. Waner and Herman flied to Jensen.

Umpires Help a Bit.

After striking out Thevenow to start the home second, French walked Padden. Lucas ran the count to three and two and then he walked, too. The bases were full when L. Waner walked on four pitches. Jensen lined to Cavarretta and L. Waner narrowly missed getting doubled off first. French then issued his fourth pass of the inning on four pitches to P. Waner, forcing Padden across the plate. Hartnett made a great running catch of Vaughan's foul.

Thevenow opened the home sixth with a single to center but was out, Hartnett to Herman, when the hit and run play went awry. On the next pitch Padden singled to right center. Hack plowed into the overflow crowd and caught Lucas' foul. While the crowd swarmed around Hack, Padden went to second after the catch, which seemed to be all right with the umpires. L. Waner singled to right, scoring Padden. Jensen flied to Galan.

Root's pitching term began in the seventh and started with a single by L. Waner. Vaughan failed to connect on the hit and run and Waner was easily thrown out. Hartnett to Jurges. Vaughan walked on the next pitch. Young's fast grounder went through Jurges for a single, Vaughan reaching third. Then Suhr and Thevenow went out on infield pops.

The Pirates added one run in the eighth on a base on balls, and a single on which Stainback made a two base throwing error as the run scored.

30,000 See Evergold Win at Homewood

Washington Park officials. Rain had been falling in most parts of Chicago throughout the morning, but the wet weather apparently did not dampen the ardor of the racegoers. They started arriving before noon and they were still filing into the track at the time the fourth race was run.

The betting for the day as registered by the big electric totalizer was as follows:

First race...	$ 40,873	Seventh race..	61,761
Second race..	44,871	Eighth race..	60,726
Third race...	54,855	Daily double..	20,618
Fourth race..	56,082
Fifth race...	62,778	Total.....	$472,495
Sixth race...	69,931

Count Arthur Wins.

Those who played the favorites fared very well, for choices were bouncing home all through the early part of the program.

The Old Line purse, which engaged several candidates for the American Derby, was the secondary feature on the program. It brought a stirring finish in which Count Arthur, owned by Mrs. John Hertz, was the winner.

Running much like his famous old daddy, Reigh Count, did back in his glorious championship days, Count Arthur roared down the stretch with a determination that whipped his rivals. In the final strides Jocky Jack Westrope got him up just in time to beat Ann O'Ruley from California by a head. Calumet Dick, owned by Warren Wright of Chicago, was good enough to be third.

63,943 WATCH GIANTS DEFEAT DODGERS, 8-3, 6-0

Crowd Is Record for National League.

New York, May 30.—(AP)—The Dodgers from Brooklyn paid dearly today for coming across the bridge last September and knocking the Giants out of the National league pennant race. The Giants got revenge by beating Brooklyn in both games of a double-header before 63,943 fans, the largest crowd in National league history. Scores were 8 to 3 and 6 to 0.

Prior to today the record National league crowd was at the Polo grounds on Sept. 12 last year, when the Dean brothers pitched the Cardinals to victory in a double-header with New York.

New York shelled Van Mungo in the first game and a sparkling two hit pitching performance by Fred Fitzsimmons was the main factor in the second victory. Scores:

PHILLIES WIN TWO.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 30.—(AP)—The Phillies defeated Boston in a double-header today before 18,000, winning the first game 11 to 6 and taking the second 9 to 3. A seven run rally in which six hits were combined with three Boston errors enabled the Phils to wipe out a Boston lead in the first game. In the second they scored four runs in the first inning and never were headed. Scores:

Kennedy Starts for Sox Today Against Indians

Vernon Kennedy, the ex-Texas leaguer who has spent most of his time in relief roles, will be promoted to a starting assignment for the White Sox in today's battle with the Indians. Kennedy started against both the Browns and Tigers early in the season, but without much success. Monte Pearson will be the Indians' pitching performer.

J. Louis Comiskey, the Sox owner, unveiled a surprise for all present. It was in the form of a new loud speaker system. The sound was distributed from nests of horns in center field and was plainly audible in the main portion of the grandstand.

It was estimated that more than a few thousand of those present were from surrounding towns. Those are the people who formerly confined their patronage to the Cubs.

OHIO STATE NINE TRIUMPHS OVER INDIANA, 6-2, 13-0

Columbus, O., May 30.—(AP)—Ohio State wound up its Big Ten baseball season here today, defeating Indiana twice to assure the Buckeyes of at least a tie for second place in the conference.

With Ulrich pitching six hit ball in the opener, Ohio won, 6 to 2, and then came back to triumph, 13 to 0. Ohio now is tied with Illinois and Chicago with seven victories and three defeats.

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: About 1902 we nurses of the J. S. Mitchell training school around Wood and Congress wore long, attractive blue coats, silk bonnets, and veils, looking like charming young widows. We were forbidden to wear them to theaters or places of entertainment, but I stole away one night with a senior "doctor" to a theater in uniform.

During the play a Spanish war song was sung about a nurse, and the keen sighted spotlight man spotted us and the spot hung about us during the entire singing of the song, while everybody clapped their hands at my blushing and our embarrassment. It was very annoying at the time, but I now remember it as a charming adventure.

Small Town Doctor's Wife.

Back in the days when Calumet, Prairie, and Michigan avenues of the near south side were the choice residential sections George M. Pullman erected a large conservatory on the now vacant property at the southwest corner of Calumet and 18th street and planted a fine lawn in front.

People came from great distances within the city and out of town visitors also to enjoy the rare plants. Mr. Pullman's large brown stone residence stood on the north of 18th street.

At the time of the "Black Crook" popularity Jarrett and Palmer's theatrical troupe went to San Francisco on a special train to compete against another company showing there. For publicity purposes a special train was hired of four white coaches owned by the New York Central. Departure from Chicago was made over the North Western from Canal and Kinzie street depot.

We journey on to who knows where
And never see it again.

So watch the signals along the route;
Watch what the signposts say.
Once we've passed them it's quite too late
To heed them another day.

If we take it easy and watch the grade
And look out for each short, sharp bend
The chances are we'll arrive quite safe
At the haven marked "Journey's End."

Sox Divide with Indians; Give Up Lead

into the right field corner by Radcliff with one gone in the third. Rip expired on third for the want of help from Dykes and Simmons.

Whitehead's one run lead was turned into a 2 to 1 handicap as the result of happenings in the fourth. Averill singled to center with one out, the first hit of the Tribe since the first inning. Trosky's easy fly was absorbed by Simmons. Hale drew free passage. Then Campbell lined past third and the ball dropped on the foul line for a double, Averill and Hale scoring. The third out was coined on Pytlak's roller to Appling.

Bonura Hits Homer.

The Sox fourth, which stirred up a lot of runs as well as excitement, started with Bonura, after two strikes, smacking homer No. 9 into the right field seats, tying the score at 2 apiece. The next two men were retired but when Hopkins drew a walk the fun broke out in a big way.

Sewell slashed a single into center. Whitehead singled to right, Hopkins scoring. Sewell was trapped on the throw-in but the Indian infielders got tangled up in the play and Sewell slid safely back to second.

Then Radcliff, with the count 2 and 2, drove his homer into the right field seats for three runs. Dykes walked after the flare-up caused by Hildebrand's alleged employment of the bean ball. Simmons took his base after being hit on the left wrist by what he regarded as another "duster." Bonura concluded the inning with a pop to Trosky.

Indians Score Again.

Whitehead set down the first two men in the fifth before the Indians cut loose with a drive netting two runs. Knickerbocker scratched a single to Hopkins and continued to second on the latter's bad throw. He scored ahead of Vosmik, who homered into the right field lower deck.

Two runs picked up by the Sox in the eighth were pure gifts. Hopkins opened with a pass. Sewell rolled to Hale, who threw to second accurately enough, but nobody was covering. Hopkins went to third on the error. With the infield drawn in, Whitehead looped a single over Berger's head, Hopkins counting. Radcliff bunted foul in front of the plate, but Pytlak foolishly let the ball roll onto fair ground. Then he picked it up and threw wild to third, Sewell scoring. Dykes, Simmons, and Bonura then went out in order.

SECOND GAME

Two hits wrapped around a pass were the cause of Fischer getting away to a bad start in the second game. Knickerbocker and Vosmik were disposed of without delay, whereupon Averill singled to right and Trosky walked. Both scored when Hale's tall fly bounced off the right field score board for a double. Wright then fouled to Sewell for the third out.

The Indians came up with their next pair of hits in the fourth, and a run followed. Hale singled to right with one out, and Wright walked. Brentzel shot a single past Fischer to score Hale. Berger then forced Brenzel at second and Hudlin bounced out to his pitching opponent.

Fischer was in a real tough spot in the sixth, but emerged undamaged despite three hits. Trosky and Hale singled. Wright bounced to Dykes, who stepped on third to force Trosky and then threw to Bonura for a double play. Fischer knocked down a hard single by Brentzel, thus holding Hale at third. Berger tapped one along the third base line and Fischer, instead of trying to throw to first, dived at Hale and tagged him as he was heading into the plate.

Business for the Sox against Hudlin was so poor that they had to wait until the seventh before getting a runner beyond second base. Bonura started this with a scratch single on which Knickerbocker fell as he attempted to throw. Bonura was forced by Haas, who went to second when Knickerbocker threw wild trying for a double play. On Appling's infield out Haas went to third. Hopkins walked, but Sewell was tossed out by Hudlin.

A pinch hitter relieved Fischer of further duty after the eighth and Joe Vance was called in for the ninth. He was frisked for a run on singles by Hudlin and Vosmik.

FANS TO LEARN HOW GOLF STARS EXECUTE SHOTS

Pros to Demonstrate in Tribune School.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The third annual free golf school conducted by THE TRIBUNE, which will open next Tuesday night on the thirteen member courses of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, will be carrying out a principle which is being adopted by all of the game's leading professionals—that golf fans of today want to learn how to play the game through actual instruction, and not by following exhibition matches.

When Gene Sarazen was here a month ago, he said he had practically renounced exhibition matches as a steady diet, and predicted that winners of such titles as the American and British opens who really wish to capitalize upon their success will look to the teaching side of the game rather than exhibition performances.

Demonstrations Are Popular.

Three years ago, when Sarazen scored a double on both the United States and British titles, he and Tom Armour made an exhibition tour of the country. Before teeing off on any of these matches, they would put on a demonstration of shots in front of the various clubhouses, Gene working on the woods and Tommy on the irons. Both testified that there was actually more interest in these preliminary shows than there was in the actual matches.

Since that time Americans interested in golf are no longer content merely with following matches involving the stars to watch them make shots. The urge to play has overshadowed the spectator angle to such an extent that they wish grip, stance, swing, and so on explained in classroom form.

The enrollment of the first two schools conducted by THE TRIBUNE and the Daily Fee association was another evidence that golf fans wish to learn, not watch. In 1933, 17,000 accepted the invitation to take the free lessons, and that total was raised to 20,000 last year. Judging from the present entry list more than 15,000 will take this year's classes, with less courses on which to learn and with a week less in which to register.

Fill Out Coupon.

Joining the school is the simplest feature of it. Merely fill out the coupon appearing on an adjoining column with name, address, and age [all pupils under 18 will be assigned to the classes for girls and boys], check the course at which you plan to take your lessons, and mail it to the golf editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The first classes of the school on Tuesday will be joint sessions for women and girls, with the men and boys taking their first swings on Wednesday. Following that, classes for women and girls will be given on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and for men and boys on Wednesdays and Fridays. The entire course requires only three weeks, two lessons to the week. All lessons on the three inner courses—Evergreen, Mid-City, and Big Oaks—will begin at 7 p. m., and for the ten outlying courses at 7:30 p. m. Each pupil is requested to bring a driver for the first lesson.

On the nights of the last lessons June 20 and 21, each professional will name the best pupil in each of his four classes, making a total of 52 prize students. These will meet on June 28, to be judged on a form basis by a jury of the game's leading pros. The same 52 will then vie in an 18 hole medal play event on July 6. Prizes for these two finals will be awarded by the Daily Fee association and THE TRIBUNE.

JOHNSON, KAMM TO GO BEFORE LANDIS TODAY

Walter Johnson, manager of the Cleveland Indians, and Willie Kamm, infielder, will appear before K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, today. Landis will make a decision on Johnson's recent controversy with Kamm, who was separated from the team for the "best interests of the club." Kamm demanded the hearing before the commissioner.

Catcher Glenn Myatt was released at the same time. The case was put into the hands of Commissioner Landis by President Alva Bradley of the Indians. Bradley said he would drop Johnson if he was found wrong in ousting Kamm and Myatt.

Salay Wins Feature Auto Race at South Bend

South Bend, Ind., May 30.—[Special.]—Mike Salay of South Bend won the 20 mile feature race of the Memorial day automobile program here today before 10,000. Frank Paprocki finished second and Frank Wentz third. The time over the half mile oval was 20:14.6, a new track record.

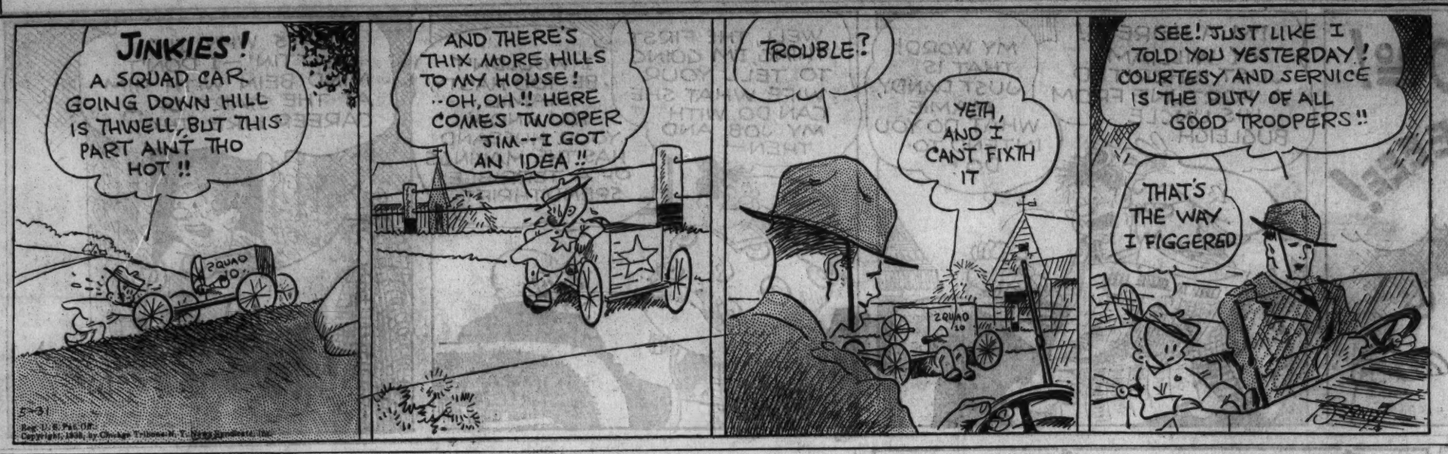
SMITTY—FREE WHEELING



Wethered and Dawson Tie Sarazen, Vare

Glenhead, N. Y., May 30.—(AP)—Joyce Wethered, former British women's golf champion, made her first appearance and professional debut in this country today.

From a scoring standpoint she failed to reach her own goal of even fours but her method of stroke execution and judgment were the highlights of an eighteen hole exhibition match she played with Johnny Dawson, Chicago golfer, against Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare and Gene Sarazen. The match ended all square on the eighteenth green of the Women's National Golf and Tennis club after Sarazen exploded brilliantly from a trap for a winning four.

Sarazen Shoots 72.

The scoring pace, such as it was over this par 69, 5,914 yard layout, was set by Sarazen, who carded a 72. Dawson was three strokes higher. Miss Wethered shot a 78. Mrs. Vare picked up on the fourteenth hole but she was shooting in the neighborhood of 82.

Off the tees Miss Wethered consistently outdrove Mrs. Vare, five times winner of the national title, and kept just about even with Sarazen, who, with one exception, drove with a spoon. Her iron play was flawless. She uses a slightly open stance and a noticeably relaxed grip affording smooth wrist action.

Game Still Has Edge.

The four times winner of the British crown convinced a critical gallery of 1,500 that two years from competition, since quitting the amateur ranks, haven't taken the edge off her game.

Charles Seale of Douglaston, a spectator, dropped dead near the eighteenth hole after the match.

New Dog Club Formed; Plans Retriever Test

BY BOB BECKER.

A new dog club that will encourage the proper use and training of all breeds of retrievers made its bow to Chicagoland sportsmen this week. This new organization is the Midwest Retriever club.

Thomas M. Howell, Chicago grain trader whose hobbies are fishing and the breeding of Labrador retrievers and Irish wolfhounds, was elected president. A. W. Harris, Chicago banker, who has been breeding Chesapeake Bay retrievers for more than 30 years, was elected first vice president. James B. Meigs of Midlothian who was elected second vice president, and David P. Scobie, secretary and treasurer of the new club, are Labrador and Golden retriever fanciers.

The club is interested in all the recognized retrievers permitted to compete in trials. The list includes Chesapeake Bay retrievers, Labrador retrievers, Golden retrievers, Irish water spaniels, and the flat and curly coated retrievers which are of English origin.

At the first meeting of the club it was decided to stage a field trial this fall. It probably will be held near Chicago on land that will give the retrievers adequate tests against pheasants and also a chance for the dogs to do water retrieving. The club has received inquiries from retriever owners in the east, indicating that several eastern owners of Chesapeakes and Labradors are interested in a trial out here.

Woman Midget Driver to Race at Sparta Stadium

Billy Cepak, who is opening Sparta stadium, 22d street and Kostner avenue, with midget auto racing Monday night, will introduce the first woman midget driver, when Marge Russo, sister of the late Joe Russo of Indianapolis fame, attempts to set a new track record. She also will race around the track blindfolded.

SCORES FROM CHICAGO GOLF CLUBS

A LOW net event for members and their guests featured the day's play at the Chicago Golf club. Hank Llewellyn turned in a 80—4—76 to win the prize for those with handicaps from scratch through nine, while Gorton Fauntleroy, president of the club, led the 10—18 class with 85—17—68. Gossoon Opens Yacht Season with Victory

The Chicago Yacht club's first race of the season was won by Malcolm Vail and Sterling Morton's sloop Gossoon, in the R class, yesterday afternoon, off Belmont harbor. Gossoon's time for the eleven nautical mile course was 2 hours 19 minutes 22 seconds.

Atalanta, the Karas-Lattimer syndicate yacht, finished second.

As the result of the race committee's disqualification of Dr. George Davis' Orn, which led the eagle class fleet, Ishtar was declared the winner. Ishtar's time for the triangular course was 2:45:44, or 5 minutes and 27 seconds behind Orn. Ishtar is owned by Lincoln Harris.

Walter J. Wolf's pup class sloop, Wolf, was the only one of its class to survive the five and one-half nautical mile thrash. Its time was 1 hour 45 minutes 23 seconds.

Ben Bow Wins.

A special race for cruising yachts was sailed at the C. Y. C. by Joseph Butler's Ben Bow and John T. Snite's Bagheera. Ben Bow, a staysail schooner, won by ten minutes.

At the Jackson Park Yacht club six classes raced. Princess, class Q sloop, won the skippers' cup. It is owned by the Jedzrl-Kowski-Kallgren syndicate. Princess also defeated Rudy Lotz's yawl Swanee to win the universal sloop event. Commodore Robert Williamson's schooner Edith III. won in the class B race around the twelve mile course. Second place went to Art Horton's Sis.

In the universal schooner class Bob Conklin's Blue Moon was first, but its victory was not allowed by the judges. The disqualification gave the race to the Johnson-Schiff schooner West Wind, which finished in 1:37:20, or ten seconds after Blue Moon.

Starlight Best of Stars.

Al Rasmussen's Starlight won the star class race over six miles. Its time was 49 minutes 17 seconds. Donald Jackson's Seawanhaka sailer Gypsy had no competition and automatically won in its class. Its time was 1:40:42. Bill Coveney, sailing William Miller's Cracker Jack, won in the jack class.

Ibis, sailed by 16 year old Philip Upton, with his father taking orders as crew, was victorious in the Sheridan Shore Yacht club's star boat race. Ibis, a Michigan yacht visiting at Wilmette for a month, completed the ten mile course in 1 hour 37 minutes 30 seconds.

257 Will Seek Catholic Prep Track Titles

Notre Dame, Ind., May 30.—[Special.]—Two hundred and fifty-seven athletes from twenty-six schools will open their drive on records in the second annual Notre Dame National Catholic Interscholastic track meet with the running of preliminaries tomorrow afternoon. The finals in the fourteen events will be held Saturday afternoon.

The entry list is larger by two schools and fifty-two individuals than last year's. Participants will be housed and entertained at Notre Dame during their stay, which coincides with commencement. West Catholic of Philadelphia is favored to retain its title, having entered twenty-six men, the largest entry in the meet. West Catholic also will defend the relay title won last year.

Boston Pro Eleven Signs W. Va. Wesleyan Full Back

Boston, Mass., May 30.—[Special.]—Kelly Rodriguez, former West Virginia Wesleyan full back, has signed to play with the Boston club of the National Professional Football league next season. Rodriguez is 6 feet tall and weighs slightly more than 200 pounds. He was a teammate of Cliff Battles at Wesleyan.

RELAYS CALLED OFF.

Bloomington, Ill., May 30.—[Special.]—The third annual Bloomington relay carnival, scheduled for Saturday, was canceled today because of the small entry list.

TWO SEMI-PRO DOUBLE-HEADERS ARE RAINED OUT

The two double-headers between the Mills semi-pro baseball team and the House of David and the Duffy Florals and the Spencer Coals were canceled yesterday because of rain. The Mills will continue practice today for their double-header with the Chinese All-Stars Sunday afternoon at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue.

PETILLO WINS 500 MILE RACE; DRIVER KILLED

Weatherly Hits Wall in Speed Derby.

Pa., was killed last week in the preliminaries.

Leon Duray, owner of the vehicle, once a well known racer, hastily rebuilt the machine after the wreck ten days ago. Weatherly, experienced on dirt tracks, but not on this rough brick oval, was appointed to take the wheel, his first chance in the big league event.

Weatherly took the turns with the veterans for the first seven laps, each with four banked turns. On the next lap, with roaring speedsters before and behind, Weatherly cramped his wheels just a bit too much. The 1,950-pound car spun and crashed into the concrete retaining wall that protects the crowd in the grandstand.

Then it caromed down the track, rocketed through a wooden fence, and landed in the grass infield. Weatherly was tossed clear with his mechanic, another youngster, 24 year old Ed Bradburn of Los Angeles.

Weatherly died from a fractured skull and other injuries. Bradburn suffered fractures of at least two vertebræ in the middle of his spine and is in a critical condition.

The death of Weatherly brought the toll for 1935 to four, for W. H. [Stubby] Stubblefield and his mechanic, Leo Whittaker, both of Los Angeles, died the same day Hannon did, eight days ago, in a qualifying run smashup.

Gordon Crashes Wall.

The smoke from this smashup had barely cleared when a puff of concrete dust rose from the same northwest turn. Al Gordon of Long Beach, Cal., pushing close behind the leaders, running alternately in third and fourth position at 108 miles an hour, swerved the tail of his machine into the wall. The driver was thrown clear, sliding his helmet protected head on the bricks, and neither he nor his mechanic, Jimmy Dunham of Union City, Ind., was seriously hurt.

Rex Mays, 24 year old Californian, set the pace through the first half of the 500 mile grind. Louis Meyer, another west coaster, winner of this event in 1928 and 1933, was pressing the leader close, with only seconds separating them. Babe Stapp of Los Angeles and Tony Gulotta of Kansas City were following less than a lap behind.

The speed of the cars, retarded by officials during the two wrecks early in the event, lagged behind track records during the first 250 miles. The average for this distance was 108.880 miles an hour, as compared with an all-time high of 109.429, established by Stapp in 1933.

Mays Out at 295.

Mays had led for 295 miles when a spring shackle broke and he was out of the race. He won $2,000 in lap prizes.

Gulotta had a similar experience, only he didn't cut into the prize money before his mishap. His engine failed and he was forced out of the race when within reach of the pole position.

Of the four Ford V-8s in the race at the start only one remained on the track at the half way mark. One failed due to grease leaking from the rear axle. Another broke a connecting rod, and the third early failure in this team was due to frozen steering equipment. The fourth Ford went out at 360 miles, leaving the field mainly to hand built four cylinder engines.

Speed records began to fall at the 375 mile mark. The average for this distance, with Petillo leading the thundering pack, was 109.479 miles an hour, as compared with the previous high of 107.830 attained three years ago.

With only 100 miles more to go Petillo was still in No. 1 position and had widened his lead over the track record. His average for 400 miles was 108.802 miles an hour. Previous best for this distance was 104.677, set by Meyer two years ago.

Amelia Earhart, aviatrix, serving as a referee, said she was thrilled. Most of the crowd spread on both sides of the two and a half mile track appeared a bit tired, if not bored, by the long interval since an accident.

Three Press Leader.

For the few following the progress of the drivers there was excitement in the competition notwithstanding the monotonous drone from the dashes of color as the machines passed the grandstands. Close behind Petillo was Wilbur Shaw of Los Angeles, while Shorty Cantlon of Detroit and Wild Bill Cummings, the 1934 winner, were still serious contenders. Fourteen of the thirty-three starters were off the track from mechanical trouble and two from crashes, leaving seventeen still running.

At 450 miles, with Petillo still in the lead, a light drizzling rain began to fall. Officials waved yellow flags advising the drivers to reduce their pace to not more than 75 miles an hour and to hold their relative positions. This recess in the competition was maintained until there were but 25 miles more to go. Then, with the track dried, speed was resumed.

This recess cut the average speed for the 500 miles. For the 450 miles the average was 109.201 miles per hour compared with a track record of 105.021 set by Meyer last year. For 475 miles, with Petillo still leading the average had dropped to 106.264 miles an hour, still better than the best previous average of 105.060 miles an hour set in 1934.

WHOLE FAMILY CELEBRATES.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 30.—(AP)—Kelly Petillo, who cracked records in winning the Indianapolis 500 mile race today, got his early training driving a fruit truck between here and Fresno.

"And he made a reputation of being the speediest truck driver on the Ridge road," a sister declared proudly.

The home of Luigi Petillo, the father, was a popular place here during and after the race. All of Kelly's six married sisters, their husbands and children, neighbors and friends seemed to be in the parlor at once.

Kelly had to make his fourth try before he won today. He invested $500 of his savings in the car he drove and so will not have to split his winnings with anybody.

Incidentally, Kelly is not his given name. School chums called him that because of difficulty in pronouncing the real name—Cavino.

WILLIAM FOULKE, NOTED INDIANA AUTHOR, IS DEAD

Known for Civil Service Reform Work.

Richmond, Ind., May 30.—(AP)—William Dudley Foulke, 86, widely known author and civil service reform worker, died at his home today. He had been ill more than a year.

WILLIAM FOULKE.

Mr. Foulke was a member of the national civil service commission under President Theodore Roosevelt.

A native of New York City, Mr. Foulke began the practice of law in Richmond in 1876. He later was elected to the state senate, where he was a leader in exposing the spoils system in state institutions.

Mr. Foulke was president of the National Municipal league for a number of years and was an early advocate of woman's suffrage.

As a young lawyer, Mr. Foulke became solicitor for a railroad company. He soon won recognition in Wayne county and then in 1880 as a Republican candidate was elected to the Indiana state senate.

Refuses to Support Blaine.

He refused to support James G. Blaine for the presidency and with the end of his four-year term he retired from politics. About that time he became interested in the reform of civil service and organized the Indiana Civil Service Reform association, of which he became president.

During 1889 and 1890 Mr. Foulke conducted on behalf of the National Civil Service Reform league a series of investigations into the condition of the federal civil service and the operation of the reform law.

His interest in civil service continued and in 1901 he was named a member of the United States civil service commission, serving two years.

Friend of Theodore Roosevelt.

Having been a close friend of President Theodore Roosevelt for many years, Mr. Foulke aligned himself with the colonel in the campaign of 1912 and assisted in the organization of the Progressive party. He was made a member of the party's platform committee and worked actively during the campaign.

Books of which Mr. Foulke was author include "Slav and Saxon," "Maya," a biography of the late Oliver P. Morton, war governor of Indiana, "A Hoosier Biography," "Is Our Civilization Really Declining?" "Roosevelt and the Spoilsmen," and "A Random Record of Travel During Fifty Years."

OFFICIALS KILLED OR HURT IN QUAKE IN BALUCHISTAN

SIMLA, India, May 31 [Friday].—(AP)—Several persons, including government officials, were killed or injured today in a severe earthquake at the city of Quetta.

The earth shocks were reported to have started at 2:45 a. m. [4:45 p. m., Chicago daylight time].

All communication with the stricken area was severed. Among the reported casualties were members of the railway staf stationed in the city.

The earth shocks were said to have spread devastation over a wide area.

Quetta is the capital of British Baluchistan and the southernmost point in the line of frontier posts and strategic railways on the northwest frontier of India. It is 536 miles north of Karachi. The name also is applied to the district in which the city is located, an area of 5,127 square miles. The capital has a population of approximately 49,000. In recent years the community has been transformed from a dilapidated group of mud buildings into a powerful fortress.

Shown on London Seismograph.

LONDON, May 30.—(AP)—Severe earthquakes starting at 10:42 p. m. and still continuing at midnight were recorded tonight on the seismograph of J. J. Shaw, West Bromwich seismologist. Shaw said that the shocks were apparently in central Asia and that great severity was indicated.

J. E. Erickson, Burlington Railway Employe, Is Dead

John E. Erickson, 70 years old, who had been manager of the Burlington railroad's stockyards at Montgomery, Ill., since 1892, died yesterday in the Copley hospital at Aurora. Mr. Erickson was a native of Sweden and came to this country with his parents as a small boy. He had been connected with the Burlington for forty-six years. Surviving are the widow, a son, and four daughters. Funeral services will be held in the Healy chapel at Aurora at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

Inhales Gas, Lives, but It Explodes, Kills Her

Berkeley, Cal., May 30.—(AP)—Despondent because of ill health, police said, Mrs. Eleanor May, wife of a University of California professor, closed the door of her bathroom last night and turned on the gas. Still alive after three hours, she arose and turned on the light. A spark from a defective switch ignited the gas and there was an explosion. Mrs. May died today of burns.

Beating by Robbers Fatal to Victim, 62

August Aichele, 62 years old, 1429 Roscoe street, died in his home yesterday of a heart attack that followed the shock of a beating he received last Saturday when two men robbed him as he was returning home from his employment as a baker. The robbers got $15 and a watch.

Mark Grave of Michigan's 1st Chief Justice: Fletcher

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 30.—(AP)—The grave of Michigan's first chief justice, William A. Fletcher, was marked with a stone monument today, eighty-two years after his death. The monument was dedicated by the present chief justice, William W. Potter.

MEMORIAL FUND TO BE MONUMENT TO MISS ADDAMS

A Jane Addams memorial fund to enable Hull house to continue its work in behalf of underprivileged persons has been decided upon as the most fitting monument to Miss Addams, it was announced yesterday by the directors of the settlement. The present endowment fund, totaling $575,000, produces an annual income of about $30,000, which the directors said does not meet the needs of Hull house.

The institution was founded by Miss Addams in 1889. It was supported in part by endowments and private philanthropy and Miss Addams turned over to it virtually all of the money she realized from her lectures and books.

Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, acting president and treasurer of Hull house, said that gifts to the memorial fund would not be used for new buildings or equipment, but merely to carry on the work on its present scale.

Trees memorializing the lives of Miss Addams and Dr. James Mullenbach, labor mediator, social worker, and late member of the faculty of the Chicago Theological seminary, were planted yesterday in the garden of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, 3533 North Albany avenue. Miss Nell Dewey, head matron of Hull house, spoke on the life of Miss Addams and Dr. Albert W. Palmer, president of the Chicago Theological seminary, paid tribute to the work of Dr. Mullenbach.

RECALL VICTORY OF SURGERY IN KENTUCKY 1809

Danville, Ky., May 30.—(AP)—A victory of peace, "no less renowned than war," was celebrated this Memorial day with the unveiling of a monument to the pioneer heroine of a scientific drama staged here in 1809 in the office of a frontier surgeon.

To this bluegrass city came hundreds of Kentuckians today to honor the memory of Mrs. Jane Todd Crawford, who made medical history by submitting without an anesthetic to the world's first ovariotomy.

Dr. Ephriam McDowell removed a 22½ pound ovarian tumor from Mrs. Crawford, who had ridden horseback 60 miles from her backwoods home to undergo an operation no surgeon ever had performed before.

TAKE PILSUDKI'S HEART TO VILNA IN CRYSTAL URN

WARSAW, May 30.—(AP)—A crystal urn holding the heart of Marshal Josef Pilsudski, late dictator of Poland, was taken to Vilna tonight by Mme. Pilsudski and her daughters.

It will be put to temporary rest there tomorrow in Theresa church, beneath a painting of "Our Lady of Vilna."

A detachment of army officers will carry the urn to the church, and it will be buried later in a vault of a military cemetery with his mother's remains, which are being brought here from Lithuania.

T. M. White, Contractor, Will Be Buried Tomorrow

Thomas M. White, 5900 Adams street, founder of the T. M. White company, construction and teaming contractors, who died on Wednesday in St. Anthony's hospital, will be buried tomorrow in Calvary cemetery after solemn requiem high mass at 9:30 a. m. in St. Catherine of Sienna church, Oak Park. Mr. White, who was 74 years old, had been active in Chicago building work for 53 years. His company aided in the construction of the International Harvester company's plants, of Wacker drive and the Board of Trade building. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mary Jennings and Mrs. Angela Haugh.

Burned as Couch Blazes, Then Leaps from Window

Gust H. Smith, 35 years old, a bookkeeper, was seriously burned yesterday when a couch on which he was lying in his second floor apartment at 1623 West 83d street, caught fire, supposedly from a cigaret. When firemen arrived they found Smith unconscious on the ground outside the window, presumably having leaped. Smith's wife, Mildred, was away from home.

DrunksAbsent as Dixie City Has First Day of Legal Rum

Greenville, S. C., May 30.—(AP)—Under its first day of legal liquor in twenty-seven years Greenville had not a single charge of drunkenness put on its police blotter yesterday. During the last six months an average of seven "drunks" a day were arrested.

Glenn to Head Jackson County 'Grass Roots' Group

Murphysboro, Ill., May 30. — [Special.]—Former United States Senator Otis F. Glenn was chosen today to head the Jackson county delegation to the Republican "grass roots" convention to be held in Springfield, June 10 and 11.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A new daily one hour international short-wave broadcast, with a portion of it in English, is to be launched from Tokio tonight, according to an announcement made yesterday by the consulate of Japan. Though the broadcast will be heard here from 8:30 to 9:30 tonight, the time actually will be 10:30 to 11:30 a. m. Saturday in Japan. The program will be heard through station JVH at 14.6 megacycles or possibly 10.6 or 7.51, depending on atmospheric conditions.

Objective of the new program, it was explained, is to provide the world with correct information on social and economic conditions in Japan. First there will be 10 or 15 minutes of news and comment in Japanese and then a 10 minute period in English. Music, lectures, and other entertainment will occupy the remaining half hour. This broadcast is to be made nightly.

Phil Baker is back from New York for another Friday evening broadcast. Eddie Garr and Zelda Santley, well known mimics, will be featured with him at 8:30 tonight on WENR. They will do impersonations of Mae West, Ed Wynn, Jack Benny, and Joe Penner.

Harry McNaughton, who is Butler Bottle, the other day revealed how the characters in Baker's show came to be named as they are. Baker was originally auditioned by another sponsor whose name began with B. Leon Belasco was to be the orchestra leader. Thus all of the headliners' names were to start with B in order to make the title of the show alliterative. It was to have been: Baker, Bottle, Beetle, Belasco, and Beechnut. But the prospective sponsor didn't buy and so the show was sold to the Chicago packer whose name begins with A.

Victor McLaglen, one of the more vociferous of movie men, will receive the headliner of the NBC Red Trails series, beginning at 8 o'clock next Tuesday evening. Red Trails has been on the air for some time, featuring dramatizations of Northwest Mounted police adventures. Henceforth the broadcasts will originate in Hollywood with an all-movie cast instead of in New York as in the past. Victor will enact the rôle of a rookie mounty.

Phillips Lord, whose round the world cruise came to an end in the south Pacific when his schooner Seth Parker foundered, is back with a new radio idea. He plans to return to the air with a real he-man's program. "Except for baseball and fight broadcasts," Lord ventured, "there seem to be no programs devoted solely to the interests of men. Radio is largely love, lavender, and lace." Lord did not reveal whether he had put Ernest Hemingway, Jim Tully, Popeye the Sailor Man, or other robust figures under contract.

Julius F. Seebach Jr., who resigned last week as director of program operations for CBS, has taken a similar position with WOR, Mutual system outlet in New York. . . . Husk O'Hare is coming back to Chicago. He'll be heard from Riverview park ballroom in a couple of weeks. . . . Claudia Muzio, operatic soprano, is to be heard in a shortwave broadcast over 2RO from Rome between 6 and 7:30 tonight. She will sing several arias from Bellini operas.

BUSINESS HEADS DEMAND EASING OF TRUST LAWS

Seek to Hold Trade Rules Set Up by Codes.

Out of the Babel of discussion over the death of the National Recovery act's compulsory control over business and industry emerged yesterday a plea for liberalization of the anti-trust laws to permit aboveboard co-operation to preserve wage, price, and fair practice standards set by codes.

Speedy legislation to this end by congress, before recession from code standards has had a chance to spread, was urged in high financial quarters to remove fear of the anti-trust laws. The suggestion came as heads of large industries and associations added their voices to those who had previously pledged their efforts to maintain price and wage levels unchanged.

Girdler Urges Stability.

Among these was T. M. Girdler, president of the Republic Steel corporation, who said, "It is my hope and belief that the steel industry as a whole will stand solidly together for continuance of the wage standards and methods of competition developed under the steel code."

This attitude was reflected in statements issued by William A. Irvin, president of the United States Steel company; Harry E. Sheldon, president of the Allegheny Steel company; Frank Purnell, president of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, and Charles R. Hook, president of the American Rolling Mill company.

Employés of other industries were reassured by promises of their executives to retain the present provisions for maximum hours and minimum wages. C. E. Wickman, president of the Greyhound corporation, announced that the bus line will continue the code provisions. Similar statements came from W. H. Moulton, president of the International Shoe company, and C. M. Chester, president of General Foods.

Plea for Stability.

From the heads of industrial associations came calls to members to uphold existing working and trade practice standards. Among these were A. B. Morrou, president of the Wine institute which claims to represent 80 per cent of the industry, and T. M. Webb, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' association, who called a meeting for June 7 in Charlotte, N. C., to obtain the indorsement of all members of the association's stand.

Emil Rieve, president of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, warned that "any hosiery manufacturer seeking to change code working conditions is in for a fight with the federation."

Dr. Lewis H. Marks, president of Continental Distilling corporation, yesterday sent telegrams to the President and other officials asserting that the corporation will not reduce in salaries or wages of employés anywhere or lengthen hours of work.

Asks Retailers' Support.

Directors of the Atlanta Retail Merchants association adopted a resolution calling on merchants to abide by the wage and hour provisions of the retailers' code. A similar resolution was adopted by the Atlanta Retail Food Dealers association.

Local representatives of large corporations declared that no abandonment of prevailing conditions is contemplated as a result of the Supreme court decision against the NRA.

James E. Coston, zone manager for Warner Brothers theaters in Chicago, said wages and hours will be kept at their present levels. B. E. Henderson, president of the Household Finance corporation, with 180 offices in 114 cities, announced that "as a matter of sound business policy" all efforts would be made to keep wages high and hours short.

Leading Bloomington, Ill., merchants are practically unanimous in favoring a continuance of working conditions and rates of pay placed into effect under the NRA, despite the fact that the method of enforcement has been declared unconstitutional, a survey has shown.

Gets Reports of Unrest.

Scattered reports from the south told of unrest engendered by a relaxation of code provisions. Employés of the Princess Dress Manufacturing company in Atlanta walked out yesterday in protest of a reduction of piece work rates. Striking employés of the Piedmont Shirt company in Greenville, S. C., agreed to end the walkout by accepting a piece work wage reduction and an increase in working hours.

In Longview, Wash., 1,000 lumber mill workers who walked out in the Pacific Northwest strike voted yesterday to accept a compromise calling for minimum wages of 50 cents an hour. They had struck for a 75 cent minimum, a 30 hour week, and other benefits. It was rumored that because of the collapse of the collective bargaining feature of NRA, some employers might hesitate to sign an agreement with the Sawmill and Timber Workers' union of which the strikers are members.

MARSHALL FIELD & CO. OFFERS CUSTOMERS YULE SAVINGS PLAN

A Christmas savings plan which will yield participants interest at the rate of 6 per cent a year was announced yesterday by Marshall Field & Co.

Beginning today, customers may make deposits of $1 or more at their own convenience until Nov. 16. Christmas saving certificates, redeemable in merchandise, will be issued by the company to such depositors beginning Nov. 25 for the full amount of the payments plus accrued interest. Interest will be calculated on each payment from the date made until Dec. 1.

The company announced that it reserved the right to limit the size of the payments which will be applied only on certificates, and will not be repaid in cash.

CANADIAN ROADS TO BUY $15,000,000 OF EQUIPMENT

MONTREAL, Que., May 30.—[Special.]—After ordering no new equipment for the last few years owing to the depression and because they desired to watch the progress being made in streamlined trains, the two Canadian railway companies will buy $15,000,000 worth of new rolling stock this year. Orders are likely to be given this week.

The Canadian National will buy $8,000,000 worth and the Canadian Pacific will purchase $7,000,000 worth of equipment. The federal government has decided to guarantee the funds, as both companies haven't the cash just now but need the equipment.

No new streamline models are being built, the old rolling stock patterns being retained. Canada, it is said, is not yet ready to adopt the new American and European fast trains.

Archer-Daniels-Midland Co.

Investors' Guide: As per the offer you have standing in your column on investments please send me in enclosed envelope report on Archer-Daniels-Midland.—D. H. A.

Answer: Archer - Daniels - Midland company is the leading domestic producer of linseed oil, which is the most important phase of its business. In recent years it has diversified production. It now turns out a wide line of vegetable and other oils. A subsidiary, Commander-Larabee corporation, operates a large flour milling and grain storage business.

Earnings of Commander - Larabee have been reported on a consolidated basis since September, 1933.

Profit of $560,000 in the first quarter of 1935 brought earnings for the nine months ended March 31, 1935, to $1,759,000, or $2.90 per common share, against $1,493,000, or $2.41 per common share, for the corresponding period of the preceding fiscal year.

Net income for the year ended June 30, 1934, was $2,317,000, or $3.82 per common share, against net of $1,209,000, or $1.79 per common share, for the preceding year. Profit in the year ended June 30, 1932, was $882,000, against $508,000 for ten months to June 30, 1931.

Current assets on June 30, 1934, including cash of $3,374,000, were $22,841,000, and current liabilities, including $8,900,000 notes payable, were $12,089,000. Long term debt was nominal, $319,000.

There are outstanding 30,991 shares of 7 per cent $100 par preferred and 549,546 shares of no par common. The common pays regular dividends of 25 cents a quarter. Extras declared in 1935 to date total 50 cents a share, against extras of 50 cents for the full 1934 year.

The preferred is high grade. The common deserves a fairly good rating.

American Bituminous Coal Co.

Investors' Guide: I have an American Bituminous Coal company 1st and refunding mortgage 6½ per cent bond which has been in default for years. I ask that you kindly investigate the standing of the bond and the possibility of collecting principal and interest.—M. S. E.

Answer: We have checked on this with the company that absorbed the former paying agent and corporate trustee of this issue. There we were told that the original issue of bonds, made in 1927, totaled $500,000. No deposits for payment of principal or interest were ever made with the paying agent, although the first few coupons were paid by the paying agent, presumably with its own funds.

Further than that, no recent information is available. The corporation owned coal lands in Virginia and Kentucky.

The bonds have no market that we know of.

755 New Freight Cars Installed in 4 Months

New freight cars installed by class 1 railroads totaled 755 during the first four months of the year, the Association of American Railroads reports. In the same period last year 1,092 new units were placed in service. Of new motive power the roads installed 15 steam locomotives and 39 electric engines, whereas in the like period last year no new steam locomotives but 6 electric units were placed in service.

BODFISH ATTACKS REALTY SECTIONS OF BANKING BILL

Mortgage Business Is Reported Gaining.

Washington, D. C., May 30.—[Special.]—A rapidly developing competitive drive for mortgage business is under way in the United States and this activity will double in the next six months, Morton Bodfish of Chicago, executive vice president of the United States Building and Loan league, asserted today before a senate banking subcommittee.

The whole trend is toward long term obligations ranging from twelve to twenty years, and this is a sound move, Bodfish declared, as it provides for orderly repayment of indebtedness in a manner within the average American citizen's income capacity.

Opposes Sections of Bill.

A former member of the Federal Home Loan bank board, he was testifying in opposition to those sections of the banking bill that remove the territorial limitations on real estate loans by commercial banks, authorize these banks to negotiate long term real estate loans, and relax existing restrictions on the amount of capital such banks may invest.

Senator Glass, chairman of the subcommittee, said he hoped to conclude public hearings on the bill Monday. The full committee will then proceed in executive session to the final drafting. This means that the legislation may reach the senate floor in a week or ten days.

Bodfish's contention was that short term or commercial credit institutions should not engage in long term mortgage or capital credit activities.

Reasons for Position.

"Outstanding in the recasting of credit systems in the United States has been the policy that these short term or commercial credit institutions remain outside the long term or capital credit field," he said. "This sound principle has been observed elsewhere and explains in some part the stability enjoyed by the banking structure of other countries, notably Great Britain and Sweden.

"This bill proposes to continue and encourage the mortgage activities by banks which violated this banking principle and which was a factor in the recent overexpansion and collapse of credit. This overexpansion in long term credits was responsible for numerous failures in the banking field and a discouraging 'freezing' in the mortgage credit field."

BRITISH REPORT DISCLOSES BIG JAP TRADE GAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 30.—The growing seriousness of Japanese competition in world trade is emphasized in a report on economic conditions in Japan in 1933 and 1934 issued by the department of overseas trade.

The report denies the suggestion that the dimensions of Japanese competition have been exaggerated, pointing out that while the league of nations estimates place the Japanese share of world trade at 3.13 per cent, actually Japan's exports of manufactured and semi-manufactured articles are 10 per cent. The direction of Japanese exports is shown to be toward markets with low purchasing power per head.

While the figures for Europe and North America changed little, the increase in Asia, Africa, and South and Central America was considerable.

The report warned manufacturers not to rely solely on the superiority of goods to defeat Japanese competition.

"It may safely be said that where quality is more important than price, Japanese manufacturers are able to compete with foreigners in a widening range," the report said.

CHICAGO STOCK EXCHANGE HEAD SEES TRADE GAIN

O'Brien Issues 1st Report in Many Years.

In a message expressing confidence in the future Michael J. O'Brien last night issued the first formal president's report made to members of the Chicago Stock exchange in many years. Unusual events of the last year and a desire to make a statement on current conditions, said O'Brien, dictated the departure from custom.

General business conditions, as reflected in the corporations with stock listed on the exchange, are improving definitly, he said. This has been reflected in higher prices for securities. Further, the exchange leader, who is unopposed for reëlection June 3, predicts a reopening of the capital markets and an increase in volume of stock trading. He also sees an enlarged place in the future financial structure for Chicago and its stock exchange.

Normal Yet to Be Reached.

"There has been a great deal of talk about getting back to 1925 and 1926 levels," he said. "Was 1925 or 1926 a normal year for our exchange? I am of the opinion that the financial business of Chicago, including our exchange, has not yet had a normal year in relation to the importance of the middle west as a factor in the nation's business.

"The years to come will see, I confidently believe, the Chicago Stock exchange assuming its normal position as a financing agent for the business of a territory rich in resources and young in development."

Turning to the loss of standing suffered by stock exchanges during the depression, O'Brien asserted that all marts have gained a mutual understanding of each other's problems and have found in the securities and exchange commission a regulatory body which is anxious to be of constructive aid to the exchanges as well as the investor.

Seek Public Confidence.

"Our major problem lies in reëstablishing public confidence," he stated. "The investment bankers appear to be breaking through the wall which for so long dammed up the flow of accumulated funds into new capital issues. True, most of the current new issues are for refunding at lower rates of interest. But this is the beginning. Increased activity and interest in stock exchange securities will naturally follow.

"We are building our institution on sound and permanent policies. Temporary disturbing political or economic situations, therefore, will not have more than a temporary effect on our affairs."

Referring to depression effects and the corporations not applying for registration of their securities with the SEC, O'Brien was of the opinion "that although reduced in number, the quality of our remaining corporations is as high as at any time in our history."

Average Price Higher.

Reflection of business conditions is seen in the 55 per cent rise of the average price of 50 listed stocks, taken at random, from $26.50 on Jan. 3, 1934, to $41.12 on May 1, 1935.

General business improvement is attested by the fact that Chicago listed corporations paid 24.6 per cent more in dividends in 1934 than in 1933, said O'Brien, and that to date in 1935 the amount has increased 53 per cent over the same period of last year.

While the fiscal year ended April 30 last was the fourth to show an operating loss by the exchange, O'Brien pointed out that the $83,403 deficit is 46 per cent less than that of the preceding year. Income increased 16 per cent, from $161,782 to $187,928, while expenses dropped 14 per cent, from $315,463 to $271,331.

DOLLARS, FRANC GAIN ON POUND IN LONDON TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 30.—Dollars and francs gained moderately against the British pound today while United States markets were closed.

Francs were especially active. The pound closed at $4.19¾ as compared with an overnight New York rate of $4.92⅝, after opening at $4.92¼.

London bar silver gained ⅛ pence at 33 1-16 pence, equivalent to 73.31 cents an ounce. Bar gold advanced 3 pence to an American equivalent of $34.95 an ounce.

Meat Packers Report Drastic Cuts in 1st Quarter Exports

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Drastic declines in America's export trade in meats and meat products are shown for the first quarter of 1935 in figures reported yesterday by the Institute of American Meat Packers.

For the first three months of 1935 exports of pork were 29 per cent less than in the same period in 1934. They were 41 per cent below the 5 year average for those months. Exports of lard in the same period were 65 per cent smaller than in the like period of 1934, and they showed a decline of 75 per cent from the 5 year average.

Chiefly Pork and Lard.

The export trade in meat products, which in 1934 amounted to about 683 million pounds, is confined chiefly to pork and lard. Lard alone composed 67 per cent of this export last year.

The tremendous decline of meat exports in recent years is shown in the institute's statistical tables. More pork and pork products have been exported from America than from any other country in the world. In 1923 the value of meat and meat animal products, not including hides and lether, exceeded 313 million dollars. It represented 8 per cent of the value of all domestic exports. In 1934 the value of meat and meat products exports had dwindled to about 67 million dollars, representing less than 3½ per cent of domestic exports.

Since 1929 there has been a decline in American exports of about 191 million pounds of pork meats and 408 million pounds of lard.

13,000,000 Hogs "Lost."

The institute figures that in the last five years the decline in exports of pork meats is equivalent to the product from 1,500,000 hogs, while the fall in lard exports is equivalent to the lard yield from 11,500,000 hogs. Thus the declining export volume in five years has taken away from American farmers a market for about 13 million hogs a year, and in 1935 the decline is continuing at a rapid rate.

The institute attributes the vanishing markets chiefly to retaliatory tarif walls, quotas, and other restrictions put up by countries importing pork and lard, and to the complication of war debts, loans, exchange, and trade balances. The trade with the United Kingdom, a leading customer, is cited as an example of the way trade has been restricted. To foster production of hogs in the United Kingdom, all countries which ship ham and bacon were asked by the British in 1932 to limit their shipments of meats, and a decline of exports to Britain has followed the quota.

Blame AAA for Loss.

In addition to the reasons advanced by the institute, other experts argue that the drastic decline in recent times is largely attributable to the AAA. Foreign hog raising, they maintain, has been stimulated by the hog and corn program of the AAA, just as foreign cotton growers increased their acreage when the New Deal prescribed for the south the cotton plow-under and the cotton acreage reduction program under the Bankhead act. The effect, it is argued, has been to build up the foreign competitor of the American farmer.

In certain European countries hog production has increased rapidly in recent years. Some of these countries, which had to depend upon some imports of fats from America, are now themselves on an exporting basis. Some of them are reported as supplying European markets which formerly purchased a larger proportion of American meats and meat products.

WINNIPEG WHEAT SLIGHTLY HIGHER IN DULL TRADING

WINNIPEG, Man., May 30.—(AP)—The wheat market plodded along through another dull trading session today, but with small gains to its credit. Absence of offerings eased a three day selling pressure and enabled prices to close ½ to ¾ cent higher with May at 82¼ and July 83⅜ cents. Liverpool closed lower.

In cash wheat exporters and shippers bought No. 4 northern and the lower grades of red springs. Offerings were light side with only small quantities traded.

AMERICANS GIVE UP BUSINESSES IN MANCHUKUO

MUKDEN, Manchukuo, May 30.—(AP)—Liquidation or drastic retrenchment of American busines interests in Manchukuo proceeded rapidly today because of the restrictive measures of the Manchukuan régime. The Mukden branch of the National City Bank of New York will close tomorrow because of the decline in American business in south Manchukuo.

Explaining that the Manchukuan oil monopoly which began operation April 10 "deprived foreign companies of their sales rights," in petroleum products in Manchukuo, and that "hence they have no alternative but to withdraw from these territories," the Standard-Vacuum Oil company announced it is steadily liquidating its large sales organization throughout Manchukuo.

Ford Plans $2,000,000 Canadian Plant Additions

EAST WINDSOR, Ont., May 30.—(AP)—Powerhouse equipment to the value of approximately $2,000,000 will be added to the Ford Motor Company of Canada plant here to provide for the increased production expected next year. President Wallace H. Campbell announced today that tenders had been asked for additional equipment.

TREASURY RECEIVES $3,000,000 PREMIUM FOR AUCTIONED BONDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—A premium of 3 million dollars was netted by the government on its first "auction" sale of bonds in twenty-four years, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau announced today.

Investors bid an average price of 103 4-32 for the treasury's current offering of 100 million dollars of 3 per cent bonds of 1946-'48, the secretary announced. This was the first sale of government bonds to the highest bidder since 1911.

The offering was oversubscribed almost three times, as tenders for 270 million dollars of bonds were received by the treasury. Bids for $98,779,000 were accepted.

Additional flotations of bonds on an "auction" basis probably will be tried by the treasury in view of the reception accorded this first offering. Bi-weekly sales of bonds in this fashion between now and July 1 to provide money for President Roosevelt's work relief program have been forecast by Secretary Morgenthau.

Prices offered for the bonds ranged from 103 26-32 down to 103 1-32, averaging 103 4-32, according to Morgenthau. The total premium which the government will net from these sales above par aggregates $3,085,207, he announced.

Figured on the average price, the yield on these 3 per cent bonds will be 2.87 per cent to the earliest call date, June 15, 1946, and 2.71 per cent to maturity, June 15, 1948.

Although Secretary Morgenthau had expected to "hit the market right on the nose" by offering bonds to the highest bidder, the average price was actually well under the price which prevailed for these same bonds on Saturday, the last day before the new issue was announced.

NOTICE OF REDEMPTION

To Holders of

Swift and Company Ten Year 5% Gold Notes

Dated September 1, 1930

NOTICE is hereby given to the holders of Swift and Company Ten Year 5% Gold Notes, dated September 1, 1930, that the Company has elected to redeem and pay on September 1, 1935, all of said notes then outstanding, at the principal amount thereof, plus interest accrued to said date and plus a premium of one and one-quarter per cent. (1¼%) of the principal of the notes, in accordance with the provisions of Article Two of the Trust Agreement between Swift and Company and Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company, Trustee, dated September 1, 1930, securing the issue of said notes.

Such notes, having attached thereto all interest coupons maturing on and subsequent to September 1, 1935, should be presented for redemption and surrendered at the office of Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago (successor Trustee under said Trust Agreement), 231 South La Salle Street, Chicago, Illinois, on or after September 1, 1935.

In the case of notes which shall, at the time, be registered as to principal, such notes must be accompanied by duly executed assignments or transfer powers.

Interest on all such notes will cease on September 1, 1935.

Swift and Company

By WM. B. TRAYNOR,
Vice President and Treasurer

Dated: Chicago, Illinois, May 24, 1935

The above mentioned notes will be accepted and paid upon presentation at the office of the Trustee at any time on and after June 15, 1935, and prior to September 1, 1935, at 101¼% of par, with accrued interest to the date upon which the notes are received by the Trustee.

MAGILL ASSAILS UTILITY BILL AS GAMBLERS' AID

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—A warning that the pending Wheeler-Rayburn public utility control bill would create a nation-wide scandal, with Wall street speculators reaping millions in a "gamblers' holiday," was issued today by Dr. Hugh S. Magill of Chicago, president of the American Federation of Utility Investors.

Dr. Magill said such fears had been expressed to him privately by certain senators high in the Democratic leadership, who decline to oppose the measure openly because it is on President Roosevelt's "must" program.

Subject of Controversy.

The Wheeler-Rayburn bill is the pending business of the senate and is the subject of a bitter controversy on the floor, with Republican senators and some Democrats contending that it is unconstitutional in the light of the Supreme court's NRA and Frazier-Lemke case decisions. Nevertheless, the alacrity with which the administration leaders brought up the bill for consideration, despite warnings as to its constitutionality, indicated that the senate would pass it without substantial change.

Dr. Magill's warning was based chiefly upon the so-called "death sentence" in the bill, which provides for the liquidation of all holding companies which cannot show an economic usefulness after five years.

Sees Millions for Gamblers.

"Those who vote for the 'death sentence' section must face the prospect of accepting responsibility for a nationwide scandal when, at the expense of their investor-constituents, Wall street gamblers reap millions," said Dr. Magill.

"To conform to the law, the major holding companies would dump upon a panicky market hundreds of millions of utility securities. More hundreds of millions would be unloaded by investors in a mad scramble to salvage a pitiful vestige of value out of the wreckage. A 'gamblers' holiday' would develop out of such a situation."

HELP WANTED—MEN.

Salesmen.

MAN TO MAN, HERE IS A SENSATIONAL

BUSINESS.

A new idea in line with a giant industry in the making which will mean a $5,000,000,000 industry in America. It is an electrical unit that lends itself to a wonderful presentation with a large corporation in back of it and the greatest sales program that has ever been put in a salesman's hands; that will meet conditions as they are today with very liberal compensation to our dealers. This INVENTION is in Chicago just a short time, and when you see the evidence of cash commission being paid to our representatives you will be amazed. FOR EXAMPLE—H. C. BLACK drew over $1,000 for the first 4 weeks. A brand-new man with no selling experience, J. TERRY, earned his first 3 weeks in this business $336.00 and has averaged $26 a day for his first 69 days in this business. Another man, P. LECUYER, was paid $1,201.00 for 4 weeks.

Ordinarily a proposition as big as this would require the purchase of expensive equipment. But our manufacturing process has been so simplified that we can furnish you with everything you need, start you off making money the very first day—with no investment on your part whatsoever.

Absolutely no experience is required to quickly become successful in this fascinating business. We train you, tell you how to start—how to establish yourself quickly—how to operate the business the very first day you are ready to go. We furnish all necessary plans, systems and equipment. Any man with ordinary intelligence and a real desire to succeed is bound to make money.

Another feature that makes this business unlike any other is that it can be operated anywhere. You can establish yourself practically over night and start enjoying an independent income at once.

This is NOT AN ORDINARY JOB and may be your opportunity. Come prepared to stay all afternoon for complete investigation. All men who are aggressive and willing workers apply on Friday, May 31st, at 12 o'clock noon only.
Room 1009, 75 E. Wacker-dr.

STRAUS & SCHRAM,

Chicago's outstanding Home Furnishings House, have an opening for a few capable salespersons for direct contact representation among our numerous local and suburban customers. March Through Rain to Honor War Dead on Memorial Day—Decorate Veterans' Graves at Cemeteries

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

ARMY PARTICIPATES IN MEMORIAL DAY PARADE—United States troops in formation at Congress street and Michigan avenue yesterday during parade honoring veterans of the civil war, the Spanish-American war and the world war. In spite of rain, thousands lined streets. Not until the end of the parade did the sun appear. Civil war veterans did not march, automobiles having been provided for the ageing G. A. R. members. In front of the reviewing stand were a dozen of them who braved the rain to watch the parade. (Story on page 7.)

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

POLICE BATTLE N. Y. RIOTERS—Several heads were clubbed yesterday when police in New York were forced to use their nightsticks on a group that attempted to gain entrance to offices of the department of welfare. Here rioters are moving quickly away from the building as the officer wields his club. (Story on page 9.)

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

MODERN CHANNEL CROSSER—Jacob Boulig, German sportsman, driving his car out of the water, as he did Wednesday after crossing the English channel in the amphibian motor car. The crossing required 8 hours 20 minutes. Emerging from the water, he proceeded to London. Paddle wheels propel the car through water.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

HONOR CONFEDERATES—Hyde Park post, No. 34, of the American Legion firing a salute at the Confederate statue in Oak Woods cemetery yesterday, where services were also held for Confederate soldiers who died in the war. (Story on page 7.)

[Acme Photo.]

GERMAN EX-ROYALTY—Former Crown Prince Wilhelm of Germany and his wife Cecile (in light coat) as they arrived in Stockholm, Sweden, to attend wedding of Princess Ingrid and Crown Prince Frederik of Denmark.

"BORROWED" AUTO MAY COST LIFE—John Grabowski (left) started out to call on a girl friend yesterday. He took a car without owner's consent. En route to girl's home, Grabowski struck two boys. One was Alfred Kuna, 7 years old (right), brother of Grabowski's sweetheart. Alfred may die. (Story on page 2.)
